INTRODUCTION

I

The second installment of the Bibliography of Pope, continuing the account of the publication of his own compositions from the point where Part I left off, tells the story from January 1, 1735, to the end of 1751, the year in which Bishop Warburton published the nine-volume edition of the Works which he intended to be definitive. As supplemental matter there are an appendix of “Additions and Corrections” (fulfilling a promise made in Part I) and an Index.

The number of books described in Part I is 364, containing nearly two hundred pieces; in Part II there are 325 books, containing upwards of sixty new pieces; and in the “Additions and Corrections” there are 63 books not listed in Part I, containing some twenty-five pieces. Thus, from 1709 to 1751, the books mount in number to a total of 752. These, in whole or in part, either are certainly by Pope or have at some time been attributed to him. For the purpose of the study of his writings, they vary greatly in importance, ranging from a volume devoted entirely to his work down to a newspaper or magazine containing an advertisement which he composed or a quotation of a few of his verses.

For all that are of major importance, and for a large proportion of the rest, among these 752 books, details of the time of publication, of format and content, and of circumstances attending printing and publication are set before the student. Of the making of a particular bibliography, as of the general “making of books,” there is no end. Much remains yet to be done, even upon the period so far covered. But it is not, I think, too much to say that the bibliography of Pope is now available for study in an amplitude and precision not equalled by the bibliography of any other English author of comparable rank or mass of production.

II

Furthermore, it is not extravagant I think to say that the five-year period from 1923 to 1927 has increased our knowledge of the details of Pope's literary activities to an extent paralleled only by one other such efflorescence, the fruitful era of the researches of Croker, Thoms, Dilke, and Carruthers in the years 1854–1860. Three contributions of magnitude may be mentioned here.

The most notable single discovery was a recovery—Dr. Case's recognition of Pope's juvenilia in a rare volume published by Lintot in July of 1717 under the title of Poems on Several Occasions (see infra, the description of Book No. Add 88a, among "Additions and Corrections"). Dr. Case is to be congratulated heartily upon a fine piece of work. He has increased the body of the juvenilia by eleven poems, containing 192 lines; and he has detected what was the first edition of four other poems.

Dr. Sherburn, in a review of Part I of this Bibliography in Modern Philology, has added a number of books to those I had listed; and, by reading the newspapers in the British Museum for the years 1709 to 1730, and several hundreds of pamphlets,<sup>1</sup> he has been able to establish exact dates for many books to which I had been able only to attach the title-page dates; in several cases he has found an earlier month-date of publication than the one I had set down.

Dr. Case, in a similar article in a later number of Modern Philology, has continued the work with further additions.

All students of the poet must feel grateful to these gentlemen for placing their findings on record. To the end that all the bibliography of Pope may be brought together, I have included all this information in the section of "Additions and Corrections" at the end of this volume, with indications how the entries in Part I are to be revised thereby.

<sup>1</sup>In such labors the difficulty is that a single reading is not enough, for one overlooks things, the significance of which is not perceptible until newly found facts give a meaning to them.

Since 1923 a goodly number of books not previously available to me have been added to the Library of the University of Texas. Consequently I have myself had the good fortune in the pursuit of my researches to be able to offer a number of additions and corrections to the records of Part I. I have even recovered—by way of keeping Dr. Case company—a long poem of 164 lines to be added to the corpus of Pope's juvenilia. No one, not even the recoverers themselves, will claim that these youthful experiments of Pope are great poetry;<sup>2</sup> but in a bibliography, completeness is a choice star to hitch one's wagon to.

III

As the Dunciad and the Essay on Man were the cruces of Part I, so the Letters of 1735 and of 1741 offer the prime puzzles of Part II.

So much of the poet's correspondence as was made public within his lifetime was published in three principal installments: in the Miscellanea of 1726–27, in the Letters of 1735,<sup>3</sup> and in Vol. II of the Works, In Prose of 1741. The numerous editions and variants of editions are listed and described at their appropriate places in the pages infra; the letters as individual units are not treated here, a task I hope, however, yet to accomplish as a portion of the general bibliography of Pope. And it is not necessary to retell here the history of the multifarious transactions that went into the poet's gathering and publishing the letters; the details can be gathered from the discussions that follow or, in general outline, from Dilke or Elwin (see page 268, infra.)

<sup>2</sup>Information about other authors than Pope is sometimes an incidental contribution in this Bibliography. For one example, the popularity of Thomson's Sophonisba, measurable heretofore by the yardstick of Fielding's ridicule in Tom Thumb (passim, but especially II, v, 5, and note), is shown, by the number of editions herein listed, to have been greater than might have been supposed.

<sup>3</sup>The correspondence with Wycherley was published in 1729, but the book failed, and remainder sheets of it were incorporated into the earlier editions of the Letters of 1735.

The historical data in the letters have been used by biographers and others. But no one feels at ease in the use of them. Pope has condemned himself by an avowal of a willingness to deceive (compare page 549, infra); and critics, in particular Dilke, have further condemned him by comparing his printed version of a letter with the original holograph copy to show how considerably he introduced changes. In our most lenient moods we cannot wholly exculpate him, for he definitely meant some letters at least to be accepted as historically veracious, such for example as those letters to Swift which he marked with asterisks in the table of contents. Yet he tampered with them, combining parts of two letters to make a new one that was printed though never mailed, revising them, "cooking" them, until, as statements of fact, they are all suspect. It remains true, nevertheless, that in a general way he thought of his letters as literature rather than as history. Even as literature, we do not read them now with as much pleasure as we read the letters of Byron or Cowper or Gray or Walpole. Pope's letters were published just at the dawn of the great era of letter-writing in English history. And in the very great popularity they enjoyed from 1735 to 1743, it does not appear to me to be bad literary history to see a portion of the dynamic moment, the initiating impulse, that produced great letter-writers like Walpole and Gray, and epistolary novels that in the hands of Richardson and Smollett were incomparably superior to anything of their sort that had been before.

In Pope's time a letter belonged to the writer, not the recipient. It did not look entirely well for a man to publish his own letters. No one else could publish them without his consent while he lived or, after his death, without the consent of his family. A rule was passed by the House of Lords (Standing Order of January 31, 1721; cf. Thoms's Curll Papers, p. 105) when Curll was about to publish the Works of the Duke of Buckinghamshire, declaring it a breach of privilege to print a lord's works without his consent. This was the rule invoked when Curll was haled before the House of Lords in May of 1735.

IV

Pope's relations to the agencies and activities of publication in his time are clearer now than hitherto.

In his earlier years he transacted the business of his publishing through the booksellers. In 1706, when as yet he was but 18 years old, he received a note that must have been gratifying, even flattering, in which Kit-Cat Tonson volunteered (cf. E-C, IX, 545) to be publisher for him. He chose Tonson as publisher of the Pastorals (1709), but Pope seems never to have much warmed up to the mightiest bookseller of his generation. Lewis followed Tonson in 1711, and gave place in 1712 to Lintot, who continued to publish for Pope till 1726. Reversion to Tonson for the publication of the edition of Shakespeare (1721–25) had been a temporary connection, founded upon the property in copyright. In 1726 a quarrel with Lintot led to an experiment with Motte as publisher of the Miscellanies of 1727–28, but Motte, too, proved unsatisfactory.

From dealing with booksellers, Pope proceeded to dealing direct with printers.<sup>4</sup>

The Dunciad of 1728 was printed in the shop of Bettenham, brother-in-law of William Bowyer. It is illustrative of the imperfect state of our knowledge to observe that while we do not certainly know which of two issues was the genuine princeps of that famous satire, we do know the

<sup>4</sup>"I was forced to print in a small form, by other printers beginning to do so from my folios.* I will have no more to do with printing, myself: and if the world should have a mind to a good edition of all my works, it must be from somebody that may take care of it, after my death.—P."

*After which all the large lay on my hands, and I have lost two or three hundred pounds by it.—P. [Additions from Papers.]

—Spence's Anecdotes (ed. Singer, 1820), "Section VIII. 1742 . . . 43," pp. 266–67.

What particular transaction is referred to in this anecdote is not plain. Folios with accompanying octavos began with the Epistle to Burlington (Of Taste) in 1731.

Interesting but not helpful speculations on Pope and his printers were advanced in N & Q, 1 S., X, 217–18.

name of the 'prentice boy who carried the proof-sheets of it back and forth between Pope and Bettenham's shop. He was Daniel Prince:—<sup>5</sup>

Did you ever see the first Edition of the "Dunciad?" a small six-penny pamphlet, published in 1727, I think, but cannot depend on the year, though I was the apprentice trusted to go to the Author with the proofs in great secrecy. I had the wit to keep the sheets with some of his marks to correct; but have lately lost them, in removing my rubbish from my old house and shop to one of the Savilian houses near New College.

(—Letter from Prince to Nichols, October 5, 1793, Literary Anecdotes, III, 705.)

Bettenham entered copyright in the Dunciad at Stationers' Hall in his own name, and it was doubtless he who made arrangements with the Widow Dodd, if indeed her consent was ever asked, for placing her name at the foot of the title-page as the nominal publisher.

Further use of Bettenham not proving feasible—in the absence of knowledge it is not necessary to assume a quarrel or dissatisfaction in the case, the printer may have had all his facilities previously bespoken—Pope chose John Wright to be the printer of his next book, the quarto Dunciad. It was in the press in the summer and autumn of 1728, though not published until April of 1729. Wright's name is not openly connected with the Dunciad, but that he was the printer is inferred from the use in it of printer's ornaments which reappear in books he is known to have printed. He held his place, a much more important one than has been suspected until recently, as principal printer for Pope from 1728 to 1743.

Through Wright, it now looks probable, Pope transacted all his major operations in publishing—some of them being quite devious performances—in that period, 1728–1743, practically the remainder of his lifetime.

<sup>5</sup>Prince was bound apprentice June 7, 1726, and made free September 4, 1733. Bettenham's shop was in Saint James's, Clerkenwell. (Information supplied me by the kindness of Dr. F. B. Kaye, of Northwestern University.)

Printing finished, the bookseller chosen to publish the quarto Dunciad was, not Mrs. Dodd again, though her name with the loss of one d was printed on the title page, but Lawton Gilliver, who had recently completed his apprenticeship and set up as bookseller.<sup>6</sup> He was Pope's chief bookseller-publisher from 1729 to the end of 1735. In the intervening years, however, the poet made use of four other booksellers for publishing important works. The Essay on Man he wished to have appear anonymously; so he had the printing done in the shop of Wright, and presumably through him conducted the negotiations that led to choice of Wilford as publisher, a bookseller who had had no previous association with any book by Pope. Similarly, Wright was probably the "agency" Curril speaks of, through whom Pope sold the Sober Advice to Brindley, Bowman, and the others. The Letters of May 12, 1735, has little to indicate the shop whence it proceeded, but the book, it is probable, was printed at Wright's; whether the "P. T." notes to and from Curril were interchanged through the same shop can only be surmised; as a result of them Curril was inveigled (willingly on his part, eagerly, to be sure) into being publisher for the Letters. But as part of the game, Curril's edition was to be branded as surreptitious or worse: consequently still another publisher for the the Letters was to be sought. He was found in Thomas Cooper. But the stretch of twelve days that intervened between May 12 and May 24, when Cooper took over publication, points to difficulties encountered by Wright in inducing any bookseller to undertake the pugnacious task.

After the Letters of May, 1735, Cooper and Dodsley, taking more and more the place of Gilliver, became the publishers of new productions as Pope had them ready; by 1742 they had the larger portion of his work in their control. What were the terms of their coöperation in the matter we do not now know. Cooper's name disappeared from title-pages after the summer of 1743, to be succeeded by that of M. Cooper, who was Mistress Mary (Thomas's widow?). With Mary, Dodsley did not continue the association. In the Warburton regime, from 1745 on, both Dodsley and Cooper gave place to the Knaptons, until the Knapton failure, which, however, is subject-matter of a later volume in this history.

<sup>6</sup>Lawton was the son of John Gilliver, gentleman of Pilsey in the county of Derby. He was apprenticed on March 6, 1720[21], to Jonah Bowyer, and was made free on May 7, 1728. (—From information kindly supplied me by Dr. Kaye.)

In 1736–38, Henry Woodfall was the printer of certain of Pope's books, but the connection of the two men appears to have been indirect, through Lintot first and later through Dodsley also, until 1738, when, to pay one bill for printing done, poet and printer came into direct contact.

V

What precise meaning was attached to the appearance of a bookseller's name on a title-page we do not know; we know yet less what fringes of meaning were implied. Dodsley and Cooper indulged in a custom that looks odd to us: the name of one alone was occasionally placed in the imprint, though ownership of the copy was vested in the other. In Part I, I expressed a strong suspicion that a bookseller's name might be placed on a titlepage without the first asking his permission, and that such a procedure did not infringe upon established trade amenities (see p. xxxi). It is very nearly certain that no previous intimation was given to Roberts that his name was to be used for the Afternoon Edition of the Letters (Book No. 375). It looks as if, for a stated discount, the names of certain dealers and keepers of "pamphlet-shops" (Popping, Burleigh, Nutt, Roberts, Dodd) could be conventionally used with as little of negotiation as one may now stamp a letter and send it to the postoffice. A petition before the House of Lords, April 17, 1716, of Mistress Popping is in point here. It is quoted in full by Thoms in Curl Papers, pp. 38–39. I give a portion:—

Your Lordships Petitioner knew nothing of her name being put to the Lord Wintoun's Trial [a sixpage pamphlet], which has justly offended Your Lordships, nor knew of its being sent to be published by her untill after it was brought to her house.

That being ill at the time it came, your Petitioner's sister, who is not acquainted with such things, had published it before your Petitioner knew anything of it.

Your Lordships Petitioner and her Sister have fully declared all they know about the Booksellers concerned in it, and it being usual in such cases to discharge the publisher upon discovery of the Bookseller,

Your Petitioner most humbly begs Your Lordships favor that shee may be discharged without fees, Her condition and the profitts shee has by publication not being able to bear it.

And Yr Pet<sup>r</sup> shall pray, &c.

SARAH POPPING

Luck was with Sarah. She found favor with their Lordships, and was discharged without fees. But how Curril the bookseller and Daniel Bridge the printer did catch it! The importance of several passages in the petition will not need to be italicized to impress the reader.

VI

Provisions of the copyright law were neither entirely sound nor adequately enforced. For comment upon some of the difficulties, see notes upon various books infra, especially Book Nos. 391 and 470, and upon books printed "For T. Johnson" or "For the Booksellers." In a newspaper advertisement of June 16, 1735, Cooper insisted that the Act of Queen Anne was still in force (see Book No. 384), and in other advertisements he referred to the copyright law (see, e.g., Book No. 378). Troubles for both authors and booksellers were numerous; read the letter from Pope to Fortescue that is quoted under Book No. 382. A passage, too, in a letter from Aaron Hill to W. R. Chetwood, November 8, 1735, is apposite: . . . "under the Booksellers' want of a law, as things now stand, to secure them in the property of their copies, it were a kind of poetical felony, to make you pay for a chance of being plunder'd without remedy"

(—quoted in the Gentleman's Magazine, XCIV [1824], I, 411).

Quotations of entries in the Stationers' Register that appear in the following pages are taken from the notes in E-C (revised in one or two cases). Entry for copyright in the Register was, of course, usually genuine; sometimes, however, it appears to have been a cloak, a record of merely nominal ownership. Wright entered, for instance, the Ode to Venus in his own name, and he may have been the bona fide owner of the copy, though he did not, so far as I know, combine bookselling with his occupation as printer; and he shortly afterwards sold this copy. Several books are entered in Pope's own name, none before the late thirties; what he gained or intended thereby awaits explanation.

VII

The significance of Pope's transactions with booksellers, printers, and advertisers in the risky business of publishing does not, from the foregoing concise comments so briefly set down, emerge in all of its fullness. The depth and reach of it can be perceived only when his activities are set against the background of what was general experience in his generation—too long a story to be entered upon here. Pope was the first man in English literature to accumulate an independent fortune from the sale of books that were written as works of art. As well as poet, he was a man of business. He meant to see that his published books "succeeded." Taking environment by the throat, he compelled it to serve his own ends: he ameliorated risk into a reasonable certainty. In his youth, he meditated upon patronage, and dismissed it as a system for his own aggrandizement. It was an obsolescent system. As other customs inheriting from the feudal organization of society decayed after the Rebellion, so patronage disintegrated through stages of a sort of stock-company patronage, which was publishing by subscription, and political-party patronage, which was the shifting of the burden of support in the reign of good Queen Anne from individual shoulders to the shoulders of the government. In his manhood, Pope watched the disintegration through. On the other hand, with education spreading out and downwards, the writing class had developed proportionally more rapidly than the class of reading purchasers of books. Hardship, poverty, a fierce struggle to survive had ensued among writers, often a losing struggle. Prose and verse from 1670 to 1740 are replete with whimpers, moans, sardonic laughter, anathemas upon the Muses' arid breasts. A dependable patron was gone, a sustaining public was not yet come. With such a recalcitrant condition Pope wrestled; from it he wrested success. He resorted at times to subterfuges we think undignified, but he lost no contemporary prestige by them; we pronounce them base, he thought them fire with which to whip the devil. And, as we have seen, he knew his devils pretty intimately. The subterfuges of the Letters were the worst. Yet see what he did with them. The letters as part of the Works of Wycherley fell utterly flat in 1729, in spite of two famous names associated with them. He took the very same letters, the sheets indeed of the identical book that had failed, and, by manipulation and managed publicity, forced them in 1735 to become the literary sensation of a decade. If Pope is not the greatest among English poets, he is the greatest advertiser and publisher among them. The conclusion of the whole matter is, that by right ways and by wrong ways Pope was a very powerful influence in developing by the beginning of the second half of the eighteenth century that "reading public" in which, ever since, men of letters have moved and had their being, and by which they have lived. Thus much, to point to the significance of Pope's business activities: the very great influence his poetry exerted over art and taste in the eighteenth century needs no comment here, being a commonplace of literary history.

VIII

A book itself, on its career through the shops of printer and binder, might encounter good fortune or bad. A few matters that will later be discussed more at length as specific instances arise, may be brought to the reader's attention very briefly here.

Cancels, while not unknown in books of today, were far commoner in Pope's generation. It is the task of an editor to reckon up all the changes a cancellation may introduce into the text; but some part of the explanation of why a leaf or sheet was canceled, must be stated in a bibliography. I trust that sufficient explanation is offered for each case as it presents itself in the following pages. The commonest reason was to correct a misprint, as in Book Nos. 454–455. A copy of the Works, II, 1735, folio, looks as if it lacks a leaf, does lack a leaf in fact, but is a perfect book none-the-less. A blunder in the composing-room caused the discrepancy, which is explained under Book No. 370. If Pope wished to alter his text, he found it easy to do so. He canceled a leaf in a Dunciad of 1735 after a remonstrance from Broome, and had a new one printed, to change a couplet that gave Broome unhappiness (Book No. 405); the title-leaf was changed at the same time, and thus a new "edition" came into being. In the quarto Essay on Man (Book No. 336) a leaf was substituted to alter a couplet from—

If Parts allure thee, think how Wh** shin'd,
Wh**, the Shame and Scandal of Mankind:

to the second thought that is now a very famous one<sup>7</sup>—

If Parts allure thee, think how Bacon shin'd,
The wisest, brightest, meanest of Mankind.

For a piece of wholesale cancellation, see what Warburton did in his famous edition of the Works in 1751.

Pope occasionally decided to alter his plan of a book in the middle of things. Working in direct contact with his printer, he could effect the changes much more readily than if he had been working through a bookseller. The oddities apparent in the small octavo Vol. II of the Works and Vol. II, Part II (Book Nos. 505 and 507) resulted when leaves printed to be placed in one book were shifted to a place in the other. The early editions of the Letters of 1735 are a complication of the shifting about of printed sheets and part-sheets and the printing of new sheets and leaves to fit in with such as were already in hand. When the Letters of 1737 (Book Nos. 454–457) were first printed off, the plan was to include therein Pope's "Thoughts on Various Subjects" (in a revised form). But before publication the poet decided to add several supplementary letters; so several sheets (the original Ss, Tt, and Uu sheets) were held out, and new-printed sheets (Ss and Tt) were substituted; the original sheets, however, were stored in the wareroom, and later were used as part of the Works, In Prose, Vol. II, of 1741.

In the case of the small octavo Works of 1735–1736, the seeming oddity of the publication of Vols. I and III by one bookseller and of Vols. II and IV by another, is after all fairly simple; the explanation is given among the notes under Book No. 414. But the existence of two different printings of each volume (Book Nos. 388–389, 413–414, 417–418, and 431–432) is much less easy to account for. If the variants were not printed simultaneously, it looks as if the publisher would have wanted to distinguish them in some fashion on the titlepage, calling one variant perhaps a Second Edition. The explanation that has appeared most reasonable to me is that the publishers—Pope, it happens, was out of the transaction in this case—anticipating a large demand, ordered a large number of copies to be struck off (say, 3000 or more), and the printer acted with an eye upon the venerable rule of the Company which was, that if after the first 1500 copies had been struck off, still more copies were to be printed, the type must be set up anew. So far as I have been able to learn, however, the ancient rule was not being enforced with strictness at that time.

Information concerning the old customs accumulates steadily. The numeral figures placed haphazardly at the foot of pages in line with the signature marks, which I commented upon in 1922 but could not explain (see page 155, supra), had their use accounted for before Part I was a month old. I have manipulated them extensively since then, but have not been able to persuade them to avow what was the first edition of the Dunciad of 1728, the duodecimo or the octavo. Various bits of information adding to our knowledge of the ways of eighteenth century booksellers and printers will be found among the notes in the pages that follow; as examples, see pp. 281–82, 286–87, 297, 338, 344, 358, 360–61, 362, 363 and 399, 364, 368–69, 382–83, 384 ff., 396–97, 431, 463–64, 485, 499, 524, 535, 542–43, 550–51, and 576–77.

Further examination and reëxamination of the typography in a group of four books described in Part I leads me to decide that the sequence of the books numbered 336–340 should be altered; see the notes on the small folio Works, II, 1735, Book No. 370.

IX

To meet or stimulate a demand, a publisher could determine upon a new edition, a reprint, a reimpression, or a reissue of his book. The last three terms are sufficiently self-explanatory. The operations might be simple or they might be compounded, in varying degrees of complexity.

The words edition, issue (without the re-), impression, and other technical terms have continued to be a subject of discussion since Part I of this bibliography was published. For example, there are the comments of Mr. H. C. Hutchins in his book on Robinson Crusoe and of the reviewer of his book in the London Times Literary Supplement (1925, p. 695). My own belief is that it will be more economical of effort for us to allow the word edition to continue on in its happy-go-lucky way than to seek to clip and curb it for scientific harness. Though we might succeed in redefining it for precise use among ourselves, the unprecise use of it among our fathers will leave it an elusive term. Issue and impression are more susceptible to definition, but they are not entirely simple. The various states of the various Dunciads may be submitted as a problem in deciding what constitutes an edition, impression, issue, and what-not. Thoms, using his word loosely, described Book Nos. 213 and 215 as two editions, his Nos. I and H; but Nos. 392, 393, and 394, with the same kinds and degrees of differences, he lumped together as his No. L; then Nos. 405 and 406 are his “edition” No. M, though they are only reissues of the sheets of his L “edition” with two new-printed leaves in place of two canceled leaves. Book Nos. 566, 567, 579, and 638 (Dunciads of 1742, 1743, and 1749–50) are a complication of reissued sheets, new-printed leaves, and such changes in text as involved genuine “editings.”

The word reimpression brings forward a matter upon which I am seeking enlightenment. To what extent was type “kept standing” in Pope’s time? And what was the method of procedure in using it? The use of the same setting of type for printing folio issues and quarto issues, as in the Works of 1717 and again of 1735, was not, I think, the same operation, i.e., was not an instance of printing from type “kept standing,” though analogous to it. Clear instances of the use of type “kept standing” are not numerous among the books I have had to examine, if indeed there be a single assured case of it. Some discussion occurs, infra, on pages 576–77, and among the notes under Book Nos. 458, 467, and 484–486. But now that the pages are printed off, I find that I have written with a greater degree of positiveness than I altogether feel on this point.

As a subdivision among reissues, the way the booksellers had of binding together remainder copies of several pamphlets to make what masqueraded as a new book, is a source of both difficulty and help. The notes on the Ladies Miscellany or, among the “Additions and Corrections,” on Court Poems. Part II or State Poems will illustrate the point in books over which Pope had no control; while among books with the making of which he was immediately concerned those numbered 370–372 and 514–515 may be examined. Another trouble-making custom which is to be watched against, and which, though I have not recognized an instance of it, may occur among Pope books, sprang from the bookseller's genuine effort to serve his customers; the nature of it is made clear by advertisements that appear frequently in the newspapers similar to this one of Bathurst: “The Additions will speedily be publish'd by themselves to compleat former Editions.” Such “Additions” bound up in a “former Edition” may well seem to give a variant issue difficult to account for.

X

In Part II, I have continued to designate books of certain formats as “octavos,” which in the straitest language are perhaps not properly to be so designated. In commenting upon Book No. 27, Dr. Case (Modern Philology, February, 1927) says the book is a “duodecimo,” since, first, its signatures run: A, in 8's; B, in 4's; C, in 6's, and, second, the chain-lines are horizontal; and he refers to an article by Mr. R. W. Chapman.<sup>8</sup> Here, again, as in other cases, usage 200 years ago as well as now was not entirely consistent; and my observation has been that if I cling to my dogma the practice of the other fellow bewrays me. “Pocket volume,” duodecimo, octavo, and small octavo were all terms in use in Pope's generation, and were more or less interchangeable. See, for example, Cooper's advertisement quoted on page 446 (Book No. 556) and compare the various editions of “the Author's Works” he refers to, which are all “small octavo” by signature marks; and then compare <sup>8</sup>The topic of the cutting and folding of sheets may be further pursued by reference to Typographia by John Johnson, 1824; by T. C. Hansard, 1825, pp. 505 ff.; and by T. F. Adams, 1837; to Wm. Savage, Dictionary of the Art of Printing, 1841, pp. 335 ff., 557 ff.; and to C. H. Timperley, Dictionary [or Encyclopaedia] of Printers and Printing, 1839 or 1842, pp. 22 ff. (second series).

---

the advertisement quoted at the bottom of page 449. The chain lines are not an infallible criterion; see the notes under Book Nos. 566, 567, and 579, taken as a group. An interesting phenomenon in the way of mixing things occurs in Book No. 397 (page 317).

I have spoken frequently, and glibly enough, too, of "half-sheets" and "quarter-sheets." If the reader will not contract definitions into too narrow a compass, the terms will serve practical needs quite well. The sizes of "sheets" varied (see page xxvi, supra), so much is certain; the dimensions of some "sizes," as put out by some manufacturers in modern times, can be learned (from, for example, C. T. Jacobi, The Printers' Vocabulary, London, 1888). But more, and more dependable, information about the customs of the earlier paper-makers is highly desirable. And did a printer ever divide a large sheet into three parts for printing off a small book?

Shortly after Part I had appeared, Mr. Thomas J. Wise issued the fourth volume of the Catalogue of the Ashley Library, which lists 116 books by Pope or attributed to him, with a description of each and in not a few cases lengthy annotations. Some of the opinions advanced in notes there are mistaken, I think. In the case of Sober Advice the discussion of the facts involved belongs within the present volume; see Book Nos. 356 and 489. Another instance, however, involves the resumption of a discussion begun in Part I; see pp. 578 ff.

The Index has been remade to include both Part I and Part II.<sup>9</sup> The entries in it are of three classes. First in importance are the titles of Pieces, which are printed in italics; each is followed by its Piece Number, by the Numbers of the books in which the piece is printed, and by the reference to volume and page of the piece in the Elwin-Courthope edition of Pope's Works; alternative titles of the piece are listed next; and occasionally a note of some other sort is added, if it promises to be helpful. In the second class are entries of the titles of books, in roman type, followed by the roll of Book Numbers; it happens frequently that a book title coincides with the title of a piece. Finally, such prominent words in the title of a piece or a book as are likely to assist a reader to find quickly the thing he is looking for, are entered alphabetically with a cross-reference. Not a few of Pope's pieces have undergone changes of name, and hence it is a decided convenience to be able to locate a piece by any one of its names. Since the Elwin-Courthope edition does not anywhere list pieces alphabetically, this Index will be found a handy and very great convenience in the use of the Works as well as the Bibliography.

In addition to books and articles in print, I owe many an obligation to personal conference and correspondence. Times innumerable Drs. Sherburn and Case have favored me. Mrs. Flora V. Livingston, of Harvard University, has been most kind and patient in answering my many enquiries and supplying me with valuable information. Dr. B. F. Kaye, of Northwestern University; Professor Trent, of Columbia; Professor A. C. Judson, of the University of Indiana, and Miss Cora Sanders, of Los Angeles, have in various ways helped to make my book a better one than it would have been without their help. To my colleague, Professor Killis Campbell, I acknowledge obligation for assistance in reading proof. And to Miss Lois Trice and my daughter Regina I present my handsomest thanks for help in preparing the index.

Noble help I have had from scholars in America. If, now, scholars in England would lend their assistance by publishing information not at present accessible in print, we might go another long step towards the bourn of completeness. It is quite certain that much can yet be added to the bibliography of Pope. The newspapers and weekly periodicals from 1735 to 1751 are still to be combed thoroughly. Another source of information is in the account-books of the old printers, if any be recoverable. The way was pointed long since by Notes and Queries, 1 S., XI, 377-78, in a transcript from Woodfall's account-book, wherein is information that is meaty, though none too abundant. Could some interested scholar in London but recover similar records by John Wright or Bettenham or William Bowyer, he would confer a boon upon his American cousins by printing the material substance of them. Information in the Gentleman's Magazine (XCIV, Part I, 512) drawn from a famous collection of autograph documents indicates another source of information. Occasionally a date written on a fly-leaf or title-page, after the custom of Thomason or Narcissus Luttrell, helps fix the month or even the day of publication; in the case of the Dunciad of 1728, it would be highly desirable to have recorded all such dates on copies of the earlier issues. I am sure I shall not be the only one to feel grateful to any who shall help to such increase of our knowledge.

ALEXANDER POPE
A BIBLIOGRAPHY

1735

Book Nos. 352–412

Piece Nos. 192–209

In this year Pope was forty-seven years old. He reached, and for some years kept, the highest plane of his life. With truth if not with modesty he might boast that men who were not afraid of God feared him. The year of 1735 was his most prolific in the publication of books,—sixty-eight in all, either new works or reprints, containing eighteen pieces published for the first time: an average of more than a book a week, and of more than one new piece for each three weeks for the year. In January there was the Epistle to Arbuthnot; in February the Characters of Women; in April the handsome quarto and folio Volume II of his collected Works; in May the Letters; and through the rest of the year re-issues and revisions.

The Epistle to Arbuthnot was the poet's apologia, his blasting conclusion to the warfare upon his enemies, the Dunces. (He did, it is true, make another attack—under the spell of Warburton's ill-advice—in the Dunciad of 1742–1743, but it was in a different spirit and in a more generalized manner.) In publishing the Epistle he sought no cloak of anonymity. Previously he had done so, partly through fear of consequences and partly, it would appear, because of a feeling that the inferior social status of his adversaries would derogate from his own dignity if he placed his name to his attacks. But when Lord Hervey and Lady Mary Wortley Montagu joined the ranks of his enemies, he could afford to accept battle with them openly.

The publication of the Letters was a mysterious matter in 1735, and is by no means entirely clear yet. So far back as 1726 the correspondence with Henry Cromwell had been published (see Book No. 177), without Pope's consent. In 1729 letters to Wycherley had been included in a volume (Book No. 223) that fell flat. The unsold copies had been bought in by Pope, and held (in the sheets) for future use. For a time there had been a prospect that the Wycherley letters with some additional ones would be offered again in 1733, but publication was postponed. Pope had wished the letters to be published, but had not deemed it advisable that he should himself appear responsible for publication, "P. T." and "R. S.", under the guise of whom he had corresponded with Edmund Curll, the bookseller (upon whom he had begun to practice horse-play tricks as early as 1716), offering to sell books of the Letters in printed sheets if Curll would agree to advertise and vend them. Pope's plan had presumably been to bring to pass just about what did happen. In the spring of 1735 Curll, manoeuvred into the position of a tool, published the Letters. Pope charged that the edition was surreptitious and faulty, and he could then claim with some show of grace that to protect his reputation he was forced (most unwillingly, of course) to publish an authoritative edition. To increase the grace of submission to an unpitying necessity, he postponed the publication of the "authorized" edition for two years (to 1737). The affair really makes a rather thrilling story, with its intrigue, its chicanery, a trial in the House of Lords, the newspaper warfare, and the rest of it. The details can be got best (though still incompletely) in C. W. Dilke's Papers of a Critic, I, 287 ff.; the account given by Elwin (E-C, I, xxvi ff.) is neither so clear nor so accurate.

Within the year Arbuthnot died; and Bolingbroke, losing influence with the leaders of the Opposition, withdrew to France for a time.

352. January 2 (London Evening Post).

An | Epistle | From | Mr. Pope, | To | Dr. Arbuthnot. |—|
 [4 lines Latin prose.—Tully.] |—|[Ornament]|—|

 Homer's Head in Fleetstreet, 1734.

L. P. folio.      Sig.: 2 leaves; B-F, in 2's.
 Pp.: 4 pp.; [1]-19; 30.

The date is supplied me by Professor Sherburn. The Daily Courant advertised the Epistle on January 3.

The ornament on the titlepage appears (from the same block, I think) in six places in the quarto Dunciad of 1729.

The pamphlet is ante-dated, reckoned by our calendar. Entry in the Stationers' Register is dated January 2, 173½, the copyright belonging to Lawton Gilliver.

A copy slightly trimmed measures 14 7/16 x 9 5/16 inches.

The first leaf is the title; the second, the Advertisement.

Ornamentation is slight. There are two scroll-work headpieces, pp. [iii] and [1]; two tailpieces, pp. [iv] and 20 (misnumbered 30); and one ornamented initial, p. [1].

The text begins on the third leaf, sig. B 1, p. [1].

Page 20 is misnumbered 30.

On page 20 (30) the tailpiece is the ornament that had been used on the titlepage of the separate Epistle IV of the Essay on Man (Book No. 331).

Lines 1-411, as numbered; actually there are 408 lines. Errors in line numbers are numerous. On the verso pages the line numbers are at the inside margin.

Footnotes occur on pp. 4, 8, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19.

Apparently there was no separate issue in quarto or small folio, probably because Gilliver had already planned to publish the Works, Volume II, q. v. A note in E-C, III, 246, implies (erroneously, I think) that more than one folio separate issue appeared. Line 60, the line to which the note is appended, reads in this pamphlet: "The Play'rs and I are, luckily, no friends." See, infra, the notes on the editions of the Works, II (Book Nos. 370, 388, 391).

An | Epistle | From | Mr. Pope, | To | Dr. Arbuthnot.|—;
 [4 lines Latin Prose.—Tully.] | — | [Ornament: cupids, flowers, etc.]|—|

London:|Printed by J. Wright, for Lawton Gilliver at
 Ho-|mer's Head in Fleetstreet, 1734.

8vo. (in half-sheets).      Sig.: A—C, in 4's; D, in 2's.
 Pp.: [1]—27; [28].

Lines 1—408, correctly numbered.

Line 60 reads as in the folio (Book No. 352).

The ornament on the titlepage had been used on the titlepage of each of the four Parts, or Epistles, of the octavo Essay on Man.

The headpiece on p. [5] had been used on p. [5] of the octavo Part I of the Essay on Man (Book No. 296); on p. 39 of Epistle III (Book No. 309); and on p. 61 of Epistle IV (Book No. 333).

The tailpiece on p. 27 had been used on p. [4] of Part I of the Essay (Book No. 296); and on p. 16 of the issue E (Book No. 299, a reprint of 296).

It looks reasonable to infer, then, that Wright, who printed the Arbuthnot, was also the printer of the Epistle IV, folio, and all the octavo Epistles of the Essay on Man.

On p. [28] there is an advertisement that is unusual in that it announces a book of other publishers (booksellers): "Speedily will be published . . . Liberty: A Poem. By our Countryman Mr. James Thomson . . . To be sold by A. Millar and Allan Ramsay, at their Shops in London and Edinburgh."

London: Printed. And, | Dublin Re-printed by George Faulkner, | Bookseller, in Essex-street, opposite to the Bridge,|MDCCXXXV.

Thick Paper Sm. 8vo. (in half-sheets).      Sig.: 4 leaves; B—C, in 4's.

Pp.: 4 pp.; [1]—20.

A page for page reprint of the London folio, with slight changes. Paragraphs are spaced apart; in the London folio they are not (except on pp. 6-7).

Notes not in the London edition appear on pp. 2, 3, 6, 7, 12, 15.

On p. 19 the long note made it necessary to carry over six lines of the poem to p. 20.

Lines are numbered 1-401; should be 1-408; the errors in the folio are sometimes corrected, sometimes reproduced.

ster.

8vo. (in half-sheets). Sig.: 4 leaves; B-C, in 4's.
Pp.: 3 pp.: [1]-10, each page number repeated; 1 p. [book list].

There is no date on the titlepage. It is inferred from the mention of the 8vo Epistle to Arbuthnot (Jan. 2 or later) in the list on the final page.

The price was 6d, as stated in the same list.

There are 24 pages in all. Latin and English are on opposite, like-numbered pages. The text is as in the first edition (Book No. 347, which may be designated Folio I; see the notes on Folio II, Book No. 356).

The use of two different ornaments (pp. [1] and 10) that had been used in the 8vo Epistle to Arbuthnot (pp. [3] and titlepage) makes it probable that J. Wright was the printer of this 8vo Sober Advice; and if he printed this, it follows probably but not certainly that he was the printer of the two folios also. Then it follows (?) that he was the "agency" through whom Pope sold Sober Advice to Boreman and the others (of Cull's statement). Apparently Wright acted similarly as a go-between for the Essay on Man when it was sold "for a year" to Wilford, and for the Letters when Cooper (or Dodsley) was persuaded to be publisher.

The price Pope received for the copyright from Boreman and others (see Book No. 347) was 60 guineas according to Currill (Lit. Cor., II [Book No. 386], p. 45 [first series], note).

Among the books listed on the final page are Epistle to Arbuthnot, 6d.; Essay on Man, IV Parts, 1s.; Use of Riches, 4d.; Imitations of the first and second Satires of the second Book of Horace, 4d. each; and the Dunciad, small Edition, 6d.

Note.—Besides the advertisement of the Dunciad here for sale at sixpence for the “small Edition,” there are others at about this time and earlier. What was meant must (?) have been the Dunciad of 1728. Normally one would infer that remainder copies of some one of the 12mo editions were being offered. But with recollection of the variants of the so-called Second Edition and Third Edition (Book Nos. 201–204) the question rises whether one or even two of those variants may not have been printed after 1730, even piratically printed at that. Gilliver, owner of the copyright of the Dunciad with prolegomena and notes, never offered an edition (1729–39) for less than three shillings, I think. In the Grub-street Journal he advertised in 1732 often and 1733 occasionally the 8vo Dunciad (i.e., of 1729), and in 1734 often the Dunciad in both 8vo and 4to (both of 1729); I cannot recall that he ever advertised a 12mo, or six-penny edition.

London: Printed for T. Boreman, at the Cock on Ludgate-Hill; and sold by the Booksellers of London and Westminster. [Price One Shilling.]

L. P. folio.      Sig.: 1 leaf; 2 leaves; B-E, in 2's; 1 leaf.

Pp.: 3 pp.; [1]-10; [11, blank]. But the numbers [1]-10 are each used twice.

The suggested date of January, 1735, for this pamphlet depends upon the supposition that part of the type used for Book No. 347 was kept standing and used for this impression.

The pamphlet consists of six sheets. Each sheet contains two water-marks, one in each half-sheet: in one half-sheet the watermark is a double circle larger than a silver dollar; in the other (conjugate) half-sheet the mark is a Greek phi (or like it) in which the circle is smaller than a silver dime. The same stock of paper was used for Book No. 347 and for this pamphlet.

The title-leaf and the last leaf are one sheet (call it sig. [F]), folded cover-wise about the other five sheets (sigs. [A], B, C, D, E).

Latin and English texts are on opposite (facing) pages.

The two folio editions of Sober Advice (Book No. 347 and this pamphlet) are so nearly alike that only minute inspection reveals differences. The same font of type and the same ornaments were used for the two impressions. For three sheets, sigs. [A], B, C, there were two settings of type. For the other sheets, sigs. D, E, [F], the same setting of type may have been used—apparently was used.

Some marks of distinction are:—

Sig. [A], p. [iii], in the expression “Your most Affectionate[And] Faithful Servant.”—The A of And falls under o of most, and the D of And under ff of Affectionate in Folio I (Book No. 347): but in Folio II the A of And falls almost under m of most (slightly to the left), and D of And beneath the open space after t of most.

Page 1, last line.—In Folio I the period falls under d of down: in Folio II, almost under w of down.

Sig. B, p. 2, English, line 6.—Folio I reads:

But not Sir H - - - - t, for he does the same but Folio II, omitting the, reads:

But not Sir H - - - - t, for he does same.

Page 2.—The signature mark B falls under Th in There in Folio I: in Folio II, under the second m of Heautontimorumenos.

Page 3.—The footnote dagger falls under k of maker's in Folio I: in Folio II, under the apostrophe of maker's.

Sig. C, p. 4, lines 8–9.—The i of is falls beneath the exclamation point in Folio I: in Folio II, well to the right.

Page 5, lines 1–2.—The period after Quality falls well to the right of e in he in Folio I: in Folio II, directly under the e.

Page 5, line 3.—The last word is amise in Folio I: in Folio II it is amise.

Page 6, Latin, note.—Bent. is printed at the end of the note in Folio I: in Folio II it is omitted.

Possibly type was also reset for sheet sig. D. On page 8, Latin, the catchword is an incorrect Nun in Folio I: in Folio II it is rightly Num, with a comma.

The text of Sober Advice appears in a third folio issue. When in 1738 Cooper reissued the piece under the title A Sermon against Adultery, he used unsold (“remainder”) sheets of this pamphlet (Folio II), merely substituting a new-printed title-leaf (i. e., half-sheet), as is manifested by the water-marks. See the discussion, infra, under the date May 26, 1738.

This volume contains nothing by Pope, but it is ostensibly a continuation of the Swift and Pope Miscellanies (Book Nos. 184, 185, 196, 267, and 284-287). The "Advertisement" (first leaf) claims that with the exception of the Drapier's Letters, Gulliver's Travels, Tatlers, No. 6, 20, and 230, and Swift's pieces in the four volumes of Miscellanies published by Motte and Gilliver, this volume contains everything in the Dublin edition of Swift's Works.

The Wrenn Library.

The date is supplied me by Professor Sherburn. Gilliver registered his copyright in February, 1735.

On the titlepage Fleetstreet is misspelled Flettstreet.

This copy of Variant a does not contain a sheet (with a signature mark of B and consisting of an "Advertisement" leaf and a final book-list leaf,—see Var. b, next infra) which is folded coverwise about sigs. B-D. In a copy described in the Catalogue of the Ashley Library the sheet of two leaves is present. Whether it was added subsequent to the day of publication is not clear.

For the rest the two variants are from the same setting of type, so far as I have been able to determine.

Note.—I may be allowed to remind the reader that I have said (Part I, page xxix, supra) that such a mistake as Flettstreet is not a criterion by which priority in date may be assigned positively to one variant or the other.

L. P. folio. Sig.: 2 leaves; B, 1 leaf; B-D, in 2's; 1 leaf.

Pp.: [1-4]; 2 pp.; [5]-16; [17, advertisement]; [18, blank].

Lines 1-194; no line is numbered.

The first Sig. B1, the third leaf contains Pope's Advertisement, in nine lines of print. The sheet was added to the book apparently as an after-thought. Its other half is the last leaf, without signature or page-number, upon which is printed Gilliver's announcement that the Works, Vol. II, will speedily be published; see the note under Book No. 370.

The tailpiece, p. 16, was used on three different pages of the quarto Dunciad of 1729.

Apparently there was no quarto or small folio issue.

(w)—[1]—18; [1]—201; [202, Errata].

The date is taken from Gilliver's advertisement in the Grub-street Journal, No. 278, April 24, in which he says (or so I interpret his words) that this small folio Works had been "already published." The advertisement is quoted infra among the notes on the 4to. This advertisement is also quoted by Aitken in his Notes ("Gaa"), but the date of the Journal is erroneously given as April 23. (Straus's Dodsley, p. 317, gives the date of publication of the Works as May 17.)

In the vignette on the titlepage, the portrait of Pope, facing to the reader's right, is a bust on a shield, which is supported by two babes. The copperplate was engraved by P. Fourdrinier after W. Kent.

Earlier it had been used as a tailpiece in the 1734 edition of the Essay on Man, 4to (Book No. 336—and (?) in the folio also); since when it had been retouched and had its edges trimmed.

In group s, the Essay on Man has a titlepage in full, dated 1734.

The group is a "remainder" copy of the small folio issued in May, 1734 (Book No. 340), as is proved by two facts. First, this small folio Essay in the Works is from the same setting of type that was used for the quarto Essay of 1734 (Book No. 336). And second, both this small folio Essay and the quarto Essay (Book Nos. 336 and 340) print the fourth Epistle from the setting of type used for the separate folio (Book No. 331), which had evidently been held over for the purpose, though the decorative portions, signature marks, and page numbers had to be changed. In the separate folio of Epistle IV (Book No. 331—the same is true for the octavo, Book No. 333) a couplet is missing (lines 382–383, as there numbered, or in E–C, 387–388), though the line-numbering shows that a couplet has been omitted; in the small folio Essay (Book No. 340) the same couplet is missing; in the quarto (Book No. 336) the couplet has been supplied from new-set type though the rest of the type was left unaltered. Hence it looks as if Book No. 340 was printed before Book No. 336; consequently the sequence in Part I of this Bibliography should be so changed; and the Book No. 340 or 339 should be reckoned the first edition of the Essay on Man in four epistles as a single poem.

The oddity in group s of having K1 alone, without its companion leaf, is the result of a blunder in the composing room. Sig. L1 repeats the contents of K2; so one leaf had to be discarded. In some copies sig. K2 is retained, in others L1. I have one copy in which the binder negligently allowed both leaves to remain.

In group t, in the Epistle to Arbuthnot, line 60 reads:

Cibber and I are, luckily, no friends.

See the note under Book No. 352. In the Epistle to a Lady this small folio does not print the couplet which is found in the text of the quarto Works II, after line 88. In this group the whole of sheet C is a new-printed substitute for an original (canceled) to revise: from Lesbia to Sappho in line 123 (E–C, line 121); from But 'twas to No, 'twas in in line 149; etc.

In group u, the First Satire of the Second Book (sigs. A–E1) is remainder sheets (without the title-leaf) of the separate small folio edition of 1734. The Second Satire of the Second Book is from a new setting of type throughout; a footnote not in the earlier edition is appended to line 26. The Second Satire of Dr. John Donne is here printed for the first time. The Fourth Satire had been published in 1733 as The Impertinent (Book No. 317).

In group v, there is no epitaph on Newton. If it was printed, it was on the recto of a succeeding leaf (a supposititious sig. D1). See the note on the quarto Works, infra. For the folio such a leaf may have been printed and canceled, or it may never have been printed.

In group w, p. 18, of the first series, is misnumbered 81.

For the volume as a whole, the irregularities in signatures and pagination are the result in whole or in part of two facts. In the first place, some of the sheets were remainders, some were new printed for this volume. The second fact appears in the last sentence of the advance announcement Gilliver had printed on the final leaf of the folio Characters of Women (Book No. 361), which runs: "Speedily will be published, beautifully printed in quarto and folio, of the same sizes with Mr. Pope's Homer &c. The Works of Mr. Alexander Pope, Vol. II. which compleats all of his works, containing I. The Essay on Man, or the first Book of Ethick Epistles, to H. St. John, L. Bolingbroke. II. Epistles to several Persons, Of the Knowledge and Characters of Men, to the Lord Viscount Cobham. Of the Characters of Women, to a Lady. Of the Use of Riches, to the Lord Bathurst. Of False Taste, to the Earl of Burlington. Of Himself and his Writings, to Dr. Arbuthnot, with some other Epistles. Satires of Horace, Imitated. Satires of Dr. Donne, Versified. III. The Dunciad, with Notes and Prolegomena: and some additional Pieces. The whole to be had together, or parts singly to compleat former sets."

In the first newspaper advertisements the book was said to be printed for three booksellers, Lawton Gilliver, J. Brindley, and R. Dodsley. Brindley (with Boreman and still other booksellers) held the copyright in the Sober Advice, which, however, is not included in this volume. This is the first time Dodsley appears among Pope's publishers. Pope's patronage of Dodsley is a pleasant story, which is well known. By May 13 advertisements were carrying the names of these booksellers and also J. J. and P. Knapton, J. and J. Brotherton, and W. Meadows.

That this Volume II was prepared under the editorial supervision of Jonathan Richardson the Younger is a not unwarranted inference, I think,—a tentative one at least. Two facts are apposite. In Richardsoniana, I, 262 (London, 1776), Richardson says: "As for his Essay on Man, as I was witness to the whole conduct of it in writing, and actually have his [Pope's] original MSS. for it, from the first scratches of the four books, to the several finished copies (of his own neat and elegant writing these last) all which, with the MS. of his Essay on Criticism, and several of his other works, he gave me himself, for the pains I took in collating the whole with the printed editions, at his request, on my having proposed to him the 'making an edition of his works in the manner of Boileau's'; . . ." The second fact is that this Volume II contains (the first time in print) five pages of variant readings of the Essay on Man and of Epistles I, II, III, IV, and VII. If Richardson was the editor, he as well as or rather than Pope was responsible for the preparation of the notes.

The arrangement of the Dunciad was altered; the notes, instead of being spread at the foot of pages, were all gathered at the back of the volume. No title (or bastard title) for the Dunciad was included, but a half-title was. It was made anew for this volume, and contained a line, "Written in the Year 1727," which was sufficiently near the truth to be allowed to pass, but which was to be a source of error in subsequent editions when taken in conjunction with a note first printed in this edition. This new note (page 81 in this folio edition) was given the initial position among the notes on Book the First. Its first four sentences read: "This Poem was writ in 1727. In the next year an imperfect Edition was published at Dublin, and re-printed at London in 12°. Another at Dublin, and another at London in 8°, and three others in 12° in the same year. But there was no perfect Edition before that of London in 4° 172<sup>3/4</sup>, which . . ." (See infra, Works, Vol. IV, 1736, Book No. 431.)

Note.—This is the earliest "bibliography" of the Dunciad of 1728. Let it be noted that the statement (whether by Pope or Richardson or whomsoever) is that the Dunciad was first published in Dublin, not printed. If Pope chose to do with a copy of the Dunciad as he did with a copy of the Letters of 1741 (see infra), that is, send it (in printed form) to a bookseller in Dublin prior to publication in London, then the assertion would fall inside the limit of fact, however misleading in a large way. Dilke says (Papers of a Critic, I, 323) that Croker long maintained, and was never quite satisfied to the contrary, that the Dunciad, as professed, was first published in Dublin. There is a possibility that Croker was right, on this hypothetical and quibbling interpretation of the word published. The note of 1735 was an amplification of a chapter heading on p. 87 of the 1729 quarto: "Preface prefix'd to the five imperfect Editions of the Dunciad, printed at Dublin and London, in Octavo & Duod."

Group w.—[1, half-title to Dunciad]—19; [20, blank]; [1]—219; [220, Errata].

The date is taken from the Grub-street Journal advertisement, which is quoted a few lines infra.

The vignette portrait on the titlepage is from the copperplate already used in the small folio Works. Besides this portrait there are numerous elaborate head and tail-pieces by P. Fourdrinier after W. Kent. Only a few of these had been used for the small folio.

In group s, the Essay on Man has a half-title but no titlepage of its own. It is not remainder sheets of the quarto Essay of 1734 (Book No. 336), but is from type entirely reset, and with revisions in the text. Unlike the Essay in the small folio Works, the quarto was new-printed throughout for this volume. Lines 170–173 of Epistle III at the bottom of p. 48 are repeated at the top of p. 49.

In group t, there are three leaves bearing the sig. mark K2. The first K2 and the "1 leaf" (following after sig. A, in 2's) are, I think, a half-sheet. For this half-sheet, type was reset, as compared with the folio (supra); and a Thick Paper copy (to be described under the year 1739) shows a third setting of type. In this volume the THE of the half-title is noticeably too far to the right: in the folio and T. P. quarto it is in mid-page. The "1 leaf" begins the text of the Epistle to Cobham: in the folio the lines are numbered; in the quartos no line is numbered (but the next page takes up the numbering with line 30 and continues). In this volume the head-piece on the "1 leaf" (p. [47]) contains a central medallion on which are the words "Templa quam dilecta": in the T. P. quarto, another medallion containing three Greek words.—The sig. A half-sheet contains a water-mark in this volume, though no other sheet (or leaf) near it contains a water-mark; presumably it was printed at a different time. The second sig. K2 (middle of group t) is a single leaf. There is only one sheet with a sig. mark B; its third leaf is an insert, with the page numbers printed 15, 16 (error for 13, 14). Only one leaf was reprinted for the quarto (instead of two leaves as in the folio); hence line 149 (E-C, line 147) retains an early reading But 'twas, revised in the folio to No 'twas. Line 102 has a misprint and equal (for an equal) which is, of course, not in the folio. The final leaf, sig. [K4], though typographically a part of group t, belongs in matter in group u, being the half-title to the Satires.

In group u, page 32 (sig. D) is misnumbered as 24. For the First Satire of the Second Book the type was new-set for this volume (see note on the small folio Works, supra); line 110 reads "Bare the mean heart" instead of "Bear." For the Second Satire of the Second Book the same setting of type was used for both the small folio Works and the quarto. Remainder sheets of Book No. 341 were not used for this volume, but see the note on the 4to Works under 1739. The two satires of Donne are from the setting of type used for the small folio Works, with changes of only page numbers and signature marks.

Note.—Observe what has been said about Book No. 315. I think it probable that Gilliver never had printed a separate folio edition of the Second Satire; what he did was to break in two copies of the book published July 4 (Book No. 313), and sell the Second Satire portion as a separate pamphlet, though it had only a half-title, no title-leaf. If he did, more copies of the First Satire were left as remainders on his hands, to be used in making up the Works volume, than of the Second Satire sold in this fashion to purchasers of the books numbered 288-293; and consequently the Second Satire had to be new-printed for the Works.

In group v, there is no sig. B4, pp. 15-16. Such a leaf was printed apparently, but canceled before publication. See a communication from C. Davis Sherborn in the London Athenaeum, No. 4146, April 13, 1907, p. 442. Page 15 contained the epitaph on Atterbury, numbered XII (in E-C, IV, 390, it is No. XIII). Presumably p. 16 was blank.

In group w, pp. 154-155 are misnumbered 160-161.

As between the quarto and the small folio Works, II, there were two settings of type for all or most of the first half of the book. I have indicated only some, not all, of the differences. Changes of text occur, noticeably in the Epistle to a Lady and the Epistle to Bathurst. The text of the quarto is the later (revised) version.

The quarto is like the folio in contents, except that it contains one more piece, a reprint of epitaph No. XI, on Newton, in group v, sig. B3, p. 14.

Gilliver's advertisement in No. 278 of the Grub-street Journal, Saturday, April 24, 1735, several times alluded to supra, is as follows:

"This Day is published, in large Quarto, with Copper Plates, design'd by Mr. Kent, The Works of Alexander Pope, Esq; Vol. II. Consisting of all he hath hitherto written, and now first collected together.

"Printed for Lawton Gilliver at Homer's-head in Fleet-street, John Brindley at the King's-arms New Bond-street, and sold by Robert Dodsley, Author of the Top-shop at Tulley's Head in Pall-mall. Where may be had any part separate of the Folio already publish'd

"Whereas it hath been the practice of Booksellers to print Editions only in a large Size, which consequently were only to be had at a high price, no greater Number of this Volume is printed in large Folio and Quarto with expensive Ornaments, than to answer the like Impressions of the first Volume of his Works, and of the Iliad and Odysseys (so printed and sold off many Years since) at the same price of one Guinea: there is also published with it an Edition in a smaller Folio, at 12s. and to the End, that whoever has the large Editions in 4to. of the Essay on Man, or Satyres of Horace, may not be obliged to buy them again, they may, on sending them to the abovesaid Booksellers, have all the parts of this Book at 15s.

"And whereas Bernard Lintot having the property of the former Volume of Poems, would never be induced to publish them compleat, but only a part of them, to which he tack'd and impos'd on the Buyer a whole additional Volume of other Men's Poems. This present Volume will with all convenient Speed be published in Twelves at 5s. that the Buyer may have it at whatever price he prefers, and be enabled to render compleat any Sett he already has, even that imperfect one printed by Lintot."

In his second paragraph Gilliver's expression "any part separate of the Folio already publish'd" may refer to the separate folio editions of the various poems, but I take "Folio" to mean here the folio Works, II, of 1735.

In the fourth paragraph the "part of them . . . additional Volume of other Men's Poems" refers to the various editions of Lintot's Miscellany, in two volumes, 1720, 1722, 1726–27, and 1732, q. v. In 1736, Gilliver, Lintot, and Cooper combined to publish an edition of Pope's Works (including the Letters) in six volumes in small octavo.

A lengthy "Postscript" appears as the final leaves of both the folio and the quarto Works, in which the assertion is made: . . . "we have here collected all the Variations of the separate Impressions, and the Notes which have been annexed to them, with the addition of a few more." . . . Some of the variations quoted are of bibliographical interest. I condense the information supplied.

Essay on Man, Epistle I.—"Edit. I" and "Ed. 2" are mentioned. Under "Edit. I," both a folio and a quarto are named. Reference is to the editions I have numbered A, B, F, G, H; but no indication is given that points out which of these was the earliest edition. "Ed. 2" means the edition designated I in my list, as is shown by two textual quotations.

Essay, Epistle II.—Editions 1, 2, 4, 5 are mentioned. I give portions of the quotation.

Line 2.—The only Science of . . . Edit. 1.

The proper Study . . . Ed. 2.

Line 21.—Instruct the Planets in what Orbs to run, . . . Ed. 1.

Show by what Rules the wandering Planets stray, . . .
Ed. 4, 5.

Line 35.—Could he, who taught each Planet where to roll, . . . Ed. 1.
Could he whose Laws the whirling Comet bind, . . . Ed. 4.

Here Ed. 1=separate folio issue (any one of three varieties, Book Nos. 300, 311, 313).

Ed. 2=Essay on Man (4 parts together), 1734, sm. fol., L. P. fol., 4to (340, 339, 336).

Ed. 3=Works, II, sm. fol. (Book No. 370) but not the 4to.

Ed. 4=Works, II, 4to (372).

Ed. 5=(?) Works, II; 8vo, 1735 (Book No. 388).

Apparently the Postscript has interchanged the places of the two words Laws and Rules in lines 22 and 36; if the Postscript is precisely accurate, then I do not know what issues are referred to as Edd. 4, 5.

Essay, Epistle III.—Editions 1, 2, 4, 5 are mentioned.

Line 1.—Learn Dulness, learn . . . Ed. 1.

Here then we rest . . . Ed. 4, 5.

Line 9.—See lifeless Matter moving to one End. . . . Ed. 1.

See plastic Nature working to this End. . . . Ed. 2.

Line 198.—Who for those Arts they learn'd of Brutes before,
As Kings shall crown them, or as Gods adore.—Ed. 1.

And for those Arts mere Instinct could afford,
Be crown'd as Monarchs, or as Gods ador'd.—Ed. 5.

Here Ed. 1=separate folio (either of two issues, Book Nos. 308, 315).

Ed. 2=Essay, all four parts, 1734 (any one of the issues, Book Nos. 336–340).

[Ed. 3=Small folio Works, II, 1735(?)]

Ed. 4=Quarto Works, II, 1735.

Ed. 5=(?) Small octavo Works, II, 1735.

Essay, Epistle IV.—Ed. 1 and “last edition” are mentioned

Line 110.—God sends not Ill, 'tis Nature lets it fall,

Or Change escape, and Man improves it all.—Ed. 1.

God sends not Ill: if rightly understood,
Or partial Ill is universal Good,
Or Change admits, or Nature lets it fall, Short, and but rare, till Man improv'd it all.—“Thus in the last Edition.”

Line 140.—Give each a System, all must be a Strife,

What different Systems for a Man and Wife?—“Omitted in the last Edition.”

Here Ed. 1=Separate folio (331) or Essay (336–340) or sm. fol. Works (370).

“Last Edition=Quarto Works, II, 1735 (Book No. 372).

Of the Knowledge . . . Men, To . . . Cobham.

Line 146.—“Triumphant Leaders, &c. These four Verses having been misconstrued, contrary to the Author’s meaning, they are suppressed in as many Copies as he cou’d recall.”

Is any copy known in which the leaf containing these four lines has been canceled? I have not been able to discover one, nor was Dilke (cf. Papers of a Critic, I, 278–279). The leaf is in group t, sig. D1, pp. 13–14, in the sm. folio; and sig. G4, pp. 55–56 in the 4to.

Of the Characters of Women. Ed. 1 and “last Edit.” are mentioned. Line 103 [109].—In sev’ral Men we several Passions find;—Ed. 1.

In Men, we various ruling Passions find;—“In the last Edit.”

Here “last Edit.” cannot mean either the small folio Works or the 4to Works, both of which have the text of “Ed. 1.” The text of the “last Edit.” is found in the small 8vo Works, II, 1735 (Book No. 388) and in the T. Johnson Ethic Epistles (Book No. 391). For dates and the state of the text, see the notes on these two books, infra.

As late as August 2 almost half “the impression” (both quarto and folio editions presumably) remained still unsold; see the note under Book No. 391.

L. P. folio.      Sig.: B-Z, Aa-Zz, Aaa-Kkk, in 2’s.

Pp.: [1]–17; 81 [for 18]; [1]–201; [202, Errata].

This is edition No. K2 of Col. Grant’s additions (E–C, IV, 311) to the Thoms bibliography of the Dunciad.

I have two copies, both trimmed; the larger measures  $14\frac{12}{16}\times 9\frac{4}{16}$  inches.

The book is sheets of the Dunciad and the Postscript of the Large Paper folio Works, II, of 1735, bound separately. A fair number of copies would seem to have been so bound, but too few to justify the expense of printing a separate title-leaf.

I know of no similar separate binding of the sheets of the small folio or 4to Duneiad of the Works of 1735. Gilliver was still advertising the 4to Duneiad of 1729 at this time. See, however, the advertisement quoted in the notes to Book No. 372.

Some additions to the matter of the editions of 1729, especially in the notes and the list of Verses . . . Advertisements "After the Duneiad, 1728," were printed in this folio; and also, of course, in the Works, II, of 1735, small folio, L. P. folio, and 4to, since all were printed from the same setting of type.

8vo (in sheets and half-sheets).

Two volumes bound in one.

Curll is authority for the date; see, also, E-C, VI, 419–448, esp. 443.

There is no titlepage, and never was any.

Only fifty copies were placed on sale.

The sheets were printed to be arranged (bound) in two volumes (as is shown by a comparison with variants and kindred editions, to be described infra). But all surviving copies of the earlier London editions, so far as I have succeeded in tracing them, are found with the two volumes bound as one.

[Vol. I] includes four sets of letters: to Wycherley; Walsh; H. C.; and Several Ladies.

[Vol. II] includes three sets of letters: to Trumbull, Steele, Addison, Pope; Jervas, Digby, Blount; and Gay.

Signatures are in four groups:—

Group s. [Vol. I] Wycherley—Ladies.—*B, in 2's; B, in 4's; *C, in 2's; C-X, in 4's; Y, 3 leaves [Y1 was excised]; Z, Aa-Dd, in 4's.

Group t. [Vol. II] Trumbull—Pope.—A-O, in 4's; P, 1 leaf.

Group u. [Vol. II, cont.] Jervas, Digby, Blount.—P-T, in 8's; with 1 leaf [Digby half-title, without mark of signature or pagination] inserted between sigs. Q1 and Q2.

Group v. [Vol. II, cont.] Gay.—Q-X, in 4's; Y, in 2's.

Pages are likewise in four groups:—

Group s. [Vol. I] Wycherley—Ladies.—1-4; 3-14; 11-52; [53, Walsh half-title]—66; 65-71; [72, blank]; [73, H. C. half-title]—159; [160, blank]; 2 pp. ? [1 leaf, Y1, was excised, probably Ladies half-title]; 163-208.

Group t. [Vol. II] Trumbull—Pope.—[1, Trumbull half-title]—114.

Group u. [Vol. II, cont.] Jervas, Digby, Blount.—115-132; 2 pp. [Digby half-title leaf]; 133-161; [162, blank]; [163, Blount half-title]—194.

Group v. [Vol. II, cont.] Gay.—[115, Gay half-title]—164; 2 pp. [a blank leaf, Y2].

By actual count, there are in Vol. I: 26 half-sheets (less one leaf, sig. Y1, excised) and 2 quarter-sheets, equal to 13½ sheets, or 214 pages; and in Vol. II: 5 sheets, 20 half-sheets, 1 quarter sheet, and 2 leaves, equal to 15½ sheets, or 248 pages (of which the last two are blank.)

My copy is in contemporary binding; but the binder was uncertain of the intended sequence of the sheets; he arranged the sheets of Vol. II correctly, but he inserted Vol. I (i. e., group s) bodily into the middle of Vol. II between sigs. R8 and S1 of group u.

In addition to the names in the half-titles and dropped heading, there are scattered in the book the names of six other writers of letters: Hon. J. C. (group t, pp. 21-23), Berkeley (t, 61-63; t, 105; u, 125-128), Jervas (t, 80-81; u, 115-122), Parnell (t, 103-104), Arbuthnot (t, 107; v, 162-164), and Craggs (u, 123-124).

Some distinguishing marks of this edition are:

The absence of titlepage and preface.

Oddities in signatures and pagination, particularly in Vol. I, group s, the starred sigs. *B and *C; and in Vol. II, the insertion of group u (five whole-sheet, sigs. P, Q, R, S, T, of eight leaves each) between group t (in half-sheets) and group v (in half-sheets), —i. e., at one time Vol. II consisted of only groups t and v, but before publication group u was thrust in.

Group s, p. 15.—A footnote: . . . “in the present Edition of the Posthumous Works of Mr. Wycherley.”

Group s, p. 22, catchword.—I thank for I thank. Dilke says (Papers of a Critic, I, 333) the misprint in his copy is: I thanhk (but he is mistaken, is he not?).

Group t, p. 59, bottom.—The text concludes: . . . the con-; the catch-word is con-; but the first word on p. 60 is: constant . . .

Group u, p. 127, lines 21–22.—. . . Hap-diness . . . for Hap-piness, the second p being inverted.

Group u.—The presence here of the sheet sig. P., pp. 115–130, and sig. Q1, pp. 131–132, on which are printed three letters from Jervas to Pope, one from Craggs to Pope, one from Berkeley to Pope, and one from Pope to -----. See, infra, Curll’s comment on these letters.

Group u.—The absence here of sig. P2, the other half of the quarter-sheet marked P (the first sig. P). Concerning this quarter-sheet (which is quite distinct from the 8-leaf whole sheet sig. P following it) see the notes infra under Book No. 375.

Group v. [Vol. II] Gay.—Q—U, in 4's. [Remainder of v was omitted.]

Pages are likewise in four groups:—

Group r. General title group.—12 pp. [No page is numbered.]

Group s. [Vol. I] Wycherley-Ladies.—1-4; 3-14; 11-52; [53. Walsh half-title]—66; 65-71; [72, blank]; [73, H. C. half-title]—159; [160, blank]; 2 pp. ? [1 leaf, Y1, was excised, stub left showing, probably Ladies half-title]; 163-208.

Group t. [Vol. II] Trumbull-Pope.—[1, Trumbull, Steele, Addison, Pope half-title]—115; [116, blank].

[Group u was omitted.]

Group v. [Vol. II] Gay.—[115, Gay half-title]—154. [Pp. 155-164+2 (a blank leaf) pp. were omitted.]

Note.—In my copy, group v is bound in between group s and group t. The binder was probably misled by two facts: p. 154, the last page of group v, does not look like the last page in a book; and p. 115 of group t is marked Finis, with the ornament used on the titlepage repeated here for a tail-piece.

This edition consisted of only 190 copies. Curril asserted as much repeatedly, both in his books and in newspaper advertisements. A sample statement occurs on p. 18 of what he called the "Initial Correspondence" in the second volume (8vo) of his Literary Correspondence (Book No. 386): [On May 12, at about 1:30 p. m.] . . . "two Porters brought to the Tavern five Bundles of Books upon a Horse, which R. S. told me came by Water. He ordered the Porters to carry them to my House and my Wife took them in. They contained but 38 Books in each bundle making in the 5 Bundles 190 Books (all wanting the Letters to Mess. Jarves, Digby, Blount and Dr Arbuthnot's Letter). But he said they contained 50 in each Bundle, which with 50 I had before (without Titles or Prefaces,) made 300, and gave me the following Receipts." Immediately after, the 190 books were seized by a messenger from the House of Lords and held in custody till sometime Thursday, May 15, when they were restored to Curril.

The name "Horse-load lot" was given to this edition by Dilke.

The Morning edition and the Afternoon edition (or Horse-load lot) are the same thing, i. e., sheets from one setting-up of type, with four exceptions: the Horseload lot contains two additions and two subtractions. The two additions are (a) the title and preface (six leaves); and (b) the other half of sig. P (originally a quarter-sheet) at the end of group t. The two subtractions are (a) the letters to Jervas, Digby, and Blount, i. e., group u entire; and (b) Dr. Arbuthnot's letter, a letter to Gay, and one to the Earl of Burlington, i. e., pp. 155-164, sigs. X, in 4's, and Y, in 2's, at the end of group v.

Two ornaments, the one used on the titlepage and repeated on page 115 of group t and the one on page [xii] of group r, were both used in both of the Gilliver octavo Dunciads of 1729. That J. Wright was the printer of the quarto and Gilliver Dunciads of 1729, of Wycherley's Posthumous Works of 1729, and of the Roberts and Booksellers editions of the Letters of 1735 is probable, but is not yet certainly proved.

In group r, the Errata leaf is sig. [a2] folded around sig. A. The title is sig. A1; I can manipulate my copy enough to be sure that it and sig. A4 are a single piece of paper.

J. Roberts the nominal (titlepage, titular) publisher was the nominal publisher of the Posthumous Works of Wycherley in 1729 (Book No. 223). Remainder sheets of the 1729 Wycherley book constitute a portion of this book and of the Morning edition and of the first and second "Booksellers" editions (cf. infra).

Concerning the preface, see the notes on the Booksellers edition (Book No. 378).

Group t.—It was Dilke's opinion that the final leaf was separately printed and inserted specifically to further Pope's joke upon Curnil. It is, however, the other half of P1. Instead of saying it was added to this book, the more accurate statement would be to say it was excised from the Morning edition. My belief is that this P quarter-sheet was originally intended to be the conclusion of the Letters; but subsequently the Gay letters (group v) were printed and affixed (note the sig. marks of group v); and then subsequently again, probably at a long interval, the Jervas, Digby, Blount letters (group u) were printed, with sig. marks fitted to insert between group t and group v (note the sig. marks, and note that these are the only letters printed on whole sheets, all the rest of the book being half-sheets).

blank];|161–176; 169–176;|185–316.

As "copy" for this edition, Curll used the sheets of the Morning edition and the Preface from the Afternoon edition. He tore up a book and distributed portions among several printing-shops, for the sake of speed. Evidences of such procedure are: (a) blank spaces that occur in the volume; and (b) an entry in the ledger of Woodfall the printer (quoted in Notes and Queries, 1 S., XI, 420): "Mr Edmund Curll, Dr. May 24, 1735. Printing 4 sheets of Letters to Mr. Wycherley, &c., demy English 8vo. No. 1000."

The letters are rearranged in eight sets, marked off by dropped-headings:—Trumbull, Steele, Addison, Pope [and others], pp. 1–128; Wycherley, pp. 1–57; Walsh, pp. 58–75; Ladies, pp. 76–120; Digby, pp. 121–149; Blount, pp. 150–176, 169–176 [numbers repeated]; Gay [and others], pp. 185–232; H. C., pp. 233–316.

This edition reproduces the text of the Morning edition with fidelity and (with allowance made for the shifts noted above) for the most part page for page and line for line. In three or four instances Curll (or a compositor) has altered a footnote.

This is Dilke's No. E; Leffert's No. 5.

Group s. [Vol. I] Wycherley-Ladies.—1–4; 3–14; 11–52; [53, Walsh half-title]–66; 65–71; [72, blank]; [73, H. C. half-title]–159; [160, blank]; [2 pp. excised, the stub remaining, probably Ladies half-title]; 163–208.

Group t. [Vol. II] Trumbull-Pope.—[1, Trumbull half-title]–114.

Group u. [Vol. II] Jervas, Digby, Blount.—115–132; 2 pp. [Digby half-title]; 133–161; [162, blank]; [163, Blount half-title]–194.

Group v. [Vol. II] Gay.—[115, Gay half-title]–164.

In group r the six leaves are: title, 1 leaf; To The Reader, 4 leaves; Errata, 1 leaf; and a stub. The last four leaves are the same sheets as those supplied to Curll for the Afternoon edition preface. What happened was this: the first two leaves of the group, printed for the Afternoon edition, i. e., sigs. A1 and A2, were thrown away, and new-printed leaves substituted; actually the two new-printed leaves are a single piece of paper, a quarter-sheet. The reason for new-printing the title was to place another publisher's name in the imprint; and the reason for new-printing the first page of the preface was to insert an additional paragraph, revising the To The Reader. After the substitution the sigs. A3 and A4 were left as two loose leaves. In my copy sig. A3 was pasted to the new quarter-sheet, with no stub left to show; and the stub of sig. A4 was folded about the two leaves of the sig. a quarter-sheet. It is likely some copies extant show two stubs in this group r.

The rest of the book is made up of sheets precisely the same (i. e., from the same setting of type) as the Morning edition.

In group s, Wycherley-Ladies, the catchword on p. 22 is misprinted thahk for thank.

In group u, Jervas-Blount, sig. P. 7, p. 127, lines 21–22, the word is misprinted Hap|diness for Hap|piness.

In other distinguishing marks this Booksellers edition agrees with the Morning edition.

In group v, a final blank leaf (sig. Y2) was discarded by the binder.

As to date, this edition was the fourth in the series of editions in 1735. It was mistakenly considered the first by Dilke (Papers of a Critic, I, 332, where it is numbered A) and by Elwin (E-C, VI, iv). Quotation of two advertisements from the Daily Journal will show conclusively, I think, that this edition followed after Curll's Literary Correspondence edition:

"Next Week will be Published, Letters of Mr. Pope and several Eminent Hands, Vol. I. and II. from the Year 1705 to 1734. Printed and sold by the Booksellers of London and Westminster. N. B. This Edition consists of the Letters simply, wholly free from the Follies and Impertinence of Edmund Curll's Edition." [This last sentence is applicable only to the Literary Correspondence edition, not to the Morning edition or the Afternoon edition.] (—Daily Journal, No. 4480, Saturday, May 24, 1735. p. 1, col. 3.) See also the P. T. advertisement quoted from the Daily Journal, No. 4480, supra, Book No. 377.

"This Day at Noon will be published, Letters of Mr. Pope and several Eminent Hands, Vol. I. and II. from the Year 1705 to 1734. Printed and sold by the Booksellers of London and Westminster; and to be had of T. Cooper at the Globe in Pater-noster Row. We hope it is sufficient to prefer this Edition, to say it is NOT printed for Edmund Curll, and it is entirely free from his Notes and Impertinencies; it contains, First, The Preface, which Curll, with good Reason suppressed, as shewing by what Conduct, both to Mr. Pope, and Mr. Cromwell, he obtained these Letters. Secondly, it hath all those Letters, which were also omitted in the Books he first published, and show'd to the Lords; it is in every respect more perfect than any other Edition can be, unless the Author himself be pleased to give us one: As for Mr. Curll, every Bookseller may be assured, that he has not the least Title to the Copy, nor could have any from his Anonymous Confederates, who must have got the Papers out of Mr. Pope's, or a Noble Lord's Library." (—Daily Journal, No. 4483, Wednesday, May 28, 1735, p. 2, col. 2.)

The edition consisted presumably of 360 (or fewer) copies. That is, out of a total of 600 copies prepared (cf. E-C, VI, 426, note), fifty went into the Morning edition, and 190 went into the Horse-load lot; and so 360 copies were left in hand. Let it be noted at this point, however, that, after all books of the three editions were sold, Cooper had left in his hands 50 copies of the title and preface sheets (group r) saved out of the Morning edition; and 190 copies of the Jervas-Digby-Blount letters (group u, sigs. P-T, in 8's, entire), and a portion of the Gay letters (sigs. X-Y of group v) saved back from the Afternoon edition.

The price per copy was 6sh.

This book is made of the same sheets as the preceding Booksellers edition (Book No. 378), with a single exception.

In group s, Wycherley-Ladies, sig. B is a whole sheet, eight leaves, sixteen pages. It is a reprint substituted in the place of the sigs. *B. in 2's; B, in 4's; *C, in 2's of the preceding edition.

All other sheets are as in the first Booksellers edition; in group r the title-leaf and sig. A2 are the reprinted leaves, and the other leaves the original printing, just as in the first Booksellers edition. Except for the first sixteen pages of group s, all distinguishing marks of the one edition are found in the other.

This is Bm No. 12274. h. 11. I am under the impression that Bm 12274. h. 11 is the book that Dilke numbered C. If so, Dilke is wrong in one of his notes. If Dilke is correct in saying (Papers of a Critic, I, 336), . . . "as I find, ii. 13, a whole line omitted,"—i. e., in group t, p. 13, line 25 ("may extend farther than that in which") has dropped out,—then his No. C is different from the variants I am listing, and should be given a place, with a Book Number (Book No. 378a).

This is Dilke's No. Da.

In Vol. I sheet B was printed from the same setting used for the preceding edition; the other sheets were new-printed.

Vol. II has a title-leaf. In group t (sigs. A–P*) all sheets were new-printed, as compared with previous Booksellers editions, including the single leaf P,* which replaced a single leaf sig. P (without an asterisk) of the Morning edition.

In group u (sigs. P, in 8's—T, in 8's) the sheets were from the same setting as in the Morning and the earlier Booksellers editions, being the 190 sets of sheets that were held out of the Afternoon edition (called also the Horse-load lot, or the Roberts edition).

In group v (sigs. R, in 8's—Y) the sheet R and the half-sheets R, S, T, and U were new-printed. The half-sheet X and the quarter-sheet Y (its last leaf was blank, and was discarded from the Yale copy) were from the same setting as in the Morning edition, being the 190 sets of these part-sheets held out of the Afternoon edition.

This edition consisted of not more than 190 copies. When it was sold off, all the sheets printed for the original lot of 600 copies of the Letters were exhausted.

Some of the distinguishing marks are:—

The signature marks and pagination serve to distinguish this edition both from those that preceded it and from the one that followed it.

In this edition, Vol. I (Wycherley-Pope), p. 32 has a twelve-line quotation from the Dunceiad. Preceding editions, on the equivalent page (p. 26), quote only six lines.

This is the first of two copies that Dilke grouped together as No. D. The two are not quite alike; so I have distinguished this as No. Da in his list, the other as No. Db. This edition is No. 12274. h. 17. in Bm, I think.

Concerning the Errata leaf, see the note under the next edition, infra.

From Daily Journal advertisement and Dilke.

The price was six-pence.

I have not had opportunity to examine a copy.

Dilke says (Papers of a Critie, I, 305, or the Athenaeum, Sept. 8, 1860) that the title-page contains the N. B. note as quoted above; in the newspaper it is differently worded.

A reprint of the Narrative accompanies each of the 12mo editions of the Letters in 1735.

That Pope was the author appears probable.

With the undertaking of the publication of the Booksellers editions of the Letters T. Cooper entered, late in May, the list of Pope's publishers; but his name occurs in the imprint of a Pope book for the first time in this Narrative. Hence-forward Dodsley and Cooper were to be Pope's preferred publishers, but Gilliver, Lintot, and even other booksellers do not disappear from the list.

In a letter to Fortescue bearing no date except "Sunday night," (E-C, IX, 133) Pope wrote: "Since I left you, I am informed Curll has served a process upon Cooper (the publisher of the letters which I told you I connived at, who entered them in the Hall book), for what I know not, only I am told he put an advertisement into a newspaper against Curll."

 Vol. II: 2 pp.; 1–246; 2 pp. [a blank leaf].

As to date, I suspect this was the edition advertised in the Daily Journal of June 16, and not a 12mo; but Dilke says a 12mo was published on that day.

This edition does not use any sheet from the lot of 600 copies printed originally, all of which had previously been used up, in progressively smaller blocks, for the Morning, the Afternoon, and the first, second, and third Booksellers editions. Most of the sheets in this volume were printed from the same setting of type used for the preceding edition (Book No. 381), but not all of them.

In group r (general title group) the titlepage, a single leaf, may or may not be as in the preceding edition (I have not been able to place two copies side by side for comparison); it is new-printed as compared with the earlier Booksellers edition. The double rules do not fit at the corners in the same way; and in the imprint the f of of has not slipped up as it had in the earlier editions. The half-sheet sig. A is new-printed throughout as compared with the earlier (first two) Booksellers editions. The Errata leaf (conjugate with the title-leaf in the earlier Booksellers editions) was omitted, that is, was probably not reprinted, because the more important corrections were made in the text.

In group s (Vol. I, Wycherley-Ladies) the sheets are (?) from the same setting of type as those of the last preceding edition (Book No. 381). It will be remembered that the first sheet in this group, sig. B, pp. 1-16, had been used in both Book Nos. 380 and 381.

In group t, the first leaf is the Vol. II title-leaf; Dilke does not mention a Vol. II titlepage for either of his two copies of his No. D. One setting of type served for the sheets of this edition and of its immediate predecessor for the sigs. A-C, G-K. The matter on sig. P*, a single leaf, of the last preceding edition, appears in this edition on the first leaf (pp. 113-114) of a whole sheet marked sig. L, which, of course, was new-printed.

In group u (Vol. II, Jervas, Digby, Blount) the sheets were new-printed throughout, being here marked sigs. L2-L8, 7 leaves; M-P, in 8's; Q, in 2's.

In group v (Vol. II, Gay), the whole sheet sig. R and the half-sheets, sigs. S, T, U, are from the same setting of type used for the last preceding edition. The sheets sig. X, in 4's, and Y, in 2's, pp. 237-246, were new-printed for this edition. The sig. Y may have been a single leaf originally, but I incline to think it was a quarter-sheet with the last half blank. There is still another possibility,—that the two title-leaves and sig. Y, in 2's, were originally a half-sheet; if so, I should expect to find that the Vol. I titlepage in this edition and the Vol. I titlepage in its immediate predecessor were not from the same setting of type.

This edition is Dilke's No. Db, I think. I have described my own copies, of which I have two, just alike.

This is the last of the octavo editions of the Letters of 1735.

B, in 6's.

Pp.: [i]-viii; [9]-216; *221-244; 217-344; 1-36.

This edition was advertised in the Daily Journal of June 18.—Professor Sherburn.

The ornament on the titlepage is similar to, but not the same as, that on the Vol. II titlepage of the final 8vo edition (Book No. 383). The 12mo is the first edition to say in the title that the letters extend from 1705 to 1735.

There is no titlepage for "Vol. II." Instead, sig. G8 (pp. 159-160) is a half-title leaf to the Trumbull-Pope group of sheets.

The book was printed from two different fonts of type. The smaller font was used for the sheets from the beginning through the starred sig. *K (pp. 221-244); for the rest, sig. K (pp. 217-240) to the end, a distinctly larger font was used. Apparently the type was set up in two different printing shops, probably for the sake of speed.

Three letters are printed in italics throughout on pp. 32-33, 65-66, 69-72.

The sigs. A, in 12's; B, in 6's (pp. 1-36) at the end are a reprint of the Narrative.

The price was 3sh. (London Magazine, June, 1735, list.)

This is the earliest 12mo edition.

It is Dilke's No. [F] (I, 339); Lefferts's No. 2.

See Pope's letter to Fortescue ("Sunday Night"), quoted, supra.

Cooper's advertisement in the Daily Journal, No. 4499, June 16, concludes with this paragraph respecting copyright: "In the mean Time he hopes every fair Trader will give the Preference to this Edition, entered in the Hall Book according to the Act of Q. Anne, which is not (as some imagine) expired, but remains unrepealed and in full Force, and upon which any Person shall be prosecuted that pirates this Book." The advertisement was slightly altered, but repeated, in the main, in subsequent issues of the Journal, Nos. 4501, 4502, 4506, 5422 (error for 4522), 5424; and in the Grub-street Journal, No. 286, June 19. In No. 5438 of the Daily Journal (error for 4538, July 31) this advertisement first mentioned portraits.

Pp.: [1]–336.

The date is supplied me by Professor Sherburn.

The portrait of Pope is Grolier No. 10. The portraits are counted in both signatures and pagination.

In calling this the Third Edition, Currill reckoned the 240 volumes supplied him by the Morning edition and the Horse-load lot as the first edition, and his octavo reprint of the Letters as the second edition. All issues by other booksellers were, to him, piracies, and not worthy of any reckoning.

This book and the Cooper 12mo, Book No. 384, were printed from different fonts of type, but they must have come from the same printing-shop (though I do not know who the printer was). On p. 121 of Currill's book, and again on p. 278, there is a rather elaborate head-piece at the top, and pretty low in the page a decorated initial I; on p. 50 of Cooper's book, the same two blocks were used. The head-piece alone was used on Currill's pp. 147, 209; the initial I alone was used on Cooper's p. 284. A tail-piece used on Currill's p. 277 was used on Cooper's titlepage and pp. 124, 345. A tail-piece on Currill's p. 206 was used for Cooper's p. 158. A like combination of head-piece (different from that first mentioned above) and a decorated initial Y on p. 243 of Currill's book was used for p. 306 of Cooper's book.

This book does not contain the two additional Atterbury letters of the Cooper 12mo. So far as Currill was concerned those two letters belonged in his "Volume the Second," 8vo and 12mo.

This is Dilke's No. [K], the last edition of his list; Lefferts's No. 7.

The portrait (in three of my copies) is Grolier No. 20. In a fourth copy the frontispiece is a portrait of Lord Somers, and Pope's portrait is omitted from the volume.

The twelve names on the titlepage are Lords Somers, Harrington, Parker; Bishop Atterbury; Judge Powys; Mr. Dryden, Secretary Harley, Secretary Addison; Matthew Prior, Esq; Mr. Steele.

The To The Reader is dated: July 14, 1735.

In content there is nothing new by Pope, but there are reprints of numerous pieces in verse and prose, some of which Pope did not care to collect or to own.

Curll's own contributions—in prefaces, in notes to a reprint of the Narrative of the Method (which Curll here calls "A true Narrative of . . ."), and in the "Initial Correspondence"—are a valuable aid in the study of Pope. The "Initial Correspondence" is reprinted incompletely in E-C, VI, 439 ff.

The price was 5sh. (London Magazine).

The|Works|Of|Alexander Pope, Esq.;|Vol. II|[Vignette:
 Pope's bust on a shield between two cupids. W. Kent
 Inv.]|

London:|Printed for L. Gilliver, 1735.

Title in black and red.

Half-title: The Works Of Alexander Pope, Esq; Vol. II. The Last Edition Corrected, With Explanatory Notes and Additions never before printed. A

Sm. 8vo. Sig.: A, in 4's; A-D, A-I, in 8's; K-L, in 4's.
Pp.: 8 pp.; [1]-58; 6 pp.; 1-96; 2 pp. [half-title]; [109]-170.

On the titlepage, Pope begins with this edition to be Esq. instead of Mr. (but see Book No. 210). The vignette is from the plate that had been used on the titlepage of the folio Works, II (Book No. 370), q. v.; but in the meantime it had been retouched again and further trimmed; in this sm. 8vo Fourdrinier's name has been quite cut away.

On the verso of the half-title (the first leaf) is an advertisement: "Speedily will be Published, The Dunciad, . . . which makes a Third Volume . . ."

The price was 3sh., bound.

The contents are arranged in groups:—

Group r. General title group.—Half-title, title, The Author to the Reader, and a blank leaf: sig. A, in 4's; no page numbers.

Group s. Essay on Man.—Design, Contents, text of the four Epistles: sigs. A-D5, in 8's; pp. 1-58. There is no title, no half-title.

Group t. Ethic Epistles, The Second Book.—Half-title, sig. D6; Contents (to Epistles I-IV, Cobham-Burlington), sigs. D7, D8; text of the four Epistles (Cobham-Burlington), sigs. A-D5, in 8's, pp. 1-58.

Group u. Epistles, The Third Book. To Several Persons.—Half-title, sig. D6; Epistles I-VII (Oxford-Arbuthnot), sigs. D7, D8; E-F, in 8's, pp. [59]-96. Epistle I is to Earl of Oxford; II, Craggs; III, Addison; IV, Jervas; V, Miss Blount, With . . . Voiture; VI, To the same, on her leaving Town; VII, Arbuthnot. The Epistle to Jervas and the two to Miss Blount are not in the folio or quarto Works, II.

Group v. Satires Of Horace Imitated, With Satires of Dr. Donne, Versify'd by the same hand.—Half-title, sig. G1; text of Satire I-II, sigs. G2-8; H1-4; pp. 109-130; half-title (Satires Of Dr. John Donne, . . . ), sig. H5, p. 131; text of Second Satire, Fourth Satire, sigs. H6-8; I, in 8's; K, in 4's; pp. 132-161; [162, blank]. At the bottom of p. 161 is printed: Finis.

Group w. Epitaphs.—Sig. L, in 4's; pp. 163-170. There are eleven epitaphs, No. XI being the "Intended for . . . Newton." But the epitaph on Gay (No. X) lacks lines 3-4.

In several poems there are revisions in text and notes. See, e. g., the Epistle to a Lady, lines 161–172.

In the Epistle to Arbuthnot, line 60, this edition reverts to the reading of the separate folio edition, "The Play's and I are, luckily, no friends." And a couplet (lines 91–92), which appeared in the separate folio but was omitted in the quarto and folio Works, II, is restored to its place in this edition.

One piece is here first printed:

Pp.: 8 pp.; [1]–58; 6 pp.; 1–96; 2 pp. [half-title]; [109]–154; 145–160.

The ornament on the titlepage will be found in use later, in the small 8vo Works, II, dated 1736 (Book No. 430).

The verso of the half-title (the first leaf) is blank.

The leaf sig. A5 (second sig. A) is an insert.

This edition tracks the preceding one (Book No. 388) page for page up to the last five pages. But the sheets are from type new-set throughout. Some of the slight variations from the preceding edition are: the verso of the half-title is blank here; the Essay on Man has a half-title here (An Essay on Man, Being the First Book of Ethic Epistles. To Henry St. John L. Bolingbroke. Written in the Year 1732. [It is sig. A4 of the first half-sheet.]); the Satires of Horace and Donne have the lines numbered here; Epitaph X, on Gay, has lines 3–4 here.

Ethic|Epistles,|Satires, &c.|With the Author's Notes.|—|Written by Mr. Pope. |—| [Device: T. Johnson's monogram]|—|

London:|Printed for the Company. MDCCXXXV.

12mo (in half-sheets).      Sig.: 2 leaves; B-Q, in 6's; R, in 2's.
Pp.: 4 pp.; [1]-184.

The monogram on the titlepage is closely similar to that used in the Works of 1720 (Book No. 126). Concerning T. Johnson, see Book Nos. 103, 126, etc.

This is apparently a reprint of the Works, II, 1735, small folio; but it has been edited, and slight changes have been made. It omits Epitaph XI (on Newton), which does not appear in the small folio, but does appear in the quarto and in all variants of the small octavo Works, II. Like the small octavo Works, II, this book omits the Dunciad.

In the "Epistle to a Lady," line 174 has softer Man in italics, as has the small folio, whereas the quarto used roman type. Elsewhere this book agrees similarly with the folio as against the 4to Works, II.

In the "Epistle to Arbuthnot" line 60 reads: "Cibber and I are" . . .

As to the date of issue, information is lacking. The book looks like a pirated edition, and it reproduces the text of the small folio Works, II. It may be, then, that it was published in April or May, to purloin the advantages of Gilliver's advertisements of his folio and quarto issues and to steal a march upon the octavo or duodecimo edition he might be expected to publish soon. But more probably it was published in the summer, and was the edition concerning which Pope wrote to Fortescue on August 2 (E-C, IX, 130) : . . . "we cannot find out who is the pirater of my works, therefore cannot move for an injunction, though they are sold over all the town. That injury I must sit down with, though the impression cost me above £200 as the case yet stands, there being above half the impression unsold. Curril is certainly in it, but we can get no proof." This edition is doubtless, too, the "pirated 2<sup>d</sup> Volume of Mr. Pope's Poems in 12<sup>mo</sup>" concerning which Warburton inquired in a letter (not preserved) of September 17 to Theobald and had a reply from Theobald on October 18 (see R. F. Jones's Theobald, page 341). See further Duck's letter to Spence, October 29, in the Anecdotes (Singer's ed., 1820), pp. 389-390.

Apparently there was no Dublin edition of "Vol. II" of Pope's Works.

Sm. 8vo. Sig.: 1 leaf; A-Q, in 8's; R, in 4's.
Pp.: 2 pp.; [1]-263; [264, blank].

Gilliver advertised on July 31: "To-morrow will be published . . ." It was not until September 18, however, that I find a statement that the Dunciad had already been published. Thoms inferred, erroneously, that the year of publication was 1733.

The frontispiece is not counted in the signatures or pagination. In the Owl plate (Variety No. 2) of the octavo Dunciations of 1729, the words Dennis's Works are above Blackmore; in this plate (Variety No. 3), instead of Dennis's Works are the words Oldmix: Hist: of Stuarts (published in 1729).

Lines of the poem are numbered: Book I, 1-264; Book II, 1-396; Book III, 1-356 (misnumbered as 358). There are 1016 lines in all; the "Declaration" on page 225 states there are 1012 (as there really were in the folio and quarto Works, II). Since the preceding edition four lines had been added after line 250 of Book I.

Page 225 is misnumbered 125. In the sixth line on that page the word Pride is in gothic type.

To the list of attacks "After the Dunciad" on p. 243 two titles have been added since the folio and quarto Works, II.

This is Thoms's No. L; Lefferts's No. 13.

Variant b is like Variant a in all respects except that p. 225 is correctly numbered, and Pride (p. 225, line 6) is in roman type—the alterations having been made without re-setting the rest of the type.

This also is Thoms's No. L; Lefferts's No. 13.

Frontispiece: Ass.

Except for the frontispiece of the Ass, this edition is like Variant b in all respects.

I have not been able to determine whether the plate for the frontispiece is that which was used for Gilliver's octavo Dunciads of 1729 or is a re-engraved plate.

This also is Thoms's No. L; Lefferts's No. 14.

Page 1, column 2.—Prologue to Cato is quoted in part, and an “emendation” is suggested. Line 5 “For this the tragic muse first trode the stage” is to be altered to read “once trod the stage.” Pope did not adopt the emendation.

The book intended here is Bm No. 10921. aa. 17. Through the kindness of a friend I am helped to the description.

I have not examined a copy of it, and am risking an inference. On the titlepage there is no period between Mr and Pope.

There is but one titlepage; the nominal division into two volumes is ignored in both signatures and paginaton, but a half-title (sig. G8, pp. 159—160) marks the place of division.

The "Narrative of the Method" occupies pp. iii—xxxii.

The last leaf is the original sig. O12, with the chain lines running horizontally, as they should do in a 12mo book.

Compare Variant b (Book No. 397).

This is, I think, Dilke's No. [H], but his description is too meagre for me to feel any certainty about it.

Variant b is made up of the same sheets as Variant a in all respects but two—one difference at the beginning, one at the end.

A new frontispiece is substituted for that used in Variant a. The advertisement in the Daily Journal of August 18 says: "Ornamented with the Heads of several eminent Persons."

At the end the original leaf sig. O12 (containing Arbuthnot's letter of July 17, 1734) was canceled. The Arbuthnot letter was reset, and two letters from Atterbury (previously published; see notes under the 8vo Volume the Second of Cull's Literary Correspondence) were added to it. The three letters were printed off on a single piece of paper (? a half-sheet), and added to the book. In these last four leaves the chain-lines run vertically; in the rest of the book the chain-lines run horizontally, as they should do in a 12mo book.

The ornament on the titlepage was repeated as a tail-piece on p. 345.

This is Dilke's No. I.

The only indication as to date that I have found, is that the inside of the front cover of Volume I of my copy bears the MS. note
 "Augst ye 20th 1735," presumably the date of purchase.

The two volumes of my copy are bound separately (contemporary binding).

On the titlepage:—Caple in Vol. I, and Capel in Vol. II; a comma in the date in Vol. I, and a period in Vol. II; a period between by and M. Rhames in the imprint of Vol. II.

The title-leaf of Vol. I is an insert; its stub shows between sigs.
 A6 and B1. The stub of the canceled title-leaf precedes sig. A2.
 Because the title-leaf is an insert I have designated this edition
 Variant b.

The contents are as in the London Booksellers edition. The dates used in the titles indicate that the printer used a London 8vo edition for copy, not a 12mo.

The date is supplied me by Professor Sherburn.

Following after Variant a of Cooper's 12mo (Book No. 396), this book could claim to contain more letters than other editions. In its turn the publication of this book incited Cooper to print the two additional letters that constitute the Variant b of his 12mo. Cooper's change of frontispiece was to gain an advertising advantage over this Booksellers 12mo.

Who sponsored this edition does not appear. I judge that the "Booksellers" on this titlepage, though nominally the same, are not in reality the same persons as the "Booksellers" on the titlepages of previous editions.

The portrait is without the name of painter or engraver. It is from a re-engraved plate of the frontispiece portrait of Lintot's Miscellany, probably the edition of 1732 (Book No. 273).

Letters in italics throughout are on pp. 25—26, 52—53, 56—58, 179—183, 183—184.

Page 145 is misnumbered as 345.

The two Atterbury letters (taken over from Curnell's 8vo Second volume) are on pp. 263—266.

The "Narrative of the Method" at the end was bound up with some copies, but apparently was omitted from some.

The title-leaf of the "Narrative" is sig. b6 folded back.

This is the edition that was used by Bowles in the controversy with Roscoe; for the story, see Notes and Queries, 2S, X, 381, or Dilke, Papers of a Critic, I, 329 ff., 340.

This is Dilke's No. [G].

Concerning the date, a letter on p. xv is signed and dated: "E. Curll, Peckham, Sept. 15, 1735." The book is listed by the Gentleman's Magazine (V, 563) as published in September. Curll had advertized the book as in the press as early as July 28 (see the 12mo Third volume p. [xxxiii]).

The price was 6sh., bound (London Magazine, September list).

The portrait is Grolier No. 31. It is different from that in the Second volume of Curll's series (Book No. 386). In the copy in the Wrenn Library the Lansdowne plate is bound as the frontispiece; and the portrait of Pope, bound between pp. xii and xiii, is from the plate prepared for the 12mo Fourth volume in Curll's series (i. e., that portrait is Grolier No. 29).

The eight names on the titlepage are the Duke of Shrewsbury, Lord Lansdowne, Bishop of St. Asaph, Sir Berkeley Lucy, William Walsh, Lady Chudleigh, Mrs. Manly, Mrs. Thomas.

The sig. R, 1 leaf, is probably D8, folded back. The sig. F, 1 leaf, is a single leaf. The next leaf after sig. F, 1 leaf, is sig. E4, folded back.

The book is made up of letters, poems, etc., and three pamphlets. I have another copy that inserts four leaves additional (a general title to Walsh's Works, dated 1736, a Contents, etc.) between p. 112 and p. 115.

On pp. xxix–xxxii is a poem, "An Epistle from Mr. Pope to Mr. Gay" . . . 1726, with a footnote: "The genuine Author of this Epistle is the Reverend Mr. Wesley of Westminster-School." The verses are not included in Wesley's Works, 4to, 1736.

On pp. 29–39 is a lengthy letter on Asses in general, with a page quotation from the Dunciad. The letter is signed: Philo-A—s.

There are no new poems by Pope. Two are reprinted, "The Challenge" (Piece No. 52) and "Epigrams, Occasion'd by an Invitation to Court" (Piece No. 54), pp. 27–33 in the second pagination sequence.

Of letters by Pope, there are four to Miss Blount and one to the Duchess of Buckingham (pp. xix–xxviii, 1–3).

Pp.: [i]—xiv; 2 pp. [Addison plate]; [xv]—xxxii; 2 pp. [advertisement of Vol. III, 8vo, etc.]; [1]—228.

The date is inferred from two facts: the quotation on p. [xxxiv] of a letter dated Aug. 4, 1735; and the advertisement on p. [xxxiii] of the Third volume of the Literary Correspondence, 8vo, as "just published." The octavo Third volume was published shortly after September 15 (Book No. 402).

The portrait of Pope is Grolier No. 20. All the portraits are counted in the signatures, and all but Addison's in the pagination. The other two are of Atterbury and Prior.

The materials in the content of the duodecimo are much the same as in the octavo Volume the Second, but arranged differently. The "Narrative of the Method" . . . is omitted. The "Initial Correspondence" is condensed, some letters being omitted; but the story of the contest between Curll and Pope is carried down to a later date.

Concerning Curll's adoption of Pope's Head as a sign for his shop in Rose street, see E—C, VI, 435—436. The new sign was animadverted upon in verse in the Grub-street Journal, No. 292, July 31, 1735.

Pp.: 2 pp.; [1]-263; [264, blank].

The title-leaf is an insert.

On its verso is an Errata note, eight lines of print.

This book is a re-issue of the sheets of the Variant b of the small octavo undated [1735] Dunciad, with two cancellations. The first cancellation was of the title-leaf, but a new titlepage was provided only because of the second cancellation, I think, and was in the main an advertising device. In the Lefferts copy both titles occur, because the binder forgot to cancel the earlier one. The second cancellation was of the leaf sig. O7 (pp. 221-222); a substitute leaf was new-printed for the purpose of altering an allusion to Broome (lines 327–328 of Book III, and the note to line 328). For the story, see Pope's letter to Broome, Nov. 18, 1735, E-C, VIII, 178.

This is Lefferts's No. 15.

The Letters of Mr. Pope . . . was reprinted in two installments, the September number (published October 1) and the October number (published November 1).

I have not seen a copy, and hence base this note upon advertisements in the newspapers.

Wilford was the publisher of this and of the London Magazine also. In 1733 he was the nominal publisher of the separate epistles of the Essay on Man.

Pp.: 2 pp.; 4 pp.; [3]–17; [18, blank].

The title-leaf is pp. [1–2].

The four pages of Contents are not counted in the pagination, but are counted in signatures.

The text of the poem begins on p. [3].

The last leaf was probably run through the press as a half-shee<sup>t</sup>.

Line 1 begins: Awake! my Lelius,...

The lines are numbered 1–286.

This is a close reprint of Edition No. I (Book No. 307). The publisher's reason for printing it so late was probably to supply the needs of customers who had bought the other epistles, and did not wish to purchase a copy of the poem as a whole (the Essay on Man of 1734 or the Works, II, of 1735). Cf. the advertisements quoted under Book Nos. 370, 372. Wilford no longer controlled the copyright (even if he ever was anything more than nominally the publisher); but I know of no reason to assume that the date on the titlepage is erroneous.

A note on the verso of the title-leaf states that the pagination after p. 48 should have run regularly to the end, and signatures should have run not K, L, M, N, but E, F, G, H.

Much of the contents is reprinted from A Collection Of Divine Hymns and Poems...; of which see the Third Edition, 1719, Book No. 111, supra.

1736

Book Nos. 413-442

Piece Nos. 210-211

Following upon Pope's annus mirabilis, the year of 1736 was a quiet one. The thirty books listed here contain only two new pieces both of them of small consequence. The friendship with the Prince of Wales grew, and Pope began to be drawn into a greater intimacy with members of the Opposition to Walpole's ministry.

413. January 14 (Daily Post, No. 5297, adv).

Variant a.

The Works Of Alexander Pope, Esq; Vol. I. With Explanatory Notes and Additions | never before printed. — [4 lines Latin prose.—Tully.] — [Ornament: a vase of flowers, etc.; oblong]

London: Printed for B. Lintot, 1736.

Title in black and red.

Frontispiece: portrait of Pepe—G. Vertue S.

Sm. 8vo. Sig.: A, a, in 8's; b, in 4's; B-M, in 8's; N, in 4's.
Pp.: [1]–15; [16, blank]; [xvii]–xxxix; [xl, blank]; [17]–198;
2 pp. [blank].

The frontispiece (sig. A1, pp. [1–2]) is Grolier No. 15, I think. See also Lintot's Miscellany, I, 1720 (third edition, Book No. 124), and later editions, 1722, 1726–27, 1732.

On p. 198, line 41 is a fraction longer than line 40.

Vol. I and Vol. III of this small octavo edition reprint the contents of the 1717 Works. This octavo omits one poem ("On a Fan"), and adds two pieces not contained in the editions of 1717.

This first volume of the set (Vol. I) contains: the Preface (of 1717); complimentary poems; Discourse on Pastorals; the (four) Pastorals; Messiah; Windsor Forest; St. Cecilia; Two Choruses; Solitude; Dying Christian; Essay on Criticism; Rape of the Lock; Eloisa to Abelard; Elegy to . . . Unfortunate Lady; Prologue to Cato; Epilogue to Jane Shore.

In this edition the "St. Cecilia" is for the first time said to have been written in 1708.

Concerning the "Ode on Solitude," p. 99, see infra, Additions and Corrections.

"The Dying Christian to his Soul, Ode." on p. 100 is a revised version of the "Christiani Morientis" published in Lewis's Miscellany of 1730 (Book No. 232). For a discussion, cf. Dilke, Papers of a Critic, I, 243 ff. (same in Athenaeum, May 8, 1858); E-C, IV, 408–410.

Lintot, still owner of the copyright, was persuaded to combine with Gilliver to make this reprint a part of a new edition of Pope's Works; see the advertisement quoted under Book No. 372, and Lintot's letter to Broome, August 26, 1735.

This Vol. I was in the press by August 26, 1735; cf. E-C, VIII, 170. Woodfall was the printer employed, and from his account-book (Notes and Queries, 1S, XI, 377) we learn that the edition consisted of 3000 copies on ordinary paper (at a cost of about £30) and 75 copies on fine paper. See the note infra under Variant b.

414. [Date uncertain; possibly September 9, 1737.]
Variant b.

The|Works|Of|Alexander Pope, Esq.;|Vol. I.|With|Explanatory Notes and Additions|never before printed.|—|[4 lines Latin prose.—Tully.]|—|[Ornament: a vase of flowers, etc.; nearly round]|

London:|Printed for B. Lintot, 1736.

Title in black and red.

Frontispiece: portrait of Pope—G. Vertue S.

Sm. 8vo. Sig.: A, a, in 8's; b, in 4's; B-M, in 8's; N, in 4's.
Pp.: [1]–15; [16, blank]; [xvii]–xxxix; [xl, blank]; [17]–198;
2 pp. [blank].

Variant b is like Variant a in signatures, pagination, and contents; but the sheets are from a different setting of type throughout.

Some distinguishing marks are:

P. [3]. Titlepage.—The ornament is round, not oblong.

P. [5].—The signature mark is correct, A3.

P. 198.—Line 41 is shorter than line 40.

The publishers appear to have planned at first to make this small octavo edition of Pope's Works a four volume set. Gilliver set the form by printing his small octavo Works, II, and the Dunciad as two "pocket volumes." Then Lintot came into the undertaking, and reprinted what he had the copyright in—the Works [I] of 1717—and some additional poems, as two more "pocket volumes." The rather odd alternation between the publishers (Vols. I and III, Lintot; and Vols. II and IV, Gilliver) was the result, first, of the meanings that had already become attached to the expressions Works, Vol. I and Works, Vol. II of Pope's poems; and, secondly, to the difference in ownership of the copyright, combined with the decision to break up each of the folio (and quarto) editions into two parts. Subsequently Cooper and Dodsley were brought into the combination with a small octavo edition of the Letters, as Vols. V and VI.

Of Vols. I, III, and IV—possibly Vol. II also—of this four-volume set, there were two printings. Why no expression, like “Second Edition,” was used to distinguish one from the other, I have not been able to learn. There is the possibility that the traditional rule in the company of printers limiting an edition to not above 1500 copies made it necessary for Woodfall to have type set up twice, in order to print 3000 copies, and hence Variant a belonged to one 1500 and Variant b to the other 1500, the two variants being co-temporaneous. There is, however, a note in Woodfall’s account book which appears to mean that Variant b was printed nearly two years later than Variant a:—“Mr. Henry Lintot, Dr. Sept. 9, 1737. The 2nd edition of Pope’s Works, Vol. I. No. 2000, 14 shts., at 30 s. pr. sht.—£21–00–0. Title in red and black—£0–15–0” (Henry Lintot, Bernard’s son, succeeded to the business upon his father’s death on February 3, 1736.)

I have not been able to discover any book other than Variant b that could be referred to by this printing-account note. We may say, then, tentatively—

This edition consisted of 2000 copies.

Dilke noted the existence of two varieties (or editions); see Papers of a Critic, I, 241, or N & Q, 2S. V, 183.

Group s.—[1]–152.

Group t.—[1]–48; 2 pp. [portrait of Pope]; 2 pp. [half-title to Sober Advice]; [49]–62.

Group u.—2 pp. [bastard title]; [i]–xii; [1]–190.

Group v.—4 pp. [Curll's book list].

On the titlepage the names listed are: Mr. Addison, Bishop Atterbury, Bishop Barlow, Bishop Fleetwood, Bishop Smalridge, Sir Berkeley Lucy, and King Henry VIII to Anne Boleyn.

The frontispiece in the Wrenn Library copy is a portrait of Atterbury; in the Ashley Library copy, of Addison.

The portrait of Pope is Grolier No. 31.

In the preface, "To The Sifters" (group r), and in "To Mr. Pope," group t, pp. 25–28, Curll pays his respects to Pope.

In group s, pp. 148–152, "A Character of Mr. Edmund Curll," three lines of verse and a footnote are quoted from the Dunciad (Book II, line 54 of the 1729 version; E–C, IV, 133, note 2) to give Curll opportunity to annotate the note liberally.

In group t, pp. 37–48, "Court Poems. By Mr. Pope and Mr. Gay. Published by Mr. Oldmixon, 1717," only three of the Court Poems are reprinted. In the Literary Correspondence, Vol. II, 8vo, pp. vii–viii, Curll asserted the three poems were by Joseph Jacobs, and were published by Oldmixon through J. Roberts; "by" Joseph Jacobs may mean in this instance that Jacobs was the acquirer of the "copies," not the author of them.

In group t, 2 unnumbered pages and 49–62 contain a reprint of Sober Advice. On the half-title is this announcement: "Printed for T. Boreman, at the Cock on Ludgate-Hill, 1735; who having taken the Liberty, lately, to Print some Poems which are my Property, I here return him the Compliment, in Part, as I always will, whoever attacks me, by way of Lex Talionis, i. e. the just Law of Retaliation.—E. C." To the poem Curll appends footnotes of his own. The text is as in Book Nos. 347, 348.

The Museovian Letters, group u, is listed as a separately published pamphlet in the London Magazine of November, 1737.

Group v, the catalogue of "New Books" (containing 25 entries), which Curll affixed at the end of the volume, is itself a document in the warfare he was waging with Pope.

The portrait of Pope is Grolier No. 29.

This 12mo omits from the body of the book, as well as from the titlepage, the Muscovian Letters. Most of the rest of the contents of the octavo it reprints.

At the end of the volume, however, a "remainder" copy of the Court Poems of 1726 is used, containing therefore more than the three poems reprinted in the octavo. See the notes under Book Nos. 174, 175.

417. About May 1 ?

Variant a.

The|Works|Of|Alexander Pope Esq;|—|Vol. III.|Consisting of Fables, Translations, | and Imitations. | — | [Ornament]|

London :|Printed for H. Lintot, 1736.

Title in black and red.

Half-title: The Works Of Alexander Pope Esq; Vol. III.

Sm. 8vo. Sig.: 4 leaves; B—N, in 8's; O, in 4's.
Pp.: [i]—vii; [viii, blank]; [1]—198; 2 pp. [book list].

The date is inferred. Woodfall's bill for printing is dated April 30, 1736. There is a clipping (in the Aitken Collection) from the London Evening Post, with the date cut off but evidently somewhere from the 13th to the 18th of May, advertising this volume.

The pieces contained in this volume are:—Temple of Fame; Sapho to Phaon; Vertumnus; Dryope; Statius; January and May; Wife of Bath; "Women ben full"; The Alley; Of a Lady singing to her Lute; Garden; Weeping; Silence; Artimesia; Phryne; Happy Life.

Woodfall charged £2-10-0 for two reams of paper designated as "writing demy." The titles in red and black cost a guinea. And thirteen sheets were printed, at two guineas per sheet, for £27-06-0. There was a charge of three shillings "Paid for Ovid's Metam. and Statius"; presumably the extra charge was for setting up the Latin text.

Two pieces are here first printed:—

210. Pp. v-vi.—Advertisement.

211. Pp. 190-191.—The Garden.

Of the "Advertisement" the concluding sentence runs: "The Imitations of English Authors which are added at the end, were done as early, some of them at fourteen or fifteen years old; but having also got into Miscellanies, we have put them here together to complete this Juvenile Volume."

"The Garden" is placed in a section of "Imitations of English Poets: Done by the Author in his Youth;" it and another poem are grouped under the sub-heading "IV. Cowley. The Garden. [And] Weeping." For an account of "Weeping," see infra, under Additions and Corrections, Poems On Several Occasions, 1717.

Variant b.

The|Works| . . . |Vol. III.| . . .

[As in Variant a.]

Sm. 8vo.

Variant b is a close reprint of Variant a, but is from a different setting of type throughout.

Some distinguishing marks are:—

Page [iii]. Titlepage.—The letter a of Imitations falls immediately beneath the capital T of Translations: in Variant a, it falls to the left.

P. 9.—In the bottom margin there is a dagger: in Variant a, nothing.

P. 11. Note to Ver. 119.—The last line consists of four words, "of the Runic characters": in Variant a, of only two words, "Runic characters."

P. 74. Line 91.—Cattle is correctly spelled: in Variant a, cattel.

P. [200]. Lintot's book list.—The list is the same in the two variants to the middle of the last page, and in part the same on the lower half the page. Variant b lists: (1) Odes... Horace... Bentley. In four volumes; (2) Poems... Lady Chudleigh; (3) Praelectiones... Trapp, in two volumes in 12mo [published in April, 1736]; (4) Letters... of Aristaenetus, by Mr. Stephen Lewis—which four entries are not in Variant a: in their stead Variant a lists (5) Rapin of Gardens... Third Edition; (6) A Collection of Poems... Shakespear; (7) Poems... Christopher Pitt—which three entries are not in Variant b.

There is no entry in Woodfall's accounts printed in Notes and Queries, 1 S. XI, 377-378, of a reprint or of a "2nd edition" of Vol. III of the Works. But see the notes under Book Nos. 413, 414.

Variant *b may have been published late in 1737.

Presumably this edition consisted of 2000 copies.

The text is an old, not a lately revised one.

On p. 1.—Line 1 of Epistle I is: "Awake! my Lelius..."

On p. 9.—Line 2 of Epistle II is: "The only Science of Mankind"...

This is a reprint of Variant a, q. v. The two variants are from different fonts of type, and ornamented with different wood-cuts. The typed (inked) portion of the page is of about the same dimensions in the two. But in Variant a the chain-lines run vertically, in Variant b horizontally. I have not made a minute comparison of the two throughout, and which was printed first I can only guess.

In both variants, line 44 of Epistle I reads: "That Wisdom infinite must from the Best"—from for form.

In line 49, Variant a has 'ere: Variant b has 'er'.

Variant b looks like a piracy of a piracy. And again Curll enters the transaction. Note the advertisement in the London Evening Post, No. 1322, May 6–May 8, 1736: "This Day is also publish'd, a beautiful Elzevir Edition of Mr. Pope's Essay on Man. In Four Epistles. Pr. 1s. Price 5s. each in 8vo. or 2s. 6d. in 12mo. With all his other Works in all sizes." It is entirely within the bounds of the conceivable to speculate that the heir of P. T. and R. Smythe sold ready-printed sheets of this emission to Curll, who was to continue to tease Pope for a long time to come. (See Pope's letter of August 2, 1735, to Fortescue.)

This poem is not by Pope, but by Thomas Catesby Lord Paget.

424. Before July 10? (London Evening Post, adv.).

Seven Select Pieces written by Mr. Pope, viz. 1. An Essay on Criticism. 2. An Ode in Praise of Musick. 3. Windsor-Forest. 4. Eloisa to Abelard. 5. The Temple of Fame. 6. Messiah, a Sacred Eclogue. 7. Elegy on an Unfortunate Lady. Adorned with Cuts. Price 4s.

8vo.      Sig.?
Pp.?

The above entry is taken from the catalogue of "New Books Printed only for E. Curll" placed at the end of Volume the Fourth of Curll's Literary Correspondence. It is No. IV in that list, the three entries preceding it being notices of the First, Second, and Third volumes in the Correspondence series.

This book may be a made-up volume.

Curll's reprints of Pope's pieces are hard to trace and list. I feel wholly uncertain of how many, and what, they were.

In Curll's catalogue at the end of Swift's Literary Correspondence, 1741, p. 4, item xxv, a variation of this title is given, though the book looks to be the same: "Select Pieces of Mr. Pope, viz. 1. An Essay on Criticism. 2. Eloisa to Abelard. 3. Windsor Forest. 4. An Ode on Music. 5. Messiah. An Imitation of Virgil's Pellio [sic!]. 6. The Temple of Fame. 7. To the Memory of a Lady who died for love of Mr. Pope. Beautifully printed in Octavo, and adorned with Cuts, Designed by Mr. Cheron, and Engraven by Mr. Gribelin, Price 4s."

425. July 31 (Grub-street Journal, adv.).

The General Magazine. For the Month of July, 1736. Containing, [a long list, in two columns]. By Tacitus Britannicus.

A. Burton and W. Lloyd, at St. John's Lane, near St. John's Gate, Clerkenwell.

Description from advertisement in the Grub-street Journal, No. 345, August 5, 1736, p. 3, col. 3.

Near the end of the magazine is: "Inscription on the Monument of the late celebrated Mr. Gay, Author of the Beggars Opera, wrote by Mr. Pope."

426. August 1-5.

The London Magazine.

July number, p. 338.—The monument for Gay, carved by Rysbrack, with Pope's Epitaph, was ready June 23, 1736, and was to be put up in a few days. This version of the Epitaph lacks lines 3-4.

On page 399, same volume, lines 3-4 are printed, as to be inserted in the poem on page 338. The rest of the inscription on Gay's monument is quoted.

427. Summer-Autumn (London Evening Post).

The Life and Adventures of Mr. John Gay . . . Containing 1. . . 4. An Epitaph for himself; with the Inscription on his Monument, and his Character. By Mr. Pope. To which are subjoined, (never before publish'd) Verses written by Mr. Pope under two Pictures: 1. Representing a Gentleman combing a Lady's Hair. 2. Some Ladies at Prayer by the Bed-side of a Sick Person.

Printed for E. Curll at Pope's Head in Rose-street, Covent-Garden.

P.p.:

From a newspaper clipping, advertisement.

The clipping of the London Evening Post from which the above is quoted has had the date cut off. Other advertisements are of [Mrs. Singer-Rowe's] History of Joseph and of Eovaai (published in July, 1736; cf. the Life and Romances of Mrs. Eliza Haywood, by G. F. Whicher, 1915, p. 203).

428. October 1-5.

The London Magazine.

September number, p. 485.—Six lines are quoted from the Epistle to a Lady.

The volume of the London Magazine for 1736 contains only one other quotation from Pope, which is six lines on p. 310 of the June number, introducing an essay on "A Wicked Minister," quoted from the Craftsman, No. 520, June 19.

429. November (London Magazine, p. 644).

New Letters Of Mr. Alexander Pope, And Several of his Friends. [3 lines Latin.—] [Ornament]

London: Printed, Anno Reformationis, 1737.

? Frontispiece: portrait of Bolingbroke.

8vo. Sig.: ? 1 leaf; 2 leaves; B-E, in 8's; F, in 2's.

Pp.: ? 2 pp. [frontispiece]; 2 pp. [title-leaf]; [i]-ii; [1]-66; 2 pp. [Curl's book list].

Description inferred.

The titlepage as given above was copied for me by Professor A. C. Judson, now of the University of Indiana, from a book in the British Museum (12274. i. 12), which contains both this title and the usual title to Curl's Fifth volume of the Literary Correspondence (see Book No. 457). I suspect several printer's rules appear on the titlepage, though not accounted for above.

There was a portrait of Bolingbroke in the pamphlet, but it may not have been used as a frontispiece.

The remainder of the description is of the first portion of the Literary Correspondence, Volume the Fifth, (Book No. 457), of which these sheets were printed to be a part, though issued now separately.

Pages [i]-ii, the "To My Subscribers encore" is signed and dated: "E. Curl. 5 Nov. 1736." Among other things, Curl says: "And this Volume will be closed with whatever additional Letters Mr. Pope shall think fit to insert in his Works in Prose, now printing in Quarto, Price a Guinea."

Two letters, Pope to Swift, August, 1723, and Bolingbroke to Swift (postscript to the preceding, but here printed as a separate letter, without date), are here first printed. Later, in Swift's Literary Correspondence (1741), p. 217, Curl states in a footnote: "These two Letters were given to Mr. Curl by a Gentleman of the County of Essex."

On pp. 27-29, the poem "Dawley Farm" is reprinted.

See Book Nos. 452-457; and E-C, VIII, 350; and Swift's Literary Correspondence (1741), p. 26, note.

If my inferred description be inaccurate, a book, nevertheless, of very much the sort was published in November. The notice of it in the London Magazine November list reads: "Letters written by Mr. Pope, and Lord Bolingbroke, to Dean Swift, in 1725. With his Lordship's Effigies and Character. Printed for E. Curl, price 1s.6d."

A book priced at eighteen pence would be of about the size here allowed for, 4½ sheets and title-leaf. The final leaf is a book list, which looks normal. In the Literary Correspondence, Vol. V, the next following sheet (i. e., the first new sheet added on to continue the book) is given the signature F (such repetition being a common occurrence), and begins on page [65] (page numbers repeated too), with a letter from "Dean Swift to Mr. Pope," September 20, 1723, followed by Pope's letter to Swift, December 10 (or 14 in E-C), 1725, pp. 65–71.

The Works Of Alexander Pope, Esq.;—[Vol. II.]—Containing his Epistles and Satires.—[Ornament]—

London: Printed for Lawton Gilliver at Homer's Head against St. Dunstan's Church in Fleetstreet, 1736.

Title in black and red.

Half-title: The Works Of Alexander Pope, Esq; Vol. II. A

Sm. 8vo. Sig.: A, in 4's; A–D, A–K, in 8's.

Pp.: 8 pp.; [1]–58; 6 pp.; 1–96; [107]–154; 145–160.

This is a close reprint of Variant b of the small 8vo Vol. II of 1735 (Book No. 389). In arranging the number of lines to the page, the printer allowed himself a few liberties, but in the main this book tracks the other page for page, line for line; even peculiarities of signatures and pagination are reproduced. There are apparent a few touches of an editorial hand.

This book omits the "To the Reader" and substitutes instead a full page (the third leaf) of Errata, verso blank. In this book the wording of the title and the half-title varies slightly from that in the 1735 volume.

This book shows on the titlepage the same ornament as is on the titlepage in the 1735 edition; and the same statement is true for page 19 in the two editions.

Conceivably this reprint was made to accompany the Variant b editions of the Lintot Vol. I and Vol. III, small 8vo (supra).

Variant a.

The|Works|Of|Alexander Pope, Esq;|—|Vol. IV.|—|Containing the|Dunciad,|With The|Prolegomena of Scriblerus,|And|Notes Variorum.|=|

London:|Printed for L. Gilliver, and J. Clarke,|at Homer's Head against St. Dunstan's Church|in Fleetstreet, MDCC-XXXVI.

Title in black and red.

Sm. 8vo.      Sig.: A-Q, in 8's; R, in 2's.
Pp.: [1]-256; 256-258; [260, blank].

On the titlepage, in the imprint, there is a comma between Gilliver and and.

The page numbers of pp. 31, 144, 218, 257, 258, 259, are misprinted 13, 244, 118, 256, 257, 258.

This is a reprint of the Dunciad of Gilliver (alone), published in 1735 but dated 1736 (Book Nos. 405, 406), which in the main it follows line for line and page for page.

But again the touch of an editorial hand is discernible. The "Preface Prefix'd to the five first imperfect Editions of the Dunciad . . .," which in former editions had been placed in the appendix, was in this edition placed immediately after the title-leaf. This edition is the first to end the title of that Preface with a date. And that date is 1727—"printed at Dublin and London, in Octave and Duod. 1727." It is not necessary to infer that the erroneous date was placed here by Pope himself. Any editor—J. Richardson, Jr., or another man employed by the booksellers to run over this book to fit it into the lately-planned four-volume set of Works, would have inferred this date of 1727 from the data in the first footnote accompanying the text of the poem as first printed in the folio Works, II, of 1735, q. v. Unfortunately the footnote was "edited" for this small octavo edition, and 1727 was changed to 1726 (page 70; the note in this edited, or garbled, form is quoted in E-C, IV, 100, column 1, bottom).

In the edition last preceding this one, the preface to the 1729 quarto had been placed as the first reading matter in the book, pp. 5-7, sigs. A4-A5, and there called merely "Advertisement." In this edition it follows after the above-discussed "Preface," pp. 11-13, and is headed "Advertisement To the first Edition, with Notes, in Quarto, 1728."

A number of slight editorial changes could be pointed out.
This is Thoms's No. N; Lefferts's No. 17.

Variant b.

The|Works|Of|Alexander Pope, Esq;|—|Vol. IV.|—|Containing the|Dunciad,|With The|Prolegomena of Scriblerus,|And|Notes Variorum.|=|

London:|Printed for L. Gilliver and J. Clarke,|at Homer's Head against St. Dunstan's Church|in Fleetstreet, MDCC-XXXVI.

Title in black and red.

Sm. 8vo.      Sig.: A–Q, in 8's; R, in 2's.
Pp.: [1]–256; 256–258; [260, blank].

On the titlepage, in the imprint, there is not a comma between Gilliver and and.

Pp. 31, 144, 218 are correctly numbered, but pp. 257, 258, 259 are misnumbered as 256, 257, 258.

This Variant b is a reprint of Variant a, page for page and line for line. But type was new-set throughout.

The|Works|Of|Alexander Pope, Esq;|With|Explanatory Notes and Additions|never before printed.|—|Vol. I.|—|[4 lines Latin prose.—Tully.]|=|

London, Printed:|Dublin, Re-printed by and for G. Faulkner|in Essex-street; A. Bradley and T. Moore, Book-sellers in Dame-street. M DCC XXXVI.

12mo.      Sig.: A–K, in 12's plus 4 leaves [list of subscribers] between A1 and A2.

Pp.: [1–2]; 8 pp. [list of subscribers, inserted]; [3]–13; [14, blank]; [xv]–xxxiii; [xxxiv, blank]; [15]–189; 200–227; [228, blank]; 2 pp. [Contents].

Vol. II—Vol. III.

The jump in pagination from 189 to 200 is merely a printer's slip. Among the subscribers' names are the Earl of Orrery, Pilkington, and Dr. Sheridan; but not Swift.

The number of copies subscribed for was 267 sets (three volumes to the set).

This edition follows the London small 8vo edition closely, but this Dublin Vol. I includes also: the Alley; the Happy Life; Artimesia; Phryne; Macer; To Mrs. M. B. on her Birthday; and Thoughts on Various Subjects.

Vol. II contains the poems of the London small 8vo Vol. II.

Vol. III includes: the Temple of Fame; January and May; the Wife of Bath; Statius; Sapho to Phaon; and Vertumnus and Pomona.

434.

Satires of Dr. John Donne, Dean of St. Paul's. [4 lines—] Done into modern English by Mr. Pope. London: Printed. And, Dublin Re-printed by George Faulkner, Printer and Bookseller, in Essex-street, opposite to the Bridge, 1736.

12mo. Sig.:

Pp.: [131]–161 [Satires]; [162]; 161–170 [Epitaphs].

From the Lefferts catalogue.

In the Lefferts catalogue it is asserted that Epitaph No. XI, "Intended for Sir Isaac Newton" . . . is included; and that this pamphlet is, "Evidently a fragment of another book."

This was reprinted from the London small 8vo Works, II, of 1736 (or possibly 1735). Probably it is a portion of Vol. II of the Dublin three-volume set of the Works, 1736.

Not improbably copies were sold as a separate pamphlet.

Miscellanies. | — | The | First Volume. | — | [Device: Motte's monogram] | — |

London: |Printed for Benjamin Motte, and|Charles Bathurst, at the Middle-|Temple Gate, Fleetstreet. MDCCXXXVI.

12mo. Sig.: 2 leaves; B–N, in 12's; O, in 4's.

Pp.: 4 pp.; [1]–295; [296, blank].

This is a reprint of the contents of Vol. I of the undated [1733] 12mo edition. The "Preface" of Vol. I of 1727 is not here.

It contains nothing by Pope.

Head and tail-pieces and decorated initials occur in my copy. There may be a variant that uses only printer's rules; see the notes on the variants of accompanying volumes.

435.

Variant a.

Miscellanies.—[The] Second Volume.—[Device: Motte's monogram]—|

XXXVI.

12mo. Sig.: A—M, in 12's.

Pp. [1]—288.

This is a reprint of the contents of Vol. II of the undated [1733] 12mo edition.

Type was set twice for this volume.

Variant a is ornamented with head- and tail-pieces and decorated initials.

Reprints of pieces by or attributed to Pope are: A Key to the Lock; Memoirs of P. P. Clerk of this Parish; Stradling versus Stiles; Thoughts on Various Subjects.

Variant b.

Miscellanies.—[The] Second Volume.—[Device: Motte's monogram]—|

London: Printed for Benjamin Motte, and Charles Bathurst, at the Middle-[Temple-Gate, Fleetstreet. MDCC-XXXVI.

12mo. Sig.: A—M, in 12's.

Pp.: [1]—288.

Variant b is like Variant a in content. Type was re-set throughout; head- and tail-pieces and decorated initials were not used for Variant b, but printer's rules instead. In Variant a the mark used to designate pieces by Swift is two small hands: in Variant b, one hand and an asterisk.

Variant a.

Miscellanies.—[The] Third Volume. . . .

See Variant b, next infra.

I have not seen a copy of Variant a, and merely infer that such a book existed.

Head- and tail-pieces appear in it, instead of the printer's rules of Variant b.

Variant b.

Miscellanies.|—|The|Third Volume.|—|[Device: Motte's monogram]|—|

London:|Printed for Benjamin Motte and Charles|Bathurst, at the Middle-Temple-Gate,|Fleetstreet; Lawton Gilliver and John Clarke, at Homer's Head over-against|St. Dunstan's Church, Fleetstreet.|MDCCXXXVI.

12mo.      Sig.: A—I, A—C, in 12's.
Pp.: [1]—216; [1]—71; [72, book list].

This is a reprint, with two exceptions, of the contents of The Third Volume, octavo, of 1732 (Book No. 276). The exceptions are: on p. 41 (second series) one epigram ("When other Ladies"...) is omitted from this 12mo; and on pp. 48—51 (second series) one poem ("Bounce to Fop") is inserted in this book, which is omitted from the octavo. Motte and Gilliver had each taken a partner into his business; allowing for this change, even the titlepage of this 12mo edition is a reprint of that of the octavo,—as it should be; for the copyright in this volume belonged to the two publishers jointly; see Swift's letter to Motte (Ball's ed., IV, 317).

This edition did not use head- and tail-pieces, but substituted printer's rules for them.

Variant a.

Miscellanies.|The|Last Volume.|—|[Device: Motte's monogram]|—|

London:|Printed for B. Motte and C. Bathurst,|at the Middle-Temple-Gate, Fleetstreet.|MDCCXXXVI.

12mo.      Sig.: A—I, A—C, in 12's.
Pp.: [1]—216; [1]—67 [misprinted 97]; 5 pp. [book list].

This is a reprint of the contents of the octavo so-called "Third Volume" of 1732 (Book No. 276). The prose occupies sigs. A—I; the poems, sigs. A—C.

In this volume head- and tail-pieces are used, but not decorated initials.

The titlepage and the contents of this volume do not consort. This titlepage should accompany the contents of the "Last Volume" of 1728 [1727], Book No. 196.

On the assumption that the printer (or editor) interchanged the places of the titles "Last Volume" and "Third Volume," I infer that there should be a "Third Volume" in this set of 12mos which were printed with head- and tail-pieces, and that this "Third Volume" titlepage would accompany the contents of the "Last Volume," octavo, of 1728 [1727], Book No. 196.

See the notes to Book Nos. 286, 287.

The "Last Volume" and the "Third Volume" got badly confused in their contents in the edition of 1733.

440.

Variant b.

Miscellanies.|The|Last Volume.| . . .

There should be a "Last Volume"—reprinting the contents of Book No. 196,—in this "printer's rule" edition, I infer, but I have not seen a copy. See, also, the notes to the Book Nos. 286, 287.

It uses printer's rules instead of head and tail-pieces.

Miscellanies,|In|Prose and Verse.|The Fifth and Sixth Volumes.| Which with the other four already printed,| the Drapier's Letters, Gulliver's Travels,|and three Tatler's compleat this Author's|Works.| —|Vol. V.|—|[Ornament]|=|

London:|Printed for T. Woodward at the half Moon|between the Temple Gates, and Charles|Davis, in Pater-noster-Row. 1736.

12mo.

Volumes V and VI reprint the contents of "Volume the Fifth" of 1735. They were evidently intended to be sold with the four volumes of Motte's Miscellanies, in 12mo, as a six-volume set.

These Volumes V and VI contain nothing by Pope.

There was another edition of Vols. V-VI, dated 1738; cf., also, under the year 1742.

441.

Poems, A Chosen Collection, Viz. [12 titles in two columns] — [Ornament] —

Printed and Sold By the Booksellers of London and Edinburgh.

8vo.

A made-up volume.

A specially prepared titlepage for a made-up collection of octavo pamphlets.

The ornament on the titlepage is the same as that on the titlepages of the separate octavo editions of the four Epistles of the Essay on Man, 1733–34.

The twelve pieces named on the titlepage are:

1. Man of Taste, 1733.
2. Essay on Man, 1733–33–33–34.
3. Use of Riches, 1732.
4. First Satire, Second Book . . . , 1733.
5. Epistle to Arbuthnot, 1734.
6. Sober Advice . . . , n. d.
7. Chiron to Achilles, 1732.
8. Achilles to Chiron [half-title only].
9. A View of the Town, 1735.
10. Advice to a Lady, 1733.
11. Verses to the Imitator . . . , 1733.
12. Of Verbal Criticism, 1733.

Two of the pamphlets carry advertisements of Allan Ramsay's shop in Edinburgh. See the note under Book No. 353.

Query: Is this the first Edinburgh imprint for a Pope book?

1737

Book Nos. 448-475c
Piece Nos. 212-216

The important months in the publishing season of 1737 were marked by the Imitation of Horace's Ode to Venus in March, the Second Epistle of the Second Book in April, the long-promised "authorized edition" of the Letters (in quarto and large and small folios) on May 19, and the First Epistle of the Second Book on May 25. The booksellers Dodsley and Cooper were now principal among Pope's publishers but not to the exclusion of Gilliver and Lintot.

No piece is numbered "214."

443. March 9 (Gaa).

London:|Printed for J. Wright, and Sold by J. Roberts|
in Warwick-lane, MDCCXXXVII.|(Price Six Pence.)

Folio.      Sig.: 1 leaf; B-C, in 2's.
Pp.: 2 pp.; [1]-7; [8, blank].

Roberts is probably again a mere figure-head publisher. The owner of the copyright was John Wright. Registration at Stationers' Hall was on March 8, 1736—E-C, III, 413 (type error for 173½?). Copyright probably passed to Dodsley and Cooper, who included the poem in their small octavo Works, Vol. II, Part II, May 1, 1739.

There could easily have been a half-title preceding the title-leaf, or a blank leaf at the end. But I have found no record of more than the five leaves, as in my copies. See the description of the octavo edition, next infra.

Latin and English are on opposite (facing) pages.

Piece No. 212.

London:|Printed for J. Wright, and Sold by J. Roberts|
in Warwick-lane, MDCCXXXVII.

Half-title: Two Odes Of Horace Imitated.

8vo (in half-sheets).      Sig.: 1 leaf; A-B, in 4's; C, 3 leaves.
Pp.: 2 pp.; [1]-22.

The half-title is sig. C4, folded back.

Horace's Latin and Pope's English are on opposite (facing) pages,
pp. 2-7.

Page 8 is an "Advertisement," explaining the poem that follows.

Pages 8-14 contain "Ode On the Model of Horace, Book IV.
Ode I."

Pages 15-22 contain Horace's ode, Book I, Ode XXIV, and an imitation of it in English.

The English author of pp. 8-22 is anonymous.

445. March?

446. April 1–5.

The London Magazine.

[As supra.]

P. 158, March number [quoted from the Whitehall Evening Post].—Horace, Lib. IV. Ode I. To Venus.

This version contains a reading not recorded in E-C, III, 413ff.
Line 37:—

“But why? ah Patty, still too dear!

P. 159.—“Said to be added by Mr. Pope. What are the falling rills . . .” [eight lines of verse].

These lines are added, as a conclusion, to Dr. Ibbot's “A Fit of the Spleen.” A variant version of them is the concluding portion of “To Mr. Gay,” as given in E-C, IV, 492–493.

The first and last leaves are a quarter-sheet.

The mention of the "Colonel" and the absence of a printer's name make this edition appear to be a pirated one. The poem opens: "Dear Colonel, Cobham's and your country's friend." See further E-C, III, 379, note 1.

Two volumes. Vol. I:—

12mo (in half-sheets).      Sig.: 2 leaves; A, a, in 6's; b, 5 leaves;
B-Z, Aa-Ee, in 6's.

Pp.: 2 pp.; [i]-ii; [i]-xxxiv; [1]-313; 11 pp. [Errata and Index].

Vol. II:—      Sig.: 2 leaves; B-Z, Aa-Ff, in 6's.

Pp.: 2 pp.; [i]-ii; [1]-326; 10 pp. [Errata and Index].

The two volumes reprint articles, poems, or extracts from the Grub-street Journal, from No. 1, Jan. 8, 1730, to No. 138, Aug. 24, 1732.

Such pieces within those years as have been attributed to Pope have been listed, supra.

The charge of certain contemporaries that Pope was concerned in the publication of the Grub-street Journal is discussed (Preface, pp. xxiv ff.) and vigorously denied in language that sounds ambiguous to a modern ear, as thus, for example: "Having done full justice to this Gentleman [i. e., Pope] and his particular friends, in relation to the few Pieces imagined to come from their hands, which are distinguished in this Collection by the Letter A; we ought to do justice likewise to ourselves, . . ."

Copyright was entered at Stationers' Hall on May 18 (E-C, I, lxxiii).

The date of publication given in E-C, V, 291, is May 18; in Straus's Dodsley, p. 318, June 25; Aitken (Gaa, p. 31) quotes from the advertisement in the Daily Post: "None of the edition in quarto will be to be sold, the whole number being subscribed for. Some of the large folio may be had at a guinea, the small at half a guinea." Allen had offered to bear the expense of printing; cf. E-C, V, 291.

The owner of the copyright was Dodsley. Pope's "own edition" had been threatened and promised as far back as 1735; and three quarters of the book had been printed by November 6, 1736 (see Pope's letter to Allen).

The vignette portrait is a profile facing to the observer's right. "Amicitiae Causa—J. Richardson f." It is Grolier No. 34.

The volume contains: half-title leaf; title-leaf; Preface, 9 pp.; Contents, 21 pp.; half-title leaf; and Letters I-L; LII-CXI; CXI-CXXII; CXXI-CLXXXVIII; CLXXXIX-CLXLI; XCII.

This is the first edition to supply a Contents listing the letters.

The letters are a reprint of the Letters of 1735, with additions.

There is no letter numbered 51. Two successive letters are numbered CXI. Two letters are numbered 121, and two 122; the first pair (CXXI-CXXII) are on the starred, and inserted, sheet *Dd. Since all four letters 121-122, 121-122, are accounted for in the Contents, it follows that the starred sheet *Dd was printed earlier than the preliminary group of sheets (sigs. b-e).

The concluding sheet and half-sheet (sigs. Ss and Tt) were decided upon after all the rest of the book had been printed off. They contain four letters, numbered CLXXXIX, CLXL, CLXLI, and XCII (for 189, 190, 191, 192); and begin with this note at the top of page 322 (verso of sig. Ss1): "P.S. Since the foregoing Sheets were printed off, the following Letters having been published without the Consent of their Writers, we have added them, tho' not in the order of time." Thus the four letters purported to be reprinted from Curril's Literary Correspondence series. The first two were. They are here numbered CLXXXIX, Pope to Swift, August, 1723, and CLXL (error for 190), Bolingbroke to Swift, undated (postscript to the preceding). The last two of the four letters are here printed for the first time, so far as I have been able to learn. They are numbered CLXLI (for 191), Swift to Pope, Sept. 20, 1723, and XCII (for 192), Pope to Swift, December 10 [or 14], 1725. When Curril reprinted them in the Literary Correspondence, V, 65-71 (second series), he offered no intimation that he was the first to print them.

The sheets that were originally printed to be the concluding portion of this book (instead of the present sigs. Ss, in 4's, and Tt in 2's) were withheld in the warehouse until 1741, when they were given a place in the quarto Works, In Prose, Vol. II, as group u, i. e., sigs. 1 stub and 3 leaves [doubtless sig. Ss]; Tt, in 4's; Uu, in 2's—or, pp.: [323]-339; [340, blank]—"Thoughts On Various Subjects." They contain on p. 339 an Errata list, which corrects errors in this volume of 1737.

See the notes on the various editions of the Letters in 1741, infra.

The quarto sheets of 1737 were apparently printed off before the folio sheets; see the notes on the L. P. folio, infra.

Against the comments of Johnson, Bowles, and Elwin upon the want of popularity of Pope's Letters from 1737 onwards (see E.-C. VI, xxxiii–xxxiv), contrast the number of editions, 1737–1742, yet to be listed.

The "Translation of a Prayer of Brutus" is here first printed among Pope's Works, being taken over from Aaron Thompson's The British History . . . 1718, q. v. in "Additions" infra.

"An Imitation of Martial's Epigram," on page 137, was first printed in the Poems on Several Occasions, 1717; see Piece No. 67a in Additions and Corrections, infra, "Page 71, No. Add. 88a."

No piece is numbered "214."

A copy in Professor Sherburn's library.

Like Variant a in all respects but one: the sig. B sheet was reprinted from a new setting of type for this Variant b, in order to alter the date of the first of the Letters from 1724 to 1704. Copy was followed closely, but a larger font was used for footnotes, as may be seen by comparing the B sheet with later sheets.

This sheet was probably not printed off till December or later.

Letters | Of | Mr. Alexander Pope, | And Several of his Friends.|[Vignette: as in the quarto]|

London:|Printed by J. Wright for J. Knapton in Ludgate-street, L. Gilliver in Fleetstreet, J. Brindley in New Bond|street, and R. Dodsley in Pall-mall, MDCCXXXVII.

Title in red and black.

Half-title: The Works Of Mr. Alexander Pope, In Prose. A Head and tail-pieces, as in the quarto.

L. P. folio. Sig.: A, b-i, C-Z, Aa-Zz, Aaa, *Aaa-*Bbb, Bbb-Zzz, Aaaa-Hhhh, in 2's.

Pp.: 36 pp.; [9]–196; 189–307; [308, blank].

The folio sheets were printed, in the main, from the setting of type used for the quarto, I think, and subsequent to the quarto. There was some resetting of type, but slight, so far as I have been able to detect. Of course, the forms were opened for the purpose of altering signature marks and managing ornaments, besides increasing (commonly) the number of lines on a page.

For the titlepage, type was reset for the imprint, if not for the entire page. The folio has Ludgatestreet and Bond|street without hyphens: the quarto, with hyphens.

In the Preface and Contents (sigs. b-i, no page numbers), the lines on the page and the number of lines per page are the same in folio and quarto; but there are several slight divergences, the principal one being an error Ercm in the quarto (sig. c 4, recto, line 4 from the bottom) corrected to From in the folio (sig. f2, recto).

On pp. 27-28, a line containing Rochefoucault and the following three lines were reset for the folio to change the spelling of the quarto (p. 29) Rochefoucaut (without an l)—as in the Letters of 1735 and in the octavo Works, Vol. V, of 1737 and of 1739; but Rochefoucault in the octavo Works, Vol. IV, Part I of 1742, which Pope and Warburton may be supposed to have supervised).

On page 72, the seventh line from the bottom was reset (or re-spaced) to correct a syllable to rence, which in the quarto had been misspelled rencee (p. 77).

Pages 189-196 (first series), the starred sheets *Aaa-*Bbb, contain the same two letters as the starred sheet *Dd of the quarto, but they are inserted at a relatively earlier place in the volume, following letter No. 116 and consequently being numbered CXVII-CXVIII, which are the two repeated letter numbers in the folio. The table of Contents was printed from page-forms prepared for the quarto, and does not accord with the sequence and numbering in the text of the folio; some slight corrections were made, and some lines were respaced or reset, but not many, I think.

The sheets at the end (sigs. Ffff-Hhhh) again show page by page the same lines and the same number of lines per page in the folio as in the quarto. On page 301, the lines are in correct order, but in the quarto on the equivalent page (326), a line that should be at the bottom is misplaced at the top. These final sheets offer reasonably substantial evidence that most of the sheets of the quarto and folio were printed from the same setting of type and that the quarto was printed first—in this way:—Originally, in the quarto, sheet Ss had its contents thus: leaf 1, recto, the conclusion of letter 188, verso blank; leaf 2, recto, half-title to “Thoughts,” verso blank; leaves 3-4, the first portion of “Thoughts on Various Subjects.” That sheet was abstracted and stored for use in 1741. Type was reset for the last page of letter 188, which was followed immediately (new-printed sig. Ss1, verso), by the P.S. note "Since the foregoing Sheets..." and letter No. CLXXXIX. The folio had a blank page (296) at the end of sheet Eeee, for no page of which, consequently, did type need to be reset. There is not the slightest difficulty in perceiving that page 321 of the quarto (sig. Ss1, recto) and the equivalent matter in the folio, on pages 294-295 (sig. Eeee 1, verso, and Eeee2, recto), are from different settings of type.

Pope considered the L. P. folio the best impression of the three sizes (Gaa, p. 31).

My copy, trimmed and bound, measures  $14 \frac{6}{16} \times 9 \frac{2}{16}$  inches.

Notes made upon the Large Paper folio (next book supra) are equally true of the small folio.

My copy, trimmed and bound, measures  $11 \frac{9}{16} \times 7 \frac{1}{16}$  inches.

The large and the small folios were printed from the same forms, altered only so far as to change the ornaments, cheaper ones being used for the small folio. The L. P. folio sold at a guinea, the small folio at half a guinea.

Folio.      Sig.: 2 leaves; B-G, in 2's.
 Pp.: [i]-iv; [1]-23; [24, blank].

According to E-C, III, 345, Dodsley registered copyright in this poem on March 6, 1737.

Two small bits of evidence serve to show, I think, that we have here the clearest instance so far encountered of holding type in forms for a length of time. In all copies of this folio that I have examined the text and footnotes are impressed from the same setting of type. But the marks at the bottom of pages which designate at what press a sheet was printed show some variation; yet each sheet falls into one of two groups. Thus, the first sheet bears two such marks, either a 2 on page iii and a dagger on page iv, or else a 2 on page iii and a 1 on page iv; the sig. E sheet bears only one mark, which is on p. 15 (sig. E2, recto) and is either a 1 or a dagger. On page 21 (sig. G1, recto) all copies have footnote 36 misnumbered as 37.

The second piece of evidence is two items from Woodfall's account book (cf. Notes and Queries, 1S., XI, 377f.). "May 12, 1737. Printing the first Epistle of the Second Book of Horace Imitated, folio, double size, Poetry, No. 2000, and 150 fine,* 7 shts. at 27s. pr. sht.—£9-09-0." And another entry: "July 21, 1737. Printing 500 Mr. Pope's first Epistle of Second Book of Horace, 7 shts. at 11s. pr. sht.—£3-17-0." The "27s. per sheet" of the first entry includes both composition and press work; the "11s. per sheet" of the second entry cannot include more than press work—which must have been done from forms held over from May 12 to July 21. (Concerning type kept standing, see de Castro's "Printing of Fielding's Works" in The Library [magazine], Ser. 4, Vol. I, 1920-1921.)

*Note.—The reading in N. and Q. is ". . . fine and shts at . . ." which means nothing. I have emended the and to a comma and 7, as appears in the second entry.

[Title-leaf not preserved. An abortive edition?]

What looks like an abortive edition, and perhaps a copyright tangle adjusted, is indicated by an entry in Woodfall's account-book (Notes and Queries, 1S., XI, 377): "Mr. Lawton Gilliver and Co., Drs. June 15, 1737. Printing Epistles of Horace, 3 shts.  $\frac{1}{2}$ , cr. 8vo., L. Prim., No. 1500, and 100 fine, 28s. per sht.—£4-18-0. Altering the last sht. to a half sht.—£0-05-0." These sheets contained the First and Second Epistles of the Second Book, copyright in which two poems had been registered by Dodsley, and the First Ode of the Fourth Book, in which Wright owned the copyright. Apparently Gilliver and Clarke had these sheets printed of a size to accompany Gilliver's small octavo Works, Vol. II (several editions in 1735 and 1736); but Dodsley interfered and had the sheets held in the printer's shop. Woodfall records that his bill was "Paid by Mr. Pope, June 2, 1738." The sheets were stored in the warehouse until they were used as part of the Works, Vol. II, Part II (May 1, 1739, q. v.).

Pp.: 22 pp.; [1]-2; 20 pp.; [1]-159; [160, blank].

Though Roberts's name is in the imprint (and is also used in the newspaper advertisements) as it had been in May-June of 1735, this edition was, I think, really prepared by Cooper (or possibly by Dodsley). That he had Pope's assistance in the preparation looks not improbable, but cannot on the present showing of evidence be stated to be certainly true. The book was probably printed in the shop of J. Wright; cf. the ornaments generally, but especially that on the titlepage, which re-appeared later on the titlepage of the Dodsley-Cooper Works, Vol. II, Part II (May 1, 1739). It is a reprint not of the quarto of 1737 but of the Letters of 1735, revised to account for changes made by Pope in the quarto. Cooper, owning the copyright of the 1735 edition, was almost compelled to a reprint by Cull's published challenge (see supra). Elwin noted (E-C, I, lxxii-lxxiii) that in the Vol. VI the half-sheet *I (pp. 217-224, misnumbered for 117-124) contains the two letters of the *Dd sheet of the quarto, deduced thence Pope's complicity, and animadverted upon his baseness.

Whether the title-leaf was printed as sig. A1 or as a separate leaf does not yet appear.

"The Booksellers to the Reader" (2 pp., sig. a1, recto and verso) is possibly of Pope's own writing. It is reprinted in E-C, VI, xliif. How Elwin learned that it was printed earlier than the quarto Preface I do not know. In it two statements are important, first, that an asterisk in the Contents indicates a letter which is genuine but not in Pope's "own edition" (i. e., the quarto of 1737), and a double asterisk a letter "in no Impression except this"; and, second, that "We have prefix'd the Author's Preface; and...have put it into the First Person (as it stood originally in his Specimen) instead of the Third (as he since alter'd it) lest future times shou'd be led to mistake it for some other Editor's." The meaning of "Specimen" is not clear; it may possibly refer to a subscription Proposals sheet, but I know of no such Proposals extant (Pope's letter to Allen, Nov. 6, 1736, may be compared). Note that "Booksellers" is plural in this "to the Reader," though only one is named in the imprint.

Ten letters are marked with double asterisks. They are not so noted in E-C, because Elwin did not have a copy of this edition to use until too late.

A "Catalogue of the Surreptitious... Editions" appears here for the first time.

The price was 6sh. for the two volumes.

The advertisement in the Grub-street Journal, No. 391, states: "In this Impression are contained all the Letters of the Author's own Edition exactly printed from thence, with all that are genuine from the other Impressions, more correct, and several never before printed." On the assumption that Cooper was the publisher of this edition, it looks to me that the constant repetition of "The Author's own Edition" was not only a good selling-point, but was also an indication of a feeling of miff on Cooper's part, because Pope had taken the Letters out of his hands;—the copyright in the quarto and folios was lodged in Dodsley's hands, though what it was worth as against Cooper's copyright recorded in June of 1735, I do not see; and though four booksellers were named in the imprint of the quarto and folios, Cooper was not one of them. The several letters "never before printed" may be explained, furthermore, as a douceur to heal Cooper's wounds.

Title and collation are inferred.

Woodfall printed 2150 copies of the First Epistle of the Second Book by May 12, 1737; and another lot of 500 copies by July 21. Under the date May 25, supra, the two printings are commented upon. To distinguish between them with certainty is not yet possible. Examination of a copy on Fine Paper (one of the 150 copies) may give certitude. The five copies I have examined meticulously are on ordinary paper without water-mark. As a means to further progress I am setting up tentatively this distinction: the first printing (Impression A) shows for its printing-press marks on page iv a dagger, p. 3 a roman one (I), p. 15 a one, p. 22 a dagger; the July printing (Impression B) on p. iv a one, p. 3 a dagger, p. 15 a dagger, and p. 22 a one. (On other pages marks are the same. And the possibility that a given copy may have some sheets from one printing, some from the other must be allowed for.) A very minute detail is some evidence in the case. Impression A shows on page 21 a superscript numeral 37 used three times,—in the seventeenth line of the poem and in its footnote (in both of which cases it is an error for 36) and in the catchword <sup>37</sup>Charles. When in July the press-man remarked his sheet G forms for Impression B (changing from a dagger to a one), he noticed that three 37's could not be right, and so—having only two page-forms before him (G1 recto, p. 21, and G2 verso, p. [24, blank])—he inferred the catchword was misnumbered, and changed it to <sup>38</sup>Charles, though the next page (22) very properly starts off <sup>37</sup>Charles. This reasoning is, of course, not inescapable, for the press-man at work in May may have made the alteration in the catchword. But in the octavo reprint (presumably in May) the error was caught and properly corrected, two 37's being changed to 36's and <sup>37</sup>Charles being allowed to stand.

[Epitaph on Nathaniel Pigott]

Pope wrote the epitaph which is on the monument in Twickenham Church. It is quoted in E-C, IX, 122, note 3. Pigott died July 5, 1737, aged 76.

Not improbably the epitaph was printed in some contemporary periodical or book, but I have not found it.

 Pp.:

I have not learned of the preservation of a copy of this edition; and whether the edition was ever actually published or not, I cannot say. This edition was a piracy, prepared by James Watson, who "assumed for the occasion the name of T. Johnson." Dodsley entered suit against Watson in Chancery on November 25, won, and stopped Watson, who sold for £25 his sheets (delivering 1646 "copies") to Dodsley, and gave bond not to invade Pope's rights further. See E-C, I, lxxiif; Straus's Dodsley, pp. 47-49; and the T. Johnson series, Book Nos. 103, 126, etc.; and 391, 408, 419, 420.

Pp.: 16 pp.; [1]–234; [235–236, blank].

The title on a single leaf and the excision of sig. A1 (only a stub left) easily raise the speculation that we may have here a specimen of the “1646 copies” of the Watson-T. Johnson pirated edition. Almost certainly we have not. I have three sets of the two volumes, all alike. And when Cooper reprinted the two volumes in 1739 he followed copy closely on this edition; printer’s ornaments in this and the 1739 edition are the same, in the same positions; in the 1742 editions, called “Vol. IV. Part I” and “Vol. IV. Part II,” text and some ornaments are again the same.

This edition rearranges the grouping and sequence of letters, but as compared with the Roberts edition (Book No. 461) there are no new ones. In this edition no use is made of double asterisks.

On the titlepage the vignette is by Richardson. Dodsley's name is misspelled Dodesley.

This titlepage was prepared presumably for those who wished to bind into one volume the quarto pieces they had purchased separately (cf. Gilliver's advertisements in 1735). There are two copies in the Lefferts collection. A copy in the Library of Cambridge University contains the two Dialogues of 1738 and the "Postscript" of the "Notes" of the quarto Works of 1735, as well as the Essay on Man, etc. One Lefferts copy has a frontispiece portrait, "S. Book Nos. 476-503

Piece Nos. 217-222

Through the first half of 1738 Pope was very active. In January he brought out the Sixth Epistle of the First Book, in March the First Epistle of the First Book, in May the first "Dialogue" of One Thousand Seven Hundred and Thirty Eight, in June the Universal Prayer, and in July "Dialogue II" of One Thousand Seven Hundred and Thirty Eight. In May, also, Cooper the bookseller took advantage of Pope's prestige to reissue under the title of A Sermon against Adultery a set of unsold sheets of Sober Advice, which poem had been published in 1734; whether Cooper's action was with Pope's consent or knowledge is not now known. The other Horatian satires were reprinted in various shapes, and together with the quite popular two "Dialogues" exerted much influence against Walpole, who was being gradually isolated and forced into an untenable position. Pope was but the leader among leading men of letters in attacks upon him. "If no Minister has fared worse at the hands of poets or historians, . . ." J. R. Green begins a sentence.

Half-title: One Thousand Seven Hundred And Thirty Eight.

Folio. Sig.: 2 leaves; B-D, in 2's.
Pp.: 4 pp.; [1]-10; 1 p. [book list]; 1 p. [blank].

Pope registered the copyright as his own on May 12, 1738.
First Edition, Variant a, probably.

Of this poem there are three varieties (Edition A, Variants a, b, c) of the folio edition without a date at the foot of the page. A fourth folio issue (Edition B, see under August, infra) bears a date in the imprint.

Note.—Two undated folio varieties have been known for some years; three are differentiated here for the first time.

At the foot of the titlepage the price words ONE SHILLING are in capital letters throughout.

Lines 1-164, correctly numbered.

The book list on the penultimate page, headed "Books lately Printed for T. Cooper," names six books:—

Printed for T. Cooper, names six Books
1. The First Satire of the Second Book...
2. Sober Advice from Horace...
3. Horace his Epistle to Augustus...
4. The First Epistle of the First Book...
5. The Sixth Epistle of the First Book...
6. The Works of Alexander Pope, Esq; Vol. 2. containing his Epistles and Satires.

Some distinguishing marks are:

On the titlepage.—ONE SHILLING in capital letters throughout.

On the half-title.—The printer's rules are  $3\frac{13}{16}$  inches apart.

On page 6.—The catchword is These (error for There).

On page 9.—The signature mark D falls under he of her.

First Edition, Variant b, probably.

Lines 1-164.

Some distinguishing marks are:

Titlepage.—The words One Shilling have been reset in upper and lower case letters. The e of Price falls under the e of the in the line above it.

Half-title.—The printer's rules are  $3 \frac{11}{16}$  inches apart.

Edition A. Variant c.

One Thousand | Seven Hundred | And | Thirty Eight.| A |
Dialogue | Something like Horace. | — | By Mr. Pope.| — |
[Ornament: basket, etc.]|=|

London:|Printed for T. Cooper at the Globe in Pater-noster-row. (Price One Shilling.)

Half-title: One Thousand Seven Hundred And Thirty Eight.

Folio. Sig.: 2 leaves; B-D, in 2's.

Pp.: 4 pp.; [1]-10; 1 p. [book list]; 1 p. [blank].

First Edition, Variant c, probably.

At the foot of the titlepage the words "One Shilling" have capital initial letters only.

Lines 1-164.

Some distinguishing marks are:

Titlepage.—The words One Shilling are in upper and lower case letters. But the whole titlepage was reset. The fourth line, THIRTY-EIGHT, is stretched out so that the first T is well to the left of I in the DIALOGUE of the fifth line; and the final T of line 4 is well to the right of U in DIALOGUE. In the bottom line c of Price is under the e of the in the line above it.

Half-title.—The printer's rules are  $3 \frac{10}{16}$  inches apart.

These three Variants are from the same setting of type in the main, particularly the text of the poem. Thus on page 8, in all three varieties, the same battered letter, in the same position relative to the letters in the lines above and below it, shows in the long s of may'st in line 116; in D of Doctrine, line 126; and in the first o of low-born, line 127.

For the half-title there were three settings of type.

For the titlepage the setting used for Variant a was altered (One Shilling being reset) for printing Variant b; but type was reset for the whole page for Variant c.

The poem was printed, I think, by John Wright. No record is known of the number of copies printed. We can only guess how the three variants came into existence. If accidents, such as the piecing of forms, caused the differences, we may expect a copy to turn up that combines the titlepage of Variant a with the sig. D sheet of Variant c. If examination of a large number of copies reveals no such combination of sheets, then we may reckon that there were three genuine "issues"; that is to say, the poem proved more popular than the bookseller had anticipated, for after the first impression had been sold off, he had to order a second impression from the printer, for which certain slight changes were made in his forms by the printer; and then, similarly, a third impression had to be ordered. In the one case—hypothesis of accident—the popularity of the poem would be measured by an index of, say, 2,000 copies. In the other case—three successive impressions—the index would be, say, 2,000 copies plus a second impression of, say, 1,000 copies plus a third impression of, say, 1,000 copies, a total within about two months of 4,000 copies.

The date is supplied me by Professor Sherburn.

This is merely a title-edition. A new-printed title-leaf was pre-fixed to "remainder" sheets of the second of the two editions of Sober Advice from Horace published by Boreman (Book No. 356).

What happened was probably pretty much as follows:—In 1734, Pope had John Wright print off the Sober Advice first folio, and through Wright, as "agency," sold the copyright to Brindley, Boreman, Payne, and Corbet. He never afterwards made direct use of any of those four booksellers as his publisher. Sober Advice sold off, and Boreman and the others had another edition in folio printed, but, overguessing the market, had copies left on hand unsold.—In May-June, 1735, Cooper was brought into the circle of Pope's publishers through the Letters. In 1737 Dodsley began to be important as Pope's publisher (taking approximately the place Gilliver had held for eight years). Dodsley and Cooper entered into a close association, so close that several pieces in which Dodsley owned the copyright were printed with Cooper's name alone in the imprint (cf. this Bibliography and Straus's Dodsley). That association may have been formed when Pope placed the copyright of his "own edition" of the Letters (quarto and folio) of 1737 in Dodsley's hands, and Dodsley preferred amity with Cooper to copyright war. By the spring of 1738 these two booksellers had published four or more of Pope's poems (besides the Letters), had one or two more in immediate prospect, and were most likely hoping for further favors from the popular poet. The prospect of issuing an additional volume of his Works must have come within their view, what with the store of pieces already gathered and those in hope. If copyrights in any of Pope's poems were in the market, these men were in a normal position to wish to buy them. One of them, nominally Cooper, purchased or in some manner took over the copyright in Sober Advice from Brindley, Boreman, et al. for future use, and at the same time took over the unsold sheets of the poem (Book No. 356). In the book list "Books lately Printed for T. Cooper" at the end of the edition of "1738" published on May 16, Cooper names the Sober Advice from Horace as for sale at his shop. Within a few days after the printing of that book-list leaf, Cooper bethought him of the sales value of a new title, and by May 26 he had the Sermon single-leaf title struck off. To dispose of his stock, under this title, he put on a brief newspaper advertising campaign in May of 1738.

Copies of the Sermon against Adultery appear to be uncommon, if not rare. Every(?) copy is made up of the new-printed single-leaf title prefixed to sheets of Boreman's second impression (Folio II, Book No. 356). In each instance the title-leaf is of a stock of paper that is shown by the water-mark to be different from the stock used in the rest of the pamphlet. In Folio I (December 1734) and in Folio II (January 1735) in each specimen the title-leaf and the last leaf are conjugate, a single "sheet" of paper; each leaf contains one of the pair of water-marks which "mark" a sheet of this stock (see notes under Book No. 356). In each copy of the Sermon against so far inspected the last leaf contains one or other of this same pair of water-marks: the title-leaf contains no water-mark or a different one.—In 1734–1735 there was an octavo edition of Sober Advice: no octavo edition of the Sermon against is known. In 1734–1735 there were newspaper advertisements of Sober Advice, none of the Sermon against: in 1738 there were newspaper advertisements of the Sermon against (none, so far as I have learned, of Sober Advice), but in book-lists (catalogues) the Sober Advice was announced as on sale also. In Ireland the poem was reprinted only under the title of Sober Advice. When the poem was collected by Dodsley and Cooper into the canon of the small octavo edition of the Works, "Vol. II. Part II" (the volume is dated 1738 but was published in 1739), it was denuded of both titles and of all sarcastic notes, and was slightly revised.

The Sermon against is listed in the Catalogue of the Ashley Library as the first edition of the poem; the two Boreman impressions of Sober Advice are listed, Book No. 356 as the second edition, and Book No. 347 as the third edition. All facts known to me are against such a sequence, and are in favor of a diametrically opposite sequence, as here presented, Sober Advice Folio I, Sober Advice Folio II, and (three years later) the Sermon against.

The date on the titlepage is a misprint for 1738.

The word Four is not included in the title, but this is, I think, the book listed in the May number of the London Magazine as "Four Epistles of Horace imitated by Mr. Pope. Printed for Mess. Knapton and Gilliver, price 5s."

The last sheet—the Ode, pp. 1-8, no sig. mark—may not be an integral part of the book. It occurs, however, in all copies I have examined.

The title of this book is the one that could not be found by the writer of the note on Woodfall's account-book (Notes and Queries, 1S., XI, 377f.). How to explain the MS. copy in Woodfall's possession over against Wright's name in this imprint, I cannot say. Mayhap the unknown title of the sheets of June 15, 1737 (q. v.) was so worded, and Wright was instructed to repeat it.

The pieces contained in this volume are five:—

 Pages 2-23.—Latin and English text of the First Epistle...

Another copy (in the Wrenn Library) belonged to the Earl of Orrery, who had it bound in 1741 with pieces by other poets, all apparently dedication or presentation copies.

1739

Piece Nos. 223-229

This year Pope gave over to editing and republishing his own poems. The small octavo Works, Vol. II. Part II was important because it contained six new poems, though none of the six was of great consequence. There is reason to believe Pope found pleasure in making up several copies of his quarto Works of 1735 on thick paper into two-volume sets, marking them Vol. II and Vol. III; one such set was presented to the Prince of Wales. He spent much energy, too, in the effort to procure the return to him of all the letters he had written to Swift. As for composition, his vein had been almost worked out; he wrote little (see the note on Book No. 536). In 1738 and 1739 Warburton defended the Essay on Man from the attack of Crousaz, first in a magazine and later in book form; he and the poet met personally in April of 1740, and Warburton became thereafter Pope's guiding friend.

Group r is a title-leaf struck off for this volume.

Group s is a quarto reprint of the two Dialogues of "1738."

Group t is a copy of Book No. 490.

This is probably the book meant to be referred to in the list of Straus's Dodsley and in the January lists of the contemporary magazines. Bm lists a volume under this title, and annotates it: "4 pts," i. e., four parts which may mean the four sig.-page sequences or may mean three other pieces bound in.

It is possible that the poems and the sequence of poems may vary in different copies.

The reader has doubtless observed that Dodsley and Cooper published their pieces in two forms, folio and octavo, instead of in three or four. This quarto was prepared to supply the needs of purchasers of the quarto Works, Volumes I, II, and III (Letters of 1737). On the verso of the title-leaf (group r) is printed this notice: "N. B. The former Works of this Author having been publish'd in Quarto, it was thought fit to print These also which he has written since, in the same Volume and Character; to be had separate, for the Conveniency of those who would compleat their Setts."

Group u.—[1]–28.—First and Second Satire of the Second Book.

Group v.—[79]–110.—Second and Fourth Satire of Donne.

Group w.—[150]–159 [misnumbered—should be [151]–160].—Nine epitaphs.

The pieces contained in this volume are the same and in nearly the same order as in the Works, II, of 1736, with slight exceptions. The omissions are two epitaphs, on Kneller and Newton (in group w). The additions are the preface (in group r), as in the editions of 1735; and five congratulatory poems (group s), by C., J. R., R. D., a Lady, and anonymous, not in any preceding edition. There have been slight revisions; the Epistles that follow the Essay on Man are numbered in one group I—XI, not in two groups of I—IV and I—VII as in the edition of 1736; no half-title repeats the expressions "The Second Book" and "The Third Book" used in the edition of 1736; and one half-title (page 1 of group u) is revised to read "Satires and Epistles Of Horace...," though no Horatian Epistle is included here.

Certain discrepancies in catch-words show that the editorial plan was altered between the time of printing the sheets and the date of publication. On page 158, of group t, the catch-word is One, though the next printed page (the first in group u) begins Satires; probably One Thousand Seven Hundred and Thirty Eight was originally intended to follow group t. On page 28, the end of group u, the catch-word is The First, though the first page of group v begins with Satires; presumably the First Epistle of the First Book was originally intended to follow group u. On page 110, the end of group v, the catch-word is The Third, though the first page of group w begins with Epitaphs; apparently the Third Satire of Donne was meant to follow group v.

All the pieces thus planned for but held out were reserved for use in the Works, Vol. II. Part II, dated 1738 but published in May of 1739 (see Book No. 507, infra).

After this time Gilliver's name disappeared from editions of the Works. Dodsley and Cooper became the publishers of the poems he had ushered into the world, and it is inferrible that they bought his copyrights (see the notes under the Sermon against, Book No. 489). Lintot, however, continued to hold his copyrights.

As to date, I think this is the book meant by the announcement in the May list (1739) of the Gentleman's Magazine: "An additional Volume to Mr. Pope's Work. Printed for R. Dodsley. price 3s." The price points to a small octavo. The notice that is part of the title—"Containing all such Pieces... in Octavo"—is a revision of the "N. B." on the verso of the title-leaf of the quarto Poems, and Imitations, which in its turn had been published on January 11, 1739. Straus in his Dodsley lists it as published on May 1, 1740 [error for 1739?].

The book is important, because it is the princeps of several short poems; of some others it embodies revisions, notably of Sober Advice.

It is a patched together volume. Parts of it were printed in shops of different printers.

J. Wright is indicated by the ornaments on the titlepage as the printer of group r. And group r contains a table of contents which shows it was printed after the book was fully planned as it stands.

Woodfall was the printer of group u; at least, the sheets of group u are the only sheets that satisfy Woodfall's description of what he had printed off by June 15, 1737, the abortive edition described under that date, supra. As the sheets of group u appear in this Vol. II, Part II, they show only the stub of a discarded (excised) title or half-title leaf. [The present half-title leaf substitute is the fourth leaf of the preceding half-sheet, sig. B, in 4's.] The 1500 copies of the group u sheets had lain, as Pope's own property, in the warehouse since June 15, 1737, until they were brought out to form part of this book, being probably sold to Dodsley and Cooper for the purpose.

Certain irregularities in signatures and pagination should be noted, though explanation of them eludes me. (I have had opportunity to examine only one copy.) In group v the last two leaves are marked H1 and H2 (pp. 89–92, lines 122–178 of Sober Advice), but, so far as my prying enables me to determine, they are a quarter-sheet (conjugate leaves); page 92 ends with a Finis. Group w contains a starred sheet (*K, 8 leaves) and, in addition, ninth and tenth leaves, unmarked. A star customarily indicates an inserted sheet (or leaf, as the case may be). The starred leaves (sheet *K), then, were prepared to be inserted before or within a regular K sheet. The last two leaves of the group (which are not marked and are not a quarter-sheet but are two separate leaves, I think) are all that remain of that original K sheet; what matter was on the discarded K1–K6 leaves is uncertain. This group w was prepared to be part of the Vol. II of January 29, in which it would have been placed next after group v of that book, which contains on its last page (p. 110) the catch-word The Third, meaning The Third Satire of Donne on the *K sheets of group w of Vol. II, Part II. Oddly enough, the group w (*L) of the January book looks as if it was originally intended to be inserted between the ninth and the tenth leaves of group w of this May book. Why an earlier half-title leaf to the Third Satire, was canceled (only its stub remaining) and a new-printed single leaf half-title (*K1) was substituted for it—a substitute for a substitute—I do not perceive.

Pieces contained in the book are:—

Group r.—Page [i], half-title; [ii], blank; [iii], titlepage; [iv], blank; [i]–iii, Contents; [iv], blank.

Group s.—Page [1], half-title; [2], blank; [3]–9, Dialogue I of 1738; 10–19, Dialogue II; [20], blank.

Group t.—Page [1], half-title; [2], blank; [3]–13, First Epistle of the First Book; 14–21, Sixth Epistle of the First Book; [22], blank; 2 pp., half-title to First Epistle of the Second Book, verso blank.

Note.—The last half-title belongs in typography to group t, but in matter to group u.

Group u.—Stub [excised title or half-title leaf]; pages iii–iv, Advertisement (“The Reflections of Horace...”); [5]–31, First Epistle of the Second Book; [32], blank; [33], halftitle; [34], blank; [35]–53, Second Epistle of the Second Book; [54]–56, First Ode of the Fourth Book.

Group v.—[57], half-title; [58], blank; [59]–71, Sixth Satire of the Second Book; [72]–77, Seventh Epistle of the First Book; [78], blank; [79], half-title; [80], blank; [81]–92, Second Satire of the First Book [i. e., Sober Advice].

Group w.—Page [151?], Third Satire half-title; [152?], eight lines of Donne’s text; stub [of original, excised sig. K1]; [153], twelve lines of Parnell’s text; 154–163 remainder of the Third Satire of Dr. John Donne. Versified by Dr. Parnell, original and “versification” on facing pages (pp. 162, 163 each marked Finis at bottom); [164–166], blank; 1 leaf, half-title (“Miscellanies, By Mr. Pope.”), verso blank; 2 pp., epitaph XI, “On Edmund... Buckingham...”.

Group x.—Pages 161–168, eight short pieces: XII, On Craggs; XIII, For one who would not be buried...; On One who made long Epitaphs; Engraved on the Collar . . .; Macer; Cloe; To Mrs. M. B. on her Birth-day; Universal Prayer.

The Second Satire of the First Book, in group v, is the Sober Advice from Horace; but both phrases “Sober Advice” and “Sermon against Adultery” are avoided; the Latin text is at the foot of the pages; and all footnotes are omitted. In the English text, many names are printed in full, instead of initials; line 55 is revised, “K—” giving place here to “Sir George”; and there are a few revisions in diction.

Parnell’s versification of the “Third Satire of Dr. John Donne” is here a first edition; at least, it had not been included in any edition of his Works. It is printed on the puzzling *K sheet. It follows immediately upon the Sober Advice, and is the only poem in the volume not by Pope. The juxtaposition of the Sober Advice, “Imitated in the Manner of Mr. Pope,” and a poem professedly not by Pope may have been designed to continue the obscurity of the authorship of the Sober Advice. When the book was reprinted (twice in Pope’s lifetime) in 1740 and in 1743, the Sober Advice was included, but Parnell’s poem was omitted. Warburton in his edition of the Works in 1751 reprinted Parnell’s poem, but omitted the Sober Advice.

Epitaph XII, group x, first appeared here under its new title—“XII. On James Craggs, Esq; in Westminster Abbey”—though the six lines of verse had been printed earlier (Book No. 128, Piece No. 77).

Six pieces are here first printed:

223. Group v, pp. 72–77.—The Seventh Epistle Of The First Book Of Horace. Imitated in the Manner of Dr. Swift.

224. Group w, pp. [? 159–160].—On Edmund Duke of Buckingham . . .

225. Group x, p. 162.—For One who would not be buried in Westminster . . . (“Heroes and Kings . . .”)

226. P. 162.—Epigram on One who made long Epitaphs. (“Friend! for your Epitaphs . . .”)

227. P. 162.—Engraved on the Collar of a Dog . . .

228. Pp. 164–165.—Cloe: A Character. “Cloe” is lines 157–180 in modern editions of the Epistle to a Lady (Of the Characters of Women).

508. September 1–5.

The Scots Magazine . . .

[See supra.]

229. P. 360, August number.—On lying in the Earl of Rochester’s bed at Atterbury.

In the Scots Magazine the verses are anonymous. See the entry, infra, under October 1–5, 1739.

509. October 1–5.

The Gentleman’s Magazine.

[As supra.]

P. 490, October number.—Verses left by Mr. Pope, upon his lying in the same Bed which Wilmot, Earl of Rochester, us’d at Atterbury, a Seat of the Duke of Argyle’s, in Oxfordshire, July 9, 1739.

The text is slightly different from that in the Scots Magazine (supra) and that in E–C. Both magazines may be indebted to a newspaper for the poem. E–C knew of no attribution of the lines to Pope earlier than 1776.

The|Works|Of|Alexander Pope, Esq;|—|Vol. I. Part I.|
 —|[4 lines Latin prose.—Tully.]|—|[Ornament]|
 London: Printed for H. Lintot, 1740.

Title in black and red.

Frontispiece: portrait of Pope—G. Vertue S.

Sm. 8vo. Sig.: A, a, in 8's; b, in 4's; B-M, in 8's; N, in 4's.
 Pp.: 4 pp.; [5]—15; 2 pp.; xviii—xxxix; [xl, blank]; [17]—198;
 2 pp. [blank].

The printer was Woodfall.

The date of publication is inferred from his account book: "Nov. 13, 1739. Printing the first vol., Part I. of Pope's Poems, cr. 8vo., L. Prim., No. 2000, and 100 fine, 14 shts at 32s. per sht.—£22-08-0. Title in red and black—0-16-0. Reprinting first sht. red title, No. 50, fine—0-18-0." From the last sentence it looks as if 50 copies on fine paper had titles all in red; I know of no such copy.

On the titlepage the ornament is the same as on the titlepage of Variant a of Lintot's octavo Works, I, 1736. The H. Lintot was Henry, son of Bernard.

The portrait is from the plate used for Variant b of the Works, I, 1736; a different plate was used for Variant a, 1736.

The contents and the sequence of pieces are as in the Works, I, 1736. But type was reset throughout.

The process of breaking up titles into "Vols.—Parts," begun apparently by Dodsley and Cooper with "Vol. II, Part II," which they dated on the titlepage 1738 but published in May of 1739, is continued here by Lintot. He, however, appears not to have published his continuation, "Vol. I, Part II," until December of 1740 (when he gave it a titlepage date of 1741).

Pp.: 16 pp.; [1]-151; [152, blank]; 145-236; 4 pp., blank.

Some distinguishing marks are:

Vol. V.—Titlepage has Works in red so spaced as not to reach from margin to margin; no period between Vol and V.

Sig. A3, p. [iii], the head-piece has a sun-face in the middle.

Sigs. b1, verso—b2, verso, pp. [xvi-xviii] have 31 lines of text to the page, catch-words being except, especially, and con-; p. [xix] has 27 lines.

Vol. VI.—Titlepage has Works in red so spaced as not to reach from margin to margin.

Sig. A4, recto, date at top is 1725 (correct).

Sig. B1, p. 1, a comma in line "From 1714, to 1721."

Sig. Q6, p. 236, page number is correctly printed.

This edition is reprinted very closely after Cooper's two volume small octavo of 1737. One change may be noted here: two letters not in the earlier issue are printed here in volume VI (whence the increase by two pages), on pp. 225-226, Letter XLII, To Mr. Richardson, Jan. 13, 1732, and on pp. 227-228, Letter XLIV, To the same (no date, "It is hardly possible to tell you...").

Pp.: 16 pp.; [1]-151; [152, blank]; 145-632 [for 236]; 4 pp.
[blank].

Variants a and b are alike, almost exactly, page for page, but they are from two different settings-up of type throughout.

Some distinguishing marks are:—

Vol. V.—Titlepage has Works in red so spaced as to extend quite from margin to margin; a period appears between Vol and V.

Sig. A3, p. [iii], the head-piece has two small swans in the middle.

Sig. b1 (verso)—b2 (verso), pp. [xvi-xviii] have 32 lines to the page, with the catch-words proper, Name, and Member; p.[xix] has 24 lines.

Vol. VI.—Titlepage has Works in red so spaced as to reach quite from margin to margin.

Sig. A 4, recto, date at top is 1715 (error for 1725).

Sig. B1, p. 1, no comma in line “From 1714 to 1721.”

Sig. Q6, p. 236, page number is misprinted 632.

As Variant a was set up from Cooper's octavo of 1737 as copy, so Variant b was set up from Variant a as copy, I think. Where the compositor of Variant b saw by looking ahead that white spaces allowed him room, he took little liberties in spacing off his lines and pages.

Who the printer was, does not appear; probably J. Wright; some of the ornaments look like his, but not all.

The point of principal value about the Variants is to show the popularity of Pope's Letters.

Half-title: The Works Of Mr. Alexander Pope. Vol. II. A2.

Blank leaf before the half-title.

Thick Paper 4to.

This is a made-up volume. The paper is so thick that to have included all the contents of the ordinary-paper quarto edition would have made a very cumbrous book. The ordinary quarto, containing the Dunciad, is  $1\frac{1}{16}$  inches thick. This volume, omitting the Dunciad.

is  $1 \frac{6}{16}$  inches thick. The "Volume III" to be described next infra is a companion volume to this one.

Signatures are in five groups, though much subdivided:—

Group r.—General title group.—A, in 4's. The four leaves are: (1) a blank leaf; (2) A2, half-title; (3) title-leaf; (4) The Author to the Reader.

Group s.—Essay on Man.—4 leaves; A—I, in 4's; K, 1 leaf.

Group t.—Ethic Epistles, Second Book.—K2, one leaf; A, in 2's; 1 leaf; G—I, in 4's; K2, one leaf; B—C, in 4's; D, in 2's; *F, 1 leaf; F—I, in 4's; K, 3 leaves.

Group u.—Epistles of Horace; First Ode; Epistles, cont.; 1738.—A—K, in 4's; L, 1 leaf; |4 leaves; |B—F, in 4's; |B—D, in 4's; 1 leaf.

Group v.—Epitaphs.—A, in 4's; B, 3 leaves; C in 2's.

Pagination is likewise in five groups, though much subdivided:—

Group r.—General title group.—8 pp. No page is numbered.

Group s.—Essay on Man.—8 pp.; [1]—74.

Group t.—Ethic Epistles, Second Book.—6 pp.; [47]—71; [72, blank]; [7]—12; 15—16 [an inserted leaf, misnumbered]; 15—27; [28, blank]; [39]—78.

Group u.—Epistles of Horace; First Ode; Epistles, cont.; 1738.—[1]—81; [82, blank];|[1]—7; [8, blank];|[1]—39; [40, blank];|[1]—24; 23 [misprint for 25]; [26, blank].

Group v.—Epitaphs.—[1]—15; [16, 17, 18].

The date of this volume is later than 1735, for portions of its contents were printed as late as 1738. And probably, as a volume, it never was "published" at all.

Group r.—The four leaves of this group were printed from the setting of type that was used for the ordinary quarto Works, II, of 1735.

Group s.—The Essay on Man is a thick paper copy of the Essay (in four parts) of 1734 (Book No. 338), with half-title, title, etc., all included. But the last leaf (sig. K1, pp. 73—74) has been printed from new-set type. Sig. I2, pp. 67—68, is an insert, the stub of the old (canceled) leaf I2 showing between sigs. I and the inserted I2. In Book No. 336, sig. I2 is likewise an insert. The leaf was reprinted to change the text of lines 272—73 of Epistle IV. In the small folio (Book No. 340, the earlier edition) the couplet reads:

If Parts allure thee, think how Wh** shin'd,
Wh**, the Shame and Scandal of Mankind:

On the inserted leaf of the quarto the couplet (at the very bottom of p. 68) is the frequently quoted:

If Parts allure thee, think how Bacon shin'd,
The wisest, brightest, meanest of Mankind:

In group t, the seven Ethic Epistles (i. e., from the Cobham to the Arbuthnot) are sheets printed, with a slight exception, from the setting of type used for the ordinary-paper quarto Works, II, of 1735. The exception is the first and fourth leaves; the first leaf is sig. K2, the half-title; the fourth leaf, without sig. mark, contains the initial verses of the text. Type for these two leaves was reset and ornaments were slightly altered. Leaf K2 here is not a part of the sheet that K1 (preceding it) belonged to.

Group u contains: the First Epistle of the Second Book, the Second Epistle of the Second Book; the First Ode of the Fourth Book (To Venus); the First Epistle of the First Book, the Sixth Epistle of the First Book; and the two Dialogues of 1738. The group is, I think, a Thick Paper copy of the sheets (without the title-leaf) of Poems, And Imitations Of Horace... MDCCXXXVIII (Book No. 504) and (again without the title-leaf) of Epistles of Horace Imitated... MDCCXXXVIII [1738] (Book No. 490).

Group v.—Sigs. A and B, seven leaves in all, were printed on thick paper from the setting of type used for those leaves—the Epitaph group—in the ordinary-paper quarto Works, II, 1735. The two leaves of sig. C are an addition; when this half-sheet was first printed, I have not learned (notes under Book Nos. 505 and 507 may be compared). Sig. C contains four pieces:—

P. 15.—Epitaph XI. On James Craggs, Esq; in Westminster Abbey.
[Seven lines of Latin; six of English verse.]

P. [16].—To James Craggs, Esq; Secretary of State.
[Seventeen lines of English: "A Soul as full of Worth" . . .]

P. [17].—Ode on Solitude.
[Twenty lines: "Happy the man, . . ."]

P. [18].—The Dying Christian to his Soul.
[Eighteen lines: "Vital spark of heav'nly flame!"]

Epitaph XI, page 15, was first(?) published in May, 1739.

A similar volume, described on p. 38 of the Catalogue of the Lefferts Collection, contains a titlepage (new-printed, evidently) dated 1737, and also the titlepage mentioned under group u; but apparently does not contain the Ode to Venus or the two Dialogues of 1738. The "Another copy" of the succeeding entry in the Lefferts Catalogue is, again, a similar volume, though varying from both these volumes somewhat in contents. Still another copy, in the Cambridge University Library, contains the two Dialogues of 1738 and the final leaves (sigs. Gg–Hh) of the quarto of 1735. These four volumes were evidently made up according to the wishes or needs of individual purchasers.

515.

The Works Of Mr. Alexander Pope.—Volume III.— [Cicero pro Arch.—4 lines Latin prose] [Vignette: bust portrait of Pope, etc.]

London: Printed by J. Wright, for Lawton Gilliver at Homer's Head in Fleetstreet, M DCC XXXV.

Title in black and red.

Thick Paper 4to.

A made-up copy, on thick paper. The thickness is  $1\frac{7}{16}$  inches.

Signatures are in four groups:—

Group r. General title group.—1 leaf, without sig. mark.

Group s. Satires of Horace; of Donne.—1 leaf; A–L, in 4's.

Group t. Sober Advice.—2 leaves; B–E, in 2's; 1 leaf.

Group u. Dunciad.—B–Z, Aa–Hh, in 4's.

Pagination is likewise in four groups:—

Group r. General title group.—2 pp.

Group s. Satires.—2 pp.; [1, half-title to First Satire]-87; [88, blank].

Group t. Sober Advice.—1 p. [To Alexander Pope, Esq.]; [1]-10 [each page number repeated]; [11, blank].

Group u. Dunciad.—[1, half-title]-19; [20, blank]; [1]-219; [220, Errata].

The volume was made up after 1735. It is a companion volume to the T. P. 4to Volume II, q. v., supra.

Group r.—This single leaf is merely the title-leaf of the ordinary-paper quarto Works, II, of 1735, with the II changed (probably by hand) to a III. In this copy I think the leaf used is paper of the ordinary quality, not "Thick Paper."

Group s.—There are two satires from Horace, the First Satire of the Second Book and the Second Satire of the Second Book; and two from Donne, the Second Satire of Dr. John Donne and the Fourth Satire of Dr. John Donne. The two satires of Horace are a thick-paper remainder copy of Book No. 341, with a new-printed half-title substituted for the title-leaf. The two satires of Donne are thick-paper sheets printed from the setting of type used for the ordinary quarto Works, II, of 1735.

Group t.—This is the Sober Advice. A copy, on ordinary paper, of the folio edition of 1735 (Book No. 356, i. e., Folio II), wanting the title-leaf, was trimmed to fit this volume and bound in. See Book No. 489.

Group u.—The Dunciad is a thick-paper copy from the setting of type used for the ordinary quarto Works, II, of 1735.

One piece is here first (?) published:—

230. March number, p. 138.—On the Benefactions in the late Frost, 1740. By an Eminent Hand.

In the index the poem is entered as “by Mr. Pope.” It is two quatrains, beginning “Yes! 'tis the time...” In E-C, IV, 455, it bears the title “Charity.”

The poem is very likely quoted by the Magazine from a newspaper. It is quoted in a letter dated February 20, 1740, from the Countess of Hertford to the Countess of Pomfret (see their Correspondence, Ed. 1805, I, 195, and E-C, IV, 455, note 2).

Pope has rearranged the poems, with additions and omissions. His two volumes contain 119 pieces, Atterbury's one volume 81 pieces. One of Pope's additions is Vida's three books "Poeticorum"; see, further, the article on Christopher Pitt in D.N.B.

[Letters between Swift and Pope]

12mo or Sm. 8vo.      Sig.:
Pp.:

The sub-rosa printing, which was not published, was in existence in 1740, a copy being in Swift's hands not later than August, 1740; presumably that copy had been sent in May, 1740, for Mr. Gerrard to convey to the dean. Faulkner, the bookseller and printer, received from Swift leave to reprint from that copy the letters for publication in Dublin; but after corresponding with Orrery and Pope, he withheld his edition until after Pope's quarto and folio edition had been published in London. Cf. E-C, VIII, 420 ff.

The size of the volume was 12mo or small octavo, as appears from a reference in a letter from Pope to Orrery, Dec. 10, 1740 (E-C, VIII, 455).

It looks probable to me that Wright was the printer, and probable, also, that the sheets were used in some subsequent issue, though I have been unable to locate such an issue. Cooper's "Vol. VII" of Pope's Works in small octavo does not seem to use those sheets; but it is under suspicion, for though it was not published until June 29, 1742, its titlepage is dated 1741. Exshaw's Dublin edition (see under the date June 15, 1741), which I have not seen, may have used the sheets, but I believe that hypothesis unlikely. Conceivably

Pope—for we are assuming all along that Pope ordered the printing done—had only one or two copies struck off, but such action would have been contrary to his “paper-sparing” habit.

This pamphlet is a Dublin reprint of an anonymous London folio. I have listed only the Dublin issue, for it alone carries Pope's name on the titlepage.

The London edition was published in November, 1740 (Gentleman's Magazine list), and was the initiator of a series of pamphlets in reply to it and continuation of it. The “Englishman in his Grotto” was intended to point at Pope as the author; the phrase served its purpose only too well; it not only caught the Irish bookseller, but to this day it causes the pamphlet to be occasionally attributed to Pope or placed among Popiana in catalogues of book dealers. Neither it nor other of the series has aught to do with Pope. The author was James Miller.

The plate for the ornament on the titlepage was used again in Vol. IV. Part III of 1742 and in Vol. II. Part I of 1743.

Contents: Sig. A.—Half-title, title, To The Reader, Table [Contents].

Sig. *E.—Contents [i. e., arguments of Epistles to Cobham, Lady, Bathurst, and Burlington].

Sig. b, pp. 1–16.—Six commendatory poems by C., J. R., R. D., a Lady,—[“An Ode To . . . Chesterfield”], and Somerville; (cf. Poems . . ., January 11, 1739).

Sigs. A–M.—Essay on Man, Epistles I–XI (Cobham, Lady, Bathurst, Burlington, Oxford, Craggs, Addison, Jervas, Miss Blount, the Same, and Arbuthnot), Epitaphs I–XIII, two epigrams, Cloe, To Mrs. M. B. on her Birthday, and Universal Prayer.

Last leaf unnumbered.—“N B.” (editorial note: satires of Horace, etc., are placed in Part I<sup>i</sup> of Vol. II).

The sig. *E, in 2's, is misbound at the front of the book instead of between sigs. D and E, as evidently it was intended to be.

The epitaph on Newton (numbered X here) had been omitted from the editions of the Works of 1738–1739. Epitaph XI is on Craggs, XII is on Edmund... Buckingham, and XIII is For One who would not be buried in Westminster-Abbey.

The epigrams are: On One who made long Epitaphs; Engraved on the Collar of a Dog.

The editorial note on page [181] explains that the Satires of Horace and Donne "are in this new Edition placed at the beginning of the Second Part." With it compare the following note from Spence: "My works are now well laid out. The first division contains all that I wrote under twenty-six; which may be called my Juvenilia.—The second; my translations from different authors, under the same period.—The third; my own works since.—And the fourth; my Translations and Imitations.—P."—Anecdotes (Singer ed. 1820), "Section VII. 1742 . . . 43," p. 266.

This arrangement of the works had been developing (in part accidentally) from 1736.

The edition of Vol. II. Part I of 1743 reprints the matter of this volume and in the same sequence.

Professor Sherburn's library.

In sig. b the first leaf (only) places an asterisk by the sig. mark.

Sig. b, in 8's, was set up after, and to fit into, Sig. B, of which the first two leaves were discarded.

Sigs. K and following were set up to follow sig. I4, as pagination indicates.

The pieces contained in this volume are: the First Satire of Second Book, Second Satire of Second Book, First Epistle of First Book, Sixth Epistle of First Book, First Epistle of Second Book, Second Epistle of Second Book, Sixth Satire of Second Book, Seventh Epistle of First Book, Second Satire of First Book, Second Satire of Dr. Donne, Fourth Satire of Dr. Donne, Epilogue to the Satires: Written in 1738 [Dialogue I and Dialogue II].

The "Second Satire of the First Book" is the "Sober Advice," though both the expressions "Sober Advice" and "Sermon against" are carefully avoided. Its text is preceded by a half-title, on which is printed "Imitated in the Manner of Mr. Pope"; at the foot of the pages are quotations from the Latin text, but all other footnotes have been discarded. In the volume now, since Parnell's "translation" of Donne's poem is omitted, there is nothing that is not by Pope. The note from Spence quoted among the notes on the preceding book helps further to authenticate the "Second Satire of the First Book" as Pope's work.

The title "Epilogue to the Satires" for the two Dialogues of "1738" may conceivably have been suggested to Pope by Warburton, but most likely it was not. It appears here for the first time. Very probably, however, it served to suggest to Warburton the title of "Prologue to the Satires" which he introduced into his edition of 1751 as a substitute for "To Dr. Arbuthnot"—canceling a leaf in his edition to effect the change; cf. E-C, III, 229, 231 ff., and 533–535.

the contents of a pamphlet published in 1729, A Character of John Sheffield . . . Pedigree . . . Last Will . . ., the author of which I have not learned.

Pope is quoted, I, xiii ("Essay on Criticism" and "Miscellanies"); the songs in the plays, I, 211-400; and II, 353, "On Edmund Duke of Buckingham . . ." [Epitaph].

1741

Book Nos. 526-542
Piece Nos. 233-238

This was another year of Letters—the correspondence primarily with Swift. The first publication was in quarto and folio forms, but apparently the earliest printing was in an as yet unidentified smaller size. The account of Pope's activities to procure the return of the letters from Swift and the publication of them is best told by Dilke (Papers of a Critic, I, 312ff.). In the same volume with the Letters appeared the "Memoirs of Scriblerus"; how much Pope contributed to the production is another unsolved problem. Pope's admiration of Bolingbroke led him to have printed the Idea of a Patriot King, but not to publish it,—a procedure that, five years after the poet's death, produced a heated quarrel.

The Gentleman's Magazine of October reprinted from the Craftsman of October 24 an anonymous plaint that Pope had kept silence for three years:—

Bless Us! 'tis strange, three tedious Years,
They say, and not a Line appears;
Not one Poetic Cob-web spun,
From Thirty-eight to Forty-one; . . .

233. P. 45. January number.—On the Grotto at Twick'ham. ("You who shall stop . . .")

My copy of the Magazine is not a first issue, for it adds a line immediately after the title, as above, "See a more correct copy, p. 660," referring to a reprint of the poem in the December number. A copy in the University of Texas Library (still not a first issue, I think) omits the cross-reference line.

This is the first edition of the lines on the Grotto. They had been enclosed in a letter to Bolingbroke as early as September 3, 1740; and a copy was in the hands of Horace Walpole, in Florence, Italy, by February 21, 1741, N. S. (Singer's Spence's Anecdotes, 1820, p. 406; cf. Walpole's Letters, Cunningham's (1906) edition, pp. 64-65).

This dialogue between Fulvius and Probus was, so Ayre says (Memoirs, 1745, II, 222 ff.), for a time attributed to Pope by contemporaries, but was soon proved to be the work of another. It is reprinted by Ayre. Apparently no copy of this folio issue of the Champion is recorded as being extant.

The piece by Pope is the Wife of Bath's Prologue.

Copyright was entered by Pope himself on April 15.

The printer's ornaments indicate J. Wright as the printer.

That this (the folios and the quarto) is the first printing of this set of Letters is argued by Dilke (Papers of a Critic, I, 312–328), though I suspect it was not; and whether this volume was the earliest publication of them is uncertain. The history of publication is as submerged and difficult in this case as in that of the Letters of 1735.

At the beginning of the table of Contents is this note: "N. B. Those letters which have an Asterisk * prefixed, are added in this, and not in the Dublin Edition." The asterisk accompanies letters No. 61, 63, 66, 77, 87, and 88. Letter LXXXIX, Orrery to Pope, Oct. 4, 1738, is not starred, but neither is it listed in the Contents. In the Booksellers To The Reader comment is made upon "the History of their Publication; which the Reader may see in one View, if he only observes the Passages marked with Comma's in Letters 75, 77, 81, 84, 86, 87, 88, of this Book."

Concerning the "Thoughts on Various Subjects," see the notes on the quarto edition, infra.

The Letters was reviewed (by Warburton?) in the May number of the Works of the Learned (Dilke, I, 327).

In group r the first half-title leaf should have been so folded as to come before the title-leaf.

The "Memoirs of Scriblerus"—in Chapters I-XII, XIV-XVII—though akin to, is a different thing from the Memoirs of 1723 (Book No. 138).

The "Guardians" are dated April 27, March 16, May 21, June 25, June 26, September 29, 1713.

Three pieces are (so far as is now known) here first printed:—
 234. Pp. [v]–vi (group r).—The Booksellers To The Reader. [E-C, VI, xlvi–xlvi.]
 235. Pp. 1–108, 85–173 (group s, t).—Letters to and from Dr. Swift...
 236. Pp. 1–70, [71–72] (group v).—Memoirs Of ... Scriblerus.

Presumably the same setting of type was used for both the small folio and the L. P. folio.

That copy, however, of the L. P. folio described in the Ashley Library Catalogue (p. 56) does not contain the group u sheets (sigs. Ffff–Iiii), "Thoughts On Various Subjects," though it does contain the starred *Ffff sheet and the unmarked leaf (other half of sig. Uuu) which are in groups z and wb. The "Thoughts" are designated as item No. 2 of the Directions to the Binder (verso of the half-title leaf) in the small folio.

As between the small folio and the quarto I have not observed any difference to indicate that the same setting of type did not serve for both editions. In the folio the last page (312) of group u ends with a "Finis" and a printer's ornament; the quarto (page 339) ends with a "Finis" and a three line list of Errata, of which the first reads: "Date to the first Letter to Mr. Wycherley, for 1724,
r. 1704," and is interesting as showing that at least the sheets of group u were originally printed to form a part of the Works, in Prose,

Vol. I, of 1737. The other errors pointed out are in both the folio and the quarto editions. See the notes under the folio and quarto Letters of 1737.

Group u, containing the "Thoughts on Various Subjects," is a revised version of the "Thoughts" of the Miscellanies, Vol. II, of 1727, omitting some items, adding others, and numbering each "thought." The revised version was adopted into the 1742 edition ("Fourth") of the Miscellanies in 1742, and probably later editions. But since 1741 the revised edition has not been included or mentioned in any collective edition of Pope's Works, I think.

I have inferred that the folio was printed off before the quarto, because of the blank leaves and pages in the quarto, but precedence is not settled.

The price of the quarto (presumably) in Edinburgh was £1-04-0 (Scots Magazine, list).

532. June 15 (Dublin News Letter, June 16—Dilke, I, 328).

Letters To and From . . . Swift . . .

Dublin: . . . For Edward Exshaw . . .

Size:      Sig.:

Pp.:

The title is taken from Dilke's Papers of a Critic (I, 328) and the newspaper advertisement there quoted. Dilke owned a copy of this edition. The advertisement in the Dublin News Letter, June 16, 1741, as quoted by Dilke reads: "Yesterday was published, by Edward Exshaw, &c., Letters to and from the Rev. Dr. Jonathan Swift, D. S. P. D., from the year 1714 to 1738."

This is a reprint, says Dilke, of the London folio Works, In Prose, Vol. II, 1741.

From Dilke's description, it is much like Faulkner's edition, next to be described, infra.

Remainder sheets of this edition, says Dilke, were bound with a new titlepage in 1746: "Dublin Printed by and for George Faulkner, 1746."

533. June 20 (Dublin News Letter,—Dilke, I, 328).

3 leaves.
Pp.: 10 pp.; [1]—256; 4 pp.; 1-22.

The title-leaf is apparently sig. P4, turned back.

At one stage (before March 24, 1741), previous to publication, the book ended with sig. L12, p. 240, which is marked Finis; and no titlepage or table of contents had as yet been prepared (see Dilke, Papers of a Critic, I, 327, note). Subsequently a copy of Pope's folio of 1741 was procured and additional letters from it were included. These additions begin on p. 241 (sig. M1), which has for a heading:—"Supplement. After we had re-printed the foregoing sheets, we found the following Letters in the Folio Edition published by Mr. Pope in London; which we here insert to make our Collection as compleat as possible."

The table of contents calls for letters 1-87, but two letters are numbered 7. The first-printed sheets (sigs. B-L) contain letters I-LXXXI. The Supplement contains letters LXXXIII-LXXXIX. (There is no letter numbered LXXXII.) The last letter, from Orrery to Pope, ends on p. 256 (sig. N2), which is marked Finis.

Sig. N3 (which is so marked) is a full-bodied title-leaf.

The title reads:—Some|Free Thoughts|Upon The|Present State|
Of|Affairs.|—|[Written in the Year 1714.]|—|[Ornament]|=[Dublin:|
Printed by and for George Faulkner.|M,pcc,XLI.|N3||Verso, blank.
Faulkner in his "Advertisement to the Reader" (sig. N4), explains that he "got the original Manuscript from Alderman John Barber" in London, and dates his "Advertisement" Dublin, May, 1741. The Free Thoughts is a reprint; it extends through sig. P3 (which is not marked), p. 22, which is marked Finis.

Letter LXXXIII of Supplement is LXI of Pope's edition (fol. p. 115)
sig. Ff2.

Letter LXXXIV of Supplement is LXIII of Pope's edition (fol.
p. 119), sig. Gg2.

Letter LXXXV of Supplement is LXVI of Pope's edition (fol. p.
127), sig. II2.

Letter LXXXVI of Supplement is LXXVII of Pope's edition (fol. p. 149), sig. Pp1.

Letter LXXXVII of Supplement is LXXXVII of Pope's edition (fol. p. 168), sig. Uu1, verso.

Letter LXXXVIII of Supplement is LXXXVIII of Pope's edition (fol. p. 170), sig. Uu2 verso.

Letter [LXXXIX] of Supplement is LXXXIX of Pope's edition (fol. p. 172), sig. Xx1-2.

The advertisement in the Dublin News Letter of June 20, 1741, is quoted by Dilke, p. 328: "This day is published, by George Faulkner, &c., Letters to and from the Reverend Dr. Jonathan Swift, D. S. P. D., &c. At the same place may be had the Author's Works in six Volumes 8vo. printed the same size as the Letters." These letters formed the Seventh Volume, and are so referred to by Mr. D. Swift and Lord Orrery." See, further, Pope to Nugent, Aug. 14, 1740 (E-C, VII, 384).

In Spencer Jackson's Swift Bibliography, Vol. VII of Swift's Works, M.DCC.XLVI, is said to be "the same book with one additional letter, on pages 301-302." See the notes on Exshaw's edition, supra.

The Letters occupy pages 1-228. They are a reprint of the Dublin edition, with some omissions (of parts previously published). Curril has annexed sundry notes.

Pages 229-310 are given to a "History Of The Deluge" and letters by Wotton, Atterbury, and David Crichton, M. D. (published in July).

One piece is here first printed:

237. P. 310.—Epitaph for himself, by Mr. Pope.
("Under this marble . . ."—the second epitaph "On One who would not be buried . . .")

Horace Walpole had a copy of the poem as early as February 2, 1741 (cf. Singer's Spence's Anecdotes (1820), p. 406).

Lines.—I, 1–264; II, 1–396; III, 1–358 (error, beginning at line 253 misnumbered 255, for 1–356). Lines 209–210 of Book III of the "Second Edition" octavo of 1729 were omitted from subsequent editions.

In a letter to Swift (May 17, 1739) Pope wrote: "Since my protest, for so I call my Dialogue of 1738, I have written but ten lines . . .
They are an insertion for the next new edition of the Dunciad, which generally is reprinted once in two years." The enclosed lines are 305 ff (E-C, IV, p. 153), but they did not appear in print until the Dunciad of 1743.

On p. 601 are a dozen translations of Pope's Epitaph on Newton; see p. 663, also.

On p. 604, November number, is "Mr. Pope's Universal Prayer," reprinted here for the sake of a Latin translation in parallel columns, "Alex. Pope celeberrimi Poetæ Orationem Catholicam Latino (ut potuit) carmine reddidit R. L." dated at the end "Barum Id. Aprilis A. S. 1741."

On p. 159 the Latin of the last stanza had already been printed.

Pp.: 2 pp.; [1]-12; 1-165; [166, Contents].

The title-leaf is probably sig. P6, folded back.

This edition was presumably printed from the copy of the folio Works, In Prose, Vol. II, 1741, sent from London to Faulkner to enable him to complete his Dublin edition of the Letters.

The Memoirs was mentioned by Pope as early as 1728; cf. Miscellanies (Motte), The Last Volume, p. 5, note.

See, further, the edition of a Memoirs in 1723, and the Works, In Prose, Vol. II, 1741, folio and quarto (Book Nos. 529-531).

Printed but never published. Nearly all copies were burned.

This is Pope's edition of Bolingbroke's essay. Pope used an editorial discretion, but apparently altered the text to no very considerable extent. When Bolingbroke's authorized edition appeared in 1749, it was not subdivided into chapters, there were some verbal changes, and matter to the extent of perhaps two pages was omitted. Charges of treachery to his friend were preferred against Pope by minions of Bolingbroke, and a great quarrel arose.

The story of this book is vaguely sketched in W. Sichel's Bolingbroke and his Times, II, 365 ff., 457. See, also, E-C, V, 346-347.

A copy in the British Museum has the (old) shelf-number 278B.

"T. C." in the imprint meant Cooper the bookseller; it is doubtful if his consent was asked for the use of his name.

The printer was John Wright.

For an account of the quarrel in 1749 and a reprint of the passages in Pope's edition of The Idea Of that differ from Bolingbroke's text of 1749, cf. Miss Fannie E. Ratchford's "Pope and the Patriot King" in Studies in English, No. 6, University of Texas Bulletin, No. 2648: December 22, 1926.

At the top is a picture: a church and burial place as background; a full-length portrait of Pope(?), standing and pointing to a tomb, as center foreground.

At the bottom is elaborate scroll work, with foliage, over a gravestone.

The words are lines 69-74 of the "Elegy to the Memory of an Unfortunate Lady," ending "'Tis all thou art, and all the proud shall be."

No name of publisher is given.

Maurice Greene became Doctor of Music in 1730; he died in 1755.

1742

Book Nos. 543-575
Piece Nos. 239-242

The one considerable new contribution in this year was at first called The New Dunciad, but presently was combined with its predecessor as “Book IV” of the Dunciad. In the next year the satire as a whole was to undergo a notable revision. The number of editions indicates no diminution of the public’s curiosity to learn what Pope had to say.

Half-title: The New Dunciad.

4to. Sig.: 4 leaves; B-F, in 4's.
Pp.: 8 pp.; [1]-39; [40, blank].

First edition of Book IV of the Dunciad.

Contents are:—page i, half-title; ii, blank; iii, titlepage; iv, blank; v-vi, To The Reader; vii-viii, The Argument. Book the Fourth; 1-39, text of the poem, with foot-notes; 40, blank.

Lines: 1-618.

The head-piece on page 1 is from a retouched plate (third state, with the motto erased) that had been used three times in the Dunciad of the quarto Works of 1735, and twice in the quarto Works, In Prose, Vol. II, 1741, on page 3 of the v group of sheets, and page 255 of the wa group. It was used for the first time in the quarto Dunciad of 1729, sig. F, page 3 (third sequence).

At the bottom of page 39 is an Errata list.

My copy trimmed measures  $10\frac{2}{16} \times 7\frac{11}{16}$  inches.

The copy in the Ashley Library is described as a Large Paper copy, measuring  $12\frac{1}{2} \times 7\frac{7}{8}$  inches. It is presumably from the same setting of type used for the ordinary quarto.

8vo (in half-sheets).      Sig.: A, in 2's; B–E, in 4's.
Pp.: [i]–iv; [5]–36.

On the titlepage Variorum is followed by a comma instead of a period. The date is defectively printed.

This edition omits the To The Reader, but is for the rest a reprint of the first quarto edition.

Lines 1–618. The lines 39–40 are in the early unexpanded form. It is possible Curll was responsible for the two Hubbard editions. This copy, uncut and never bound, measures  $8\frac{5}{16} \times 5\frac{5}{16}$  inches.

549. Before April 3.

The New|Dunciad:|As it was found|In the Year M DCC XLI.|—|With The|Illustrations of Scriblerus,|And|Notes Variorum.|=|

London,|Printed for T. Cooper at the Globe in Pater-noster Row.|—|M DCC XLII.|[Price Is. and 6d.]

Half-title: The New Dunciad.

4to.      Sig.: 4 leaves; B–F, in 4's; G, in 2's.
Pp.: 8 pp.; [1]–44.

Second quarto edition.

Contents are much as in the first edition; but both text of poem and notes have been slightly revised.

Lines 1–620.

In the first quarto, lines 39–40 read:

Oft her gay Sister's life and spirit fled;
But History and Satire held their head:

in this second quarto they are expanded to lines 39–42:

But sober History restrain'd her rage,
And promis'd Vengeance on a barb'rous Age:
There sunk Thalia, nerve-less, faint, and dead,
Had not her Sister Satire held her head:

The note to line 436 (pp. 30–31) is lengthened by about twenty-two lines.

The date of publication is arrived at from the fact that the revised lines 39–42 of this edition are quoted in an article in the Universal Spectator of April 3, whence they are reprinted in the Gentleman's Magazine, Vol. XII, pp. 194–196.

Apparently this edition and the first quarto were printed in different printing-shops.

London:|Printed for J. H. Hubbard, in the Old-Bailey.|
—|MDCCXLII.

8vo (in half-sheets).      Sig.: A, in 2's; B–E, in 4's.
Pp.: [i]–iv; [5]–36.

For this “Second Edition” of Hubbard the type was reset throughout.

The To The Reader is omitted.

Lines are misnumbered 1–618; there are 620. Line 47 is misnumbered as 45 (p. 9), the error continuing thenceforward. The error arose through the adoption of the change of lines 39–40 of the first edition into lines 39–42 of the second quarto edition. The revised passage is printed here at the bottom of page 8; but the line numbers on pp. 9 ff. were not altered, nor was the long form of the note to line 434 (436 in later edd.) printed on page 26.

Presumably, then, this edition was published early in April, and was a pirated edition.

This edition is a reprint of the first quarto edition. It contains lines 1–618. The lines 39–40 are in the earlier, unexpanded form; and the note to line 434 [later 436] is the short note, without the added matter.

Miscellanies in Prose and Verse. By Rev. Dr. Swift, A. Pope, Esq; Mr. Gay, and Dr. Arbuthnot

Four Volumes.

Sm. 8vo.

London Evening-Post, advertisement.

In the Post Bathurst advertised the Miscellanies... (as above) as "Lately printed." Whether he was offering a new edition or remainder copies of editions of 1736 or 1738 is not clear. There appears to have been no edition (unless this hypothetical one) that was designated "Third Edition" on the titlepage. For the "Fourth Edition" see under July 3, 1742. It would seem that so far no one has been interested to gather together a sufficient number of sets of the Miscellanies to make possible an accurate study of the editions. There is confusion, in greater or less degree, from 1728 on. Spencer Jackson in his Bibliography of Swift's Works (Vol. XII of The Prose Works of Jonathan Swift, ed. Temple Scott, London, Bell and Sons, 1908) has made some notes on editions of 1742, 1745, 1746, 1747, 1748, 1750, 1751, including Vols. I to XI, but his notes are too brief for purposes of collation.

So far as I have learned, no piece by Pope is included among the contents of Vols. V–VII. Vols. VII–IX were first published in 1742; Vol. X, in 1745; Vol. XI, in 1746.

There is nothing by Pope in either volume.

By this time this set of Miscellanies had come to be considered primarily as among Swift's works.

Cooper added to his advertisement in the London Evening-Post, No. 2255, April 22–24, the following: N. B. There is no genuine Edition of this Poem, except in Quarto; nor will there be one in any other Form till it is join'd with the rest of the Author's Works in the Duodecimo Volume.

Harvard Library.

The Evening Post, No. 2282, Thursday, June 24—Saturday, June 26, advertised: “On Tuesday next will be publish'd, Never before printed in Octavo, The Works... Pope, Esq; Vol. VII. Containing the third and last Part of the Letters...” No. 2283, Saturday—Tuesday, advertised “This Day is publish'd...”

The title-leaf is sig. a1.

On the reverse of the title-leaf is The Booksellers to the Reader, in 21 lines of print.

In the table of contents (sigs. a–b) the letters are numbered from 1 to 5, 5–88 (the number 5 being used twice). Asterisks accompany the second No. 5 and Nos. 60, 62, 65, 76, 86, 87, 88, without explanation why asterisks are used. Passages in quotation marks—“a little to clear up the History of the Publication” of these letters—appear in Nos. 74, 76, 80, 83, 85, 86, 87, 88.

A careful examination shows that the two leaves marked sig. b are really A1 and A2.

On page 3 a note is quoted from the “Dublin Edit.”

On page 19 the note ends with “now first correctly published”; in the folio of 1741, page 27, another sentence follows, “This Note is taken from the Dublin Edition.”

The leaf sig. H6, pp. 107–108, is an insert; the stub of the canceled leaf shows. It contains a brief note not in the folio of 1741, but the reason for cancellation is not apparent.

On page 158 a note is quoted from the “Dublin Edit.” The same note is on page 118 of the folio of 1741.

Pages 223–224, letter No. 88, from Orrery to Pope, is printed in the folio of 1741 (numbered 89), but is not listed in the folio Contents.

Sheets of this edition may have been sent early to Ireland, to some (unnamed) Dublin bookseller to give grounds for the claim that the Letters were first published in Ireland. The matter is obscure, and I have not had access yet to all the editions that might help to clear some of the difficulties. The “Dublin edition” may have been of a printing I have not yet seen (cf. E-C, I, p. ci).

Cooper had been a publisher of Pope's Letters since June, 1735, and probably felt he had some rights in the new set of Pope-Swift Letters. He was on friendly terms with Dodsley, whose name is in the imprint of the folio and quarto editions of the Works, II, of 1741; and he may have entered into an arrangement with Dodsley; or he may have followed Cull's example. See the notes on the editions of the Letters of 1737, and on the editions in 1742 of the octavo Works, Vol. IV, Parts I, II, III.

561. July 3 (London Evening-Post).

Miscellanies|—|In|Four Volumes.|—|By Dr. Swift, Dr. Arbuthnot, Mr. Pope, and Mr. Gay.|—|The Fourth Edition Corrected:|With Several Additional Pieces in|Verse and Prose.|—|Vol. I.|By Dr. Swift.|—|

Pp.: 12 pp.; [1]–269; [270–272, book list].

In the London Evening-Post, No. 2285, July 1–3, Bathurst advertised: “This Day are publish'd, Now first printed in small Octavo, the same Size with the rest of Mr. Pope's Works, the Fourth Edition corrected, with several additional Pieces, in Verse and Prose, Miscellanies, in four Volumes. By Dr. Swift, Dr. Arbuthnot, Mr. Pope and Mr. Gay. N. B. The Additions will speedily be publish'd by themselves to compleat former Editions.”

Bathurst was successor to Motte in business.

The printer was John Wright; cf. E-C, IX, 530 ff.

This edition is a reprint of Vol. I, 1727 (and its successors in later years), of Motte's Miscellanies; it omits a "Letter to a Young Gentleman"; and it adds "Merlin's Prophecy," "Meditation on a Broon-stick," and "Some free Thoughts upon the State of Affairs, in the Year 1714" (cf. the notes on Miscellanies, Vol. IX, supra). A footnote to the Contents states that "Squire Bickerstaff detected" is the only piece in this volume which was not written by Dr. Swift.

The "Preface," reprinted and signed by the names of both Swift and Pope, is the only piece in which Pope had a hand.

But Pope did a good deal for Bathurst as a sort of editorial adviser; cf. their correspondence, E-C, IX, 530 ff.

See the notes under April 10, 1742.

This volume reprints the poems of "The Last Volume" of 1728 (dated 1727) and the "Fourth Volume" of 1732, but rearranges them (cf. Pope to Bathurst, E-C, IX, 531) and adds two poems by Pope not previously printed in any of his own publications, viz., on p. 127, the "Impromptu to Lady Winchilsea" (see the notes on the General Dictionary, December, 1740), and on p. 128, the Epigram on Hough (a first edition).

One piece is here first printed:

"The Fifth Edition."

The first, second, third, and "another" edition were published in 1739, in 8vo.

The "Fourth" edition, with large additions in 1740, in 8vo.

"The Fifth Edition," "with large additions," was the first (so far as I have learned) to contain anything by Pope, though what it contained I have not yet learned.

The "Sixth Edition" was advertised on January 28, 1743; cf., further, the D. N. B., XXXVII, 416.

The Post's advertisement reads in part as follows: "To this Edition is added, a very large Collection of the most pointed and truly valuable Epigrams in the British Tongue, with the Names of the Authors to such as are known.

"Most humbly inscrib'd to those choice Spirits of the Age, his Majesty's Poet, Mr. Colley Cibber; his Holiness's Poet, Mr. Pope; Mr. Orator Henley; Capt. Vinegar; the old Dutchess of M—; Mr. Ancient Pistol; and Job Baker, the Kettle Drummer.

The Works Of Alexander Pope, Esq;—|Vol. III. Part II.|—|Containing the Dunciad, Book IV| And The Memoirs of Scriblerus.|—|Never before Printed.|=|

London:|Printed for R. Dodsley, and Sold by|T. Cooper,| MDCCXLII.

Title in black and red.

Half-title: The Works Of Alexander Pope, Esq; Vol. III. Part II. Containing the New Dunciad, And Memoirs of Scriblerus. Never before Printed.

Sm. 8vo.      Sig.: A [A3 being excised]—F, in 8's; A [A1 being excised]—H, in 8's; I, 1 leaf.

Pp.: 8 pp. [and one stub]; 1–83; [84, Errata]; [1]–128; 261; [262, Advertisement].

Lines are misnumbered 1–618; should be 1–620.

On the titlepage the date, in red, is not in mid-page, and is neither on the line with T. Cooper nor entirely on the line below.

The words in red were printed subsequently to those in black. Another copy of this book may show a leaf that was more carefully placed in the press, which consequently makes Cooper and the date a single line. See Book Nos. 570, 571.

The excised leaf, sig. A3, presumably reprinted the To The Reader.

What was on the other excised leaf, sig. A1 of the second series, does not appear. The sig. F8 is the half-title to the Memoirs; and sig. A2 begins the Introduction to the Memoirs.

The page number 261 looks like a pied 129.

The contents are: page i, half-title; ii, blank; iii, titlepage; iv, blank; stub [two pages excised]; v-vii, Argument; viii, blank; 1-60, text of the Dunciad, Book IV, with foot-notes; 61, half-title to Appendix; 62, blank; 63-83, text of the Appendix; 84, Errata in the Dunciad [and] Errata in the Memoirs; 1 [second series], half-title to Memoirs; 2, blank; 3-8, Introduction To The Reader; 9-128, text of the Memoirs of Martinus Scriblerius; 261 [? should be 129], list of pieces by Scriblerus; 130 [or 262, page is not numbered], Advertisement [of the Second Book of these Memoirs].

The Dunciad has the lines misnumbered 1-618, for 1-620. The lines 39-42 are the later, expanded passage, and line 47 is misnumbered 45, the error continuing thence to the end. The note to line 434 has entirely disappeared, because the text of lines 433-434 has been revised. Another textual revision is the substitution of asterisks for lines 591-594.

The half-title to the Appendix reads: "Appendix: Containing some Pieces relating to the Dunciad, which were omitted in the Appendix to the former Volume." The pieces number four, reprinted from the Grub-street Journal, and an "Advertisement Printed in the Journals, 1730," the original place of publication of which I have not succeeded in learning.

The Memoirs has no table of contents, but it contains seventeen chapters, numbered I-XVII.

See, further, Modern Philology, X (October, 1912), 179 ff; and Notes and Queries, 11S., VI, 167 f.

One piece, though avowedly a reprint here, is given a Piece Number at this place:

Pp.: 4 pp.; 1–70; [71–72, a blank leaf]; [i]–x; 11–132.

Lines 1–620, correctly numbered.

On the titlepage T. Cooper (in black) and the date (in red) are both in mid-page, and the one falls under the other.

This edition omits the “Appendix” to the Dunciad; for the rest of its contents it is much like the preceding edition.

The Dunciad contains lines 1–620, correctly numbered, the text as in the preceding edition. The footnotes have been considerably revised.

The Memoirs has a table of contents, which calls for seventeen chapters; but in the text the sixteen chapters are numbered I–XII, XIV–XVII; and there is no final-page “Advertisement” of a Second Book of the Memoirs.

Though printed in sheets of eight leaves each, the chain-lines, throughout the book, run horizontally.

The ornament on the titlepage is the table-shaped vase, from the same block used in Issue b.

The date on the titlepage is in black ink.

The chain-lines run vertically throughout the book.

This Issue c and Issues a and b are line for line and page for page alike throughout most of the book. But the type was entirely reset for this Issue.

On page 33 this Issue c contains one line more than Issues a and b; on page 35, one line less than those Issues.

Issues a and b are from the same setting of type except for the titlepage, which in b is an inserted leaf, I think. Issue c is from a different setting of type.

London,|Printed for M. Cooper at the Globe in Pater-noster-row,|MDCCXLIII.

Half-title: The Dunciad, In Four Books. With The Prolegomena of Scriblerus, And Notes Variorum. A

Verso of title-leaf: Speedily will be publish'd, . . . [7 lines of print].

4to. Sig.: A, in 4's; a half-sheet without sig. mark; A-Z, Aa-Ff, in 4's; Gg, in 2's; Dd, in 4's; Ee, in 2's.

Pp.: [i]-vi; 4 pp.; ix-x; [i]-xxxvii; [xxxviii, Argument]; [39]-235; [236, blank]; 12 pp. [Declaration; two Indexes].

The date is given by Colley Cibber, "Another Occasional Letter," p. 20.

The printer was apparently William Bowyer, the "Learned Printer," who herewith began to share with or to succeed John Wright as Pope's printer.

This is Thoms's No. R; Lefferts's No. 25.

The price was 7s. 6d. sewed.

On the verso of the title-leaf is the promise: "Speedily will be publish'd . . . The Essay on Man, The Essay on Criticism, and the rest of the Auther's Original Poems, With the Commentaries and Notes of W. Warburton, A. M."

The lines are numbered correctly: I, 1-330; II, 1-428; III, 1-340; IV, 1-656.

The text of Book IV has been lengthened since the editions of 1742. An octavo edition (to be described next infra as Works III, II, Edition C) which is dated 1742 but which was re-vamped at about the time the quarto was in press and—as I now believe—was placed on sale after the quarto, presents the text at an intermediate stage of composition. After line 114 the quarto has four lines of stars, for which there is no equivalent in the octavo. A couplet of the octavo (lines 139-140) is expanded to two couplets in the quarto (lines 143-146). A couplet not in the octavo is inserted in the quarto (lines 211-212). Thus the quarto text is eight lines longer than the octavo.

The four lines of stars (Book IV, lines 115-118) are on page 165, recto of the leaf X3, which is an insert. The canceled leaf probably contained the words printed in full, for the lines are quoted in the Gentleman's Magazine, XIV (1744), 611, and are present in the Dunciad dated 1749 (but published in January, 1750).

Here, for the first time, the four Books of the Dunciad and all the critical apparatus are brought together in one volume.

And in this edition, for the first time, Colley Cibber is substituted in the place of Theobald as hero of the poem. The notice of the book in the Gentleman's Magazine book-list (p. 560) reads: "A new Edition of the Dunciad, illustrated with a new Hero and other Additions. pr. 7s. 6d. sewed. Cooper."

This is the earliest publication of the passage concluding the Dunciad, which Thackeray thought so eloquent,—

In vain, in vain,—the all-composing Hour...

One piece is here first printed [published]:

243. P. [vii], first sig. A4.—By Authority [dethroning Theobald and elevating Cibber].

Note.—It is possible that further information may show that Piece No. 243 was published in the octavo earlier than in the quarto, in which case Cibber's coronation will have occurred before October 29.

579. November 3? (Pope to Bowyer, E-C, IX, 522).

Edition C.

The|Works|Of|Alexander Pope, Esq;|—|Vol. III. Part II.|
—|Containing the|Dunciad, Book IV.|And The|Memoirs of Scriblerus.|—|Never before Printed.|=|

London:|Printed for R. Dodsley, and Sold by|T. Cooper,|
M DCC XLII.

Title in black and red.

Half-title: The Dunciad, Book The Fourth, With The Notes and Illustrations Of Scriblerus.

Sm. 8vo.      Sig. [Apparently thus, but see the explanatory note, infra]: 2 leaves; B-E, in 8's; F, in 4's; G, 9 leaves [one blank]; H, in 8's; I, in 6's; |A-H, in 8's; I, in 2's.

Pp.: 4 pp.; 1-74; 2 pp. [blank]; [75]-112; [113, By Authority]; [114, blank];|[i]-x; 11-132.

For this edition Pope revised and lengthened the text of the Dunciad, Book IV, as compared with the octavo Vol. III. Part II, Editions A and B of 1742.

The lines are misnumbered 1-650 (error for 1-648).

This book (volume) is made up of remainder sheets of the Edition B of 1742, with the important difference that many new-printed leaves have been inserted in the place of canceled leaves. The substitutions are easy to detect, because in the new-printed leaves the chain-lines run vertically [the regular practice], whereas in the original leaves the chain-lines run horizontally [contrary to custom]. The cancellations were made for the purpose of altering the "Argument," the text of the poem, the footnotes, and matter in the "Appendix." The new-printed leaves are:—

Sig. B2, pp. [3–4].

B4, pp. 7–8.

D1–2, pp. 33–36. (On p. 33 line 247 is numbered 245, the error being corrected at line 275 on p. 37 (sig. D3).)

F2–I6, pp. 67–[114].—The conclusion of the poem and all of the “Appendix.”

The original sig. F was a half-sheet, with the leaf F4 blank. The binder of this book (volume, edition) retained F4 along with F1, to serve as a sort of cover, or container, since those two leaves were a single piece of paper (conjugate); and between them he placed four new-printed leaves, of which the first three are without signature marks (at a casual glance they look like F2, F3, and F4), and the fourth is marked G. He had to tear leaf G1 from its sheet to bind it as he has done; but perhaps he found the task of binding easier by his method than if he had thrown away the original blank leaf F4.

The sheets of the Memoirs of Scriblerus (the last series of signatures, A–H, in 8's; I, in 2's) are from the lot used for the edition of 1742 numbered Edition B (Book No. 567).

The new-printed leaves (“inserts”) of this book must have been printed, I think, though I have only internal evidence to rest upon, at about the time the 1743 quarto Dunciad was at press. Presumably this botched-up volume and the Works, Vol. III. Part I of 1743 were intended to be placed on sale as an octavo edition immediately after the publication of the quarto Dunciad of 1743. Yet the text of this octavo varies slightly from the quarto text in such fashion as to make it look like a sort of trial version, antedating in time of composition the text of the quarto. Compare, for example, the two readings of line 629 (it is numbered 621 in the octavo).

Quarto: She comes! she comes! the sable Throne behold

Octavo: The Gloom rolls on, the sable Throne behold

The octavo “Appendix” omits the “List of Books, Papers, and Verses,” which is in the quarto, but both contain the “By Authority” enthroning Cibber.

The Gentleman's Magazine:

[As supra]

Vol. XIII, the October number, p. 547 contains twelve lines from Windsor Forest, with a translation into Latin.

Vol. XIII, the October number, page 550 contains "Verses on a Grotto . . . By Mr. Pope" and an anonymous translation into Latin.

A preliminary editorial note begins, "Tho' several translations of Mr. Pope's Verses on his grotto have already appear'd," . . .

The first line of the Latin is:

This is the Dunciad, Books I-III, with leaves from Vol. III. Part II misbound in it.

This Variant a differs from Variant b only in that it contains additional matter at the end. It owes its existence to the binder's misunderstanding his directions. See Pope's letter of November 3, 1743, to Bowyer, E-C, IX, 522. The additional matter is the Appendix of Vol. III. Part II of the Works of "1742" (Book No. 579); it here includes signatures G-I, and should properly follow Book IV of the Dunciad. Signature G contains only seven leaves; the first leaf (G1, discarded) was the final leaf of the verse of Book IV of the edition containing 650 lines (Book No. 579).

In some copies the half-title is bound after the title-leaf.

This is Thoms's No. Q; Lefferts's No. 22.

This volume contains the Dunciad, Books I-III.

Lines are misnumbered: I, 1-326 (should be 328); II, 1-430
(should be 428); and III, 1-340 (correct).

Some alterations were made while the book was going through the press. The following leaves are inserts: sigs. B1, B6, B8, D4, D5-D6 (reprinted as a quarter-sheet), E2, E5, and H4-H5.

I have one copy in which the prose matter (sigs. A, a-e) is bound after the poem instead of before it.

In some copies the half-title is bound after the titlepage.

1744

Book Nos. 587-605b
Piece No. 244

In the last months of his life Pope worked with Warburton over a new, annotated edition of his Works, to appear in quarto, like the Dunciad of 1743. The Essay on Man and the Essay on Criticism were completed and published. Into April he wrought at the "Ethic Epistles," four of which were printed, but not published until much later, if at all. "Here I am like Socrates," he said to Spence about three weeks before his death, "distributing my morality among my friends, just as I am dying." He died on May 30, 1744, aged fifty-six years and nine days.

Half-title: An Essay on Man, To H. St. John L. Bolingbroke.

4to.      Sig.: 3 leaves; A-O, in 4's.
Pp.: 6 pp.; [1]-111; [112, blank].

The half-title leaf precedes the title-leaf.

The third leaf is the Design leaf; on its verso is the Argument of the First Epistle.

The title-leaf is a quarter-sheet inserted within the outer half-sheet; the stub of its companion half (excised) shows in my copy.

The publisher was Mrs. Mary Cooper, who succeeded to the business upon the death of Thomas, her husband.

The text of the poem begins on sig. B1, page [1].

Lines: I, 1-294; II, 1-294; III, 1-318; IV, 1-398 (misnumbered as 1-396, the error beginning at line 312, which is misnumbered as 310).

The text is revised as compared with the text of the small octavo Works, Vol. II. Part I. of 1743.

The Harvard Library copy was collated for me by Mrs. Flora V. Livingston.

4to. Sig.: 2 leaves; B-H, in 4's; I, in 2's.

Pp.: 4 pp.; [1]-60.

No titlepage was printed for this edition of the Essay on Criticism. It and the Essay on Man were sold together as a single pamphlet, at 6s. The two Essays were not infrequently bound with the quarto Dunciad of 1743 in a single volume; the note on the verso of the titleleaf of the Dunciad reads: "Speedily will be publish'd,|[In the same Paper, and Character, to be bound up with this,]|The Essay on Man,|The Essay on Criticism,|And the rest of the Author's Original Poems,|With the Commentaries and Notes of|W. Warburton, A. M." Two of my copies are so bound, in old (contemporary?) calf, and lettered on the back "Pope's Works." For collation with the Harvard Library copy I have to thank Mrs. Flora V. Livingston.

The second leaf is the Contents leaf.

Text of the poem begins on sig. B1 (pp. 1-2).

Lines: 1-744. After line 160 a couplet (previously numbered 161-162) is omitted.

The text is revised as compared with the text of the small octavo Works, Vol. I. Part I. of 1743.

The body of notes has been enlarged.

A table of Contents, divided into Parts I, II, III, was first supplied in the small octavo Works, Vol. I. of 1736. It was repeated in the subsequent editions of 1740 and 1743, and with some revision of wording is repeated in this quarto. In no one of these editions are the line references in the Contents precisely right. In all these editions the divisions are indicated in the text of the poem by extra white space at the beginnings of Parts II and III. In Warburton's edition of 1751 the divisions in the Contents are as here, but there are no extra white spaces in the text.

On June 15, 1750, Warburton wrote to Dr. Doddridge: . . . "I must now begin to call him my learned friend, and have sent him a magnificent edition, which no money will buy (I mean they are not to be sold) of the Essay on Man, and Essay on Criticism";—alluding to this quarto edition, I suspect, rather than to any subsequent editions, though the Knaptons did advertise the two Essays in quarto at three shillings in 1754. It is possible that sheets from the edition of 1751 (q. v.) were what Warburton sent.

From a book list.

Printed but not published.

The date is conjectured from Spence's assertion (Anecdotes, 1820, p. 318) that Pope distributed a few copies about three weeks before his death.

The title, as above quoted, is from the advertisement (or catalogue of books) at the end of Vol. IV, pp. [250–252], of Pope's Works, in ten volumes, small octavo, published by J. and P. Knapton, 1754. This list mentions twelve other editions of Pope's pieces, among them "An Essay on Man, and an Essay on Criticism... Notes by W. Warburton, M. A. In Quarto. Price 3s."; and "The Dunciad complete, in Four Books. Published by Mr. Warburton. In Quarto. Price 4s.;" and nine titles of books by Warburton.

The "character" of Atossa was here first printed. Authority for this assertion is the letter from Bolingbroke to Lord Marchmont (quoted in E-C, III, 78). The "character" is lines 115–150 of the "Characters of Women." It was first published in 1746, under the title Verses upon the Late D—ss of M—.

Frontispiece.—The word face at the top is correctly spelled in Ed. A; but is fac in Ed. B.

In Ed. A there is no name of engraver: in Ed. B the name was printed (lower right corner), but has been inked over so heavily I have not deciphered it.

Vignette.—In Ed. A the painter's name (lower left corner) is A. Pond: in Ed. B names in both right and left corners are inked over. The inking looks as if it may have been contemporary.

One edition is with slight exception a line for line reprint of the other.

Ruffhead says (Life, 1769, 4to, p. 314) that Pope had little share in this piece. See, further, E-C, V, 441-444, and X, 216.

The first two pages are the frontispiece; the next two are the title-page and blank reverse; and the next two are the Contents; next follows the stub of the excised leaf.

The collation is of the volume as it now is, in an old [contemporary?] sprinkled calf binding. It is quite possible that several distinct books and pamphlets are bound up as one.

The pieces contained in the volume are:

The first six pages, as above; To The... Readers; The History of Abelard and Eloisa; Letters I-VI; Pope's Eloisa to Abelard; Abelard to Eloisa . . . "By Mrs C—er"; A Disuasive from Marriage; A Letter from Lady Jane Gray . . .; Lord Guilford Dudley's Answer; and Fair Rosamond's Lamentation. Ending on page 170, which is marked "Finis," and containing two plates besides the frontispiece.

A portrait of Pope.

The Dunciad (in four books). Pp. 1-126 (102-111 repeated), 119-122.

The Temple of Fame. Pp. 1-32.

The Rape of the Lock. Pp. 1-32.

An Essay on Criticism (1-27); Prologue to Cato [28-29]; Epilogue to Jane Shore [30-31]; p. 32 blank.

The Wife of Bath. Pp. 1-16.

Sapho to Phaon. Pp. 1-14, [15-16], badly mixed in numbering.

In the first section the "Abelard to Eloisa" said to be "By Mrs. C—er," i.e., Mrs. Judith Cowper Madan, is a reprint, with slight variations, of the poem printed in the posthumous "Poetical Works" (1728, pp. 67-77) of William Pattison. Professor Courthope (E-C, IX, 416) attributes to Mrs. Madan a different poem, the "Abelard to Eloisa" published as an octavo pamphlet in 1725, which begins: "Whilst in her cell sad Eloisa mourns."

The portrait of Pope is subscribed "Mr. Pope" in cursive type, and "T. Preston Fecit." The copperplate measured 5¾x4 inches. The portrait is apparently after the "Second Richardson Type," a profile facing the observer's left, natural hair, fur collar. It is not in the Grolier list.

The text of the Dunciad is from the small octavo Works of 1742; Book IV contains 620 lines. The notes are much cut.

The same printer's ornaments recur throughout the several sections of the volume.

Paper and type are cheap. The book looks like a piracy, much after the fashion affected by Curll (who died Dec. 11, 1747).

Cupid Triumphant appears to be a rare book; hence the fullness of description here. It contains a typographical detail that, since I have observed it in few earlier books, is worthy of a note. The compositor has used, in addition to the signature letter, a number to mark the sheets. In the first section, the Cupid Triumphant proper, only every pair of half-sheets (equivalent to a whole sheet) is numbered. The discarded leaf, sig. B1, doubtless had an arabic 1 on it if it had a signature letter on it (if it was half-title, it probably omitted both). It and C counted as one. Sig. D1 (page 17) has a 2 (near the left margin), a D, and the catch-word in a single line. The numbers and letters follow then: 3 and F, 4 and H, 5 and K . . . 10 and U; but X, Y, and Z have no numbers. In the other sections of the volume each half-sheet is numbered. In the Dunciad sig. B1 is a half-title, and has neither letter nor number. The C sheet is numbered 24, then 25 and D, 26 and D, 27 and Ee, 28 and F . . . 39 and R, 40 and R (quarter-sheet). The third section, Temple of Fame, of four half-sheets, begins with a half-title, on which is neither number nor sig. letter; then 20 and Y, 21 and C, and 22 and Z. The fourth section, Rape of the Lock, has signature letters but no numbers. The fifth section, Essay on Criticism, is like the third, with an unmarked half-title, followed by 16 and R, 17 and S, and 18 and T. The sixth section, Wife of Bath, has an unmarked half-title, and 42 and B. The final section, Sapho to Phaon, has an unmarked half-title, and 48 and B.

In the Gentleman's Magazine, beginning with the September number, 1734 (first edition or reprint?) and continuing thenceforward, the signature letters run consecutively through the volume, but the monthly numbers mark sheets with arabic numerals in addition, the figures 1 to 7 (sometimes 8) being repeated from month to month.

P. 589, December (1747).—Mr. Pope's Universal Prayer.

627. [January 10.]

[A false leaf of the Dunciad . . .]

Spence's Aneedotes, Singer's ed. (1820), p. 348: "The false leaf of the Dunciad sent to Cibber, as stolen from the printer's by a friend, mentions the story about Mr. Pope in Cibber's letter, and insinuates that Gay was of the party, and that Cibber, breaking in upon Mr. Gay's privacy, found him in company with his own daughter, and therefore pulled him away.—Cibber, Jan. 10, 1748."

The story of this leaf of the Dunciad is not otherwise known to me. The small Dunciad (dated 1749, published in January, 1750,) and the octavo of Warburton's Works (Vol. V) of 1751 were both under preparation in 1748-1749.

Another leaf of the Dunciad has a story, which does not, however, involve this material; see Book No. 603.

From W. P. Courtney in Notes and Queries.

Three editions of these three volumes were published in 1748.

When the Fourth Edition of these three volumes was printed in 1755, there was printed (for the first time) a Vol. IV to go with them.

With the Fifth Edition of Vols. I-III and the Second Edition of Vol. IV there appeared in 1758 the First Edition of Vols. V-VI.

The collection came to be known as "Dodsley's Collection," was popular, and was reprinted in 1763, 1765, 1766, 1770, 1775, and 1782.

Dodsley's Collection has been studied elaborately by W. P. Courtney in Notes and Queries, 10 S., VI, p. 361, and many later numbers.

Pieces printed and their sequence varied from edition to edition. Notes here made on Pope's poems are based upon Courtney's study.

Court Poems (in Vol. III of Ed. 1748, in Vol. I of ed. 1766) including "Roxana," "Bassette Table," and "Toilette," are attributed to Lady M. W. Montagu; on the authorship, cf. N & Q, 10 S, VII, 3. See, also, Lewis Melville's John Gay, pp. 40-41.

"On a grotto near the Thames at Twickenham. By Mr. Pope," is in Vol. III, pp. 1-2, of 1766, but is not in the 1748 edition.

"Inscription on a grotto of shells at Crux-Easton . . ." is in Vol. VI (1766), pp. 161-162; and also four lines extempore "on seeing the ladies at Crux-Easton . . ." Cf. Book No. 639, January 31, 1750, infra.

Nothing else attributed to Pope appeared in Vols. I-III of the editions of 1748.

Note.—The Second and Third editions are not given Book Numbers here.

... Gahagan and Connor were papists of considerable families in Ireland, the former was a very good Latin scholar, and editor of Brindley's edition of the classics; he translated Mr. Pope's Essay on Criticism into Latin verse, and after his confinement the Temple of Fame and the Messiah, which he dedicated to the D. of Newcastle, in hopes to obtain a pardon; he also wrote verses in English to Prince George, and Mr. Adams the recorder, which are published in the ordinary of Newgate's account, together with a poetical address to the Duchess of Queensborough by Connor.—In a poem addressed to Gahagan in the said account, are the following verses—

Who without rapture can thy numbers read,
Who hear thy fate, and sorrow not succeed,
Who not condole thee betwixt fear and hope,
Who not admire thee thus translating Pope?
Translating Pope in never dying lays,

The first edition of a boyhood translation by Pope, but printed here anonymously. The lines begin: "From fair Symaethis and her Faunus came." There are 164 lines printed, with a statement on page 569, "Two lines here are wanting." At the end, page 570, is a note: "Memorandum. Done at 14 years old." In the London Magazine of the year 1751, p. 320, there is a reference back to this poem, with the statement that it was written by Pope. Pp.: 8 pp.; [xxi]—xxxviii; [1]—163; 3 pp.; [1]—78; [lxvii]—lxxxvii; [lxxxviii, Errata].

The volume is not a carefully made book; it is formed in large part, apparently, of unsold sheets of 1743–1742.

The leaf sig. a1 of the edition of 1743 was excised, and a new-printed leaf (Advertisement) was pasted to its stub.

Excised leaves are sigs. b4 and d1.

Inserts are sigs. B2, B6, B7, D4, D5, D6, E2, E4, or (and?) E5, and H4 and H5 (a quarter-sheet).

Lowndes's Manual has caused confusion and some discussion by listing a Dunciad in quarto in 1750. Such a quarto is now considered a myth book. Lowndes's mistake probably arose from a confusion of this small octavo dated 1749 (but published in 1750) and a satirical poem published in 1750 under the title A New Book Of The Dunciad: Occasion'd By Mr Warburton's New Edition of The Dunciad Complete.

1751

Book Nos. 642-657
Piece Nos. 250-256

In May a collection of letters to Aaron Hill included thirty-one by Pope, which had not previously been printed. The great event of the year was the publication in June of the long-expected edition of the Works in nine volumes by Warburton. Included in Volumes IV, V, VI, and VIII were seven pieces printed for the first time. The edition was immediately reprinted in a cheaper issue of smaller format.

This year, the year of the first edition of Warburton's collected Works, which was intended by the editor to be definitive, is made the stopping point for "Part II" of this Bibliography. There were reprints of Warburton's edition, with revisions in the notes but without notable alterations in the text of the verse, in 1752, 1753, 1754, 1756, and 1757, and in later years; and this edition remained the standard one until Warton's edition in 1797.

Frontispiece: medallion portraits of Pope (above) and Warburton
(in center), Blakey del—Major Sculp. And two other plates (II, S. Wale—T. S. Müller; III, Anty. Walker Del: et Sculp.).

8vo. Sig.: 1 leaf; a, 8 leaves; †A, 9 leaves; †B–†D, in 8's; †E, 7 leaves; †F–†R, in 8's; †S, in 2's; and two plates, on inserted leaves.

Pp.: 4 pp.; [i]–xii; 2 pp. [Contents and Errata]; i–x; *xi–*xii; xi–xxxiii; [xxxiv, blank]; [35]–274; and the two plates, not numbered or counted in paging.

The printer was William Bowyer.

In a letter (unpublished) from Bedford Row, May 23, 1751, Warburton wrote to Balguy: ... "Mr. Pope's Works, which will be published on the 1st., 2nd., or 3rd. of June." Horace Walpole wrote to Montagu on June 15, 1751: "Warburton publishes his edition of Pope next week. . . . I am told the edition has waited, because he had canceled above one hundred sheets (on which he had written notes) since the publication of Edwards' 'Canons of Criticism'."

One hundred sheets would equal 800 leaves, or 1600 pages. It may be noted that the signature letters of Vol. I are accompanied by a dagger; Vol. II, by §; Vol. IV, by *; and Vol. VI, by ‡; but Vols. III, V, VII–IX use unaccompanied signature letters. Whether those accompanying marks have anything to do with the "hundred" canceled sheets or were merely aids to the binder I have not yet learned.

The edition had been in preparation since 1748; see further, E–C, I, p. xi, second paragraph.

Inserts.—Of the original sig. a sheet, two quarter-sheets are retained (sig. a3+6 and sig. a4+5), and one leaf, either sig. a7 or a8. The general title-leaf and the present sig. a2 leaf are a new-printed quarter-sheet. The title-leaf to Volume I is an inserted leaf. The eighth leaf (Contents leaf) is either sig. a7 or sig. a8; the original sig. a8 (or sig. a7) was discarded.

Original sig. †A5 was excised, and on its stub are pasted sigs. †A5 (pp. ix–x) and 6 (pp. *xi–*xii), a quarter-sheet; hence the nine leaves in the †A signature.

Sig. †E8 was excised, only its stub remaining; it was probably a blank leaf, since there is no gap in the page numbers.

Title-leaf.—On the verso of the general title-leaf are six lines of Latin prose from Cicero,—omitted from editions after 1751.

In the Essay on Criticism (to take one example) lines are mis-numbered.

Pieces contained in Volume I:—

This volume is extant in three or more variants, or “states,” dependent upon the number of cancellations and substitutions.

Variant a contains the original leaf B5 (pp. 9–10); see E–C, IV, pp. 533–534. I have not examined a copy of Variant a.

Variant b contains the new-printed leaf B5 and the original sheets E and F, but in sig. F has, as an insert, a new-printed quarter-sheet, sig. F5–F6 (pp. 73–76).

Variant c contains the new-printed leaf B5, but not the quarter-sheet sig. F5–F6, because the sheets E and F have been new-printed entire.

Variants b and c agree in containing the following inserts:

Sig. H2 (pp. 99–100).

Warburton's first note (1751, VIII, 253), "This letter bears the same place . . .", was revised for the 1752 edition to read, "This letter (which was first printed in the Year 1733) bears the same place . . ." On p. 258 another note runs, "It was for this reason that this letter, as soon as it was printed, was communicated to the Q[ueen]." The Letter, then, apparently was printed in 1733, but was never published till 1751.

The account of the life is followed by an account of Warburton's edition, which lists the contents of the nine volumes, and quotes liberally from Warburton's prefatory advertisement and from his text of the manuscript additions by Pope to the Preface of 1717.

The portrait is on an inserted leaf, without name of painter or engraver. It is a half-length of the poet, seated at a table. It is Grolier No. 67.

[As supra]

In the Gentleman's Magazine for 1751 Warburton's edition of the Works received scant notice. On p. 344, the August number, two brief notes occur,—(a) a satirical comment on Warburton's note to the Foster couplet ("1738," I, lines 131–132), and (b) another upon the omission of Pope's frontispiece to the Essay on Man. In the December list of new books, the first entry is of J. G. Cooper's Cursory Remarks on Warburton's new edition.

ADDITIONS AND CORRECTIONS

To Be Made In

Part I, Volume I

Directions for making additions or alterations are entered here by reference to page and Book Number in Part I, following the same sequence, which is chronological.

A book or piece listed below for the first time is given a number as nearly indicative of its proper place as possible, with the expression "Add." as an integral part of its number.

The abbreviation "Smp" means Professor Sherburn's review of Volume I, Part I, in Modern Philology, Vol. 22, February (1925), pp. 327-336.

The abbreviation "Cmp" means a similar article, containing additions and corrections, by Dr. Case in Modern Philology, XXIV (February, 1927), 297-313.

Page 24, No. 22.—Change date from October, 1713, to May 1, 1714. E-C, V, 148, and Ruffhead are probably wrong; the letter they cite from Lansdown can easily refer to the Homer translation (Piece No. 2) in Tonson's Miscellanies, 1709. Cf. the notes on Book Nos. 22 and 35; and the Journal Littéraire, IV, 212.

Page 26, No. 26.—Add a date, "Before November 28 (Smp, p. 329)." The place of the book would then be before Book No. 24.

All the above is supplied me in a note from Mrs. Livingston. The pamphlet was apparently printed as portion of a larger work. If it had been printed merely as a separate, the omission of Pope's name might have been used as an argument for its early appearance (see Book Nos. 8, 26, 27). Different from the Henly Essay (Book No. 28), it is also different from and anterior to Grierson's 1717 Essay in Book No. 102.

This title was prepared by the publisher for a Dublin reprint of "Windsor-Forest" from one of the two London editions, Book Nos. 9 and 10, and a reprint of (presumably) the sole available edition of the "Rape," which was in Miscellaneous Poems . . . 1712, Book No. 6. Note the date and the spelling "Locke," with an e. I know of no copy extant in such a state, and only infer the issuance of such a book. See infra, in Additions, Book No. Add. 35b.

Title and collation are from Cmp.

There are frequent quotations from Pope in each volume, if the assertion in Bm is correct that remainder sheets of these two volumes were issued in 1718 with new title-leaves calling them Vols. III-IV of the Art of English Poetry; see Smp 91 (Mod. Phil., p. 333). The Museum Catalogue is verified by Mr. Case (Cmp).

Presumably at about the same time, the Fifth Edition of Bysshe's Art of English Poetry, 1714, was published. I have not seen a copy, and cannot say whether it contained quotations from Pope or not.

See supra, in Additions, Book No. Add. 28a.

The two titles above are taken from a dealer's catalogue (numbered 12 on the inside of the front cover) The Works of Alexander Pope, Dean Swift . . . and many other important authors [n. d., 1926], issued by Birrell & Garnett, item 432.

The general title and the separate "Rape" title are at odds. "Windsor-Forest" could have been reprinted in Dublin in 1713, and the "Rape" in the two-canto form could have been also; very likely they were (see Book No. Add. 28a). But the "Third Edition With Additions" points to the five-canto form, reprinted from the "Third" London edition (of which the corresponding first edition had been published on March 4, 1714). Further, the "With Additions" is an addition made by the Dublin publisher to the London title, and would seem to imply that an earlier printing without the "Additions" had been offered to his readers. To reconcile the titlepage contradictions I submit the tentative inference that the general titlepage went with two issues, the first of which in 1713 contained the "Rape" in two-canto form, whereas the second issue discarded the two-canto form and substituted in its stead the later-printed "Third Edition With Additions." The Birrell & Garnett copy is of this hypothetical second issue.

The quarto edition of Rowe's Poems, 1714 (which was probably the "First" edition), contains nothing by Pope (–Cmp). The "Second Edition" awaits examination. The poems were reprinted in the octavo Poetical Works, 1715.

In 1715 remainder sheets of the 12mo Poems were bound in as part of the Elzevir Miscellany, which in turn composed part of Curll's Miscellanea, I (1726 but dated 1727), Variant c, Book No. 180 (–Cmp).

Var. b contains only ten stanzas, omitting the fourth stanza of the Curl edition (Var. a).

I owe all the above to a note from Mrs. Livingston.

One is led to wonder if Peter Pencil may not have been Pope in quest of information as to the manner in which Cull secured the manuscript of the poem.’ See infra, the notes to the substitute for ‘Page 54, No. 59.’”

59. July 31.

The Post-Man.

48. No. 11250, July 28–31, 1716.—Whereas . . . [A notice, signed "A. Pope."]

The notice reads as follows:—

Whereas there have been publish'd in my Name, certain scandalous Libels, which I hope no Persons of Candour would have thought me capable of, I am sorry to find myself obliged to declare, that no genuine Pieces of mine have been printed by any but Mr. Tonson and Mr. Lintot. And in particular, as to that which is entituled, A Version of the first Psalm; I hereby promise a Reward of three Guineas to any one who shall discover the Person or Persons concerned in the Publication of the said Libel, of which I am wholly ignorant.—A. Pope.

This information was supplied me in a letter from Mr. Case.

The notice is probably the advertisement referred to in Pope's letter to Martha Blount, August 7, 1716, with its "equivocated pretty genteelly" phrase which has borne down hard on his reputation in subsequent years. Culll understood the advertisement to mean, what it was cunningly worded to seem to mean, that Pope was denying authorship of the poem; and he retorted in print that the manuscript of it in Pope's own handwriting might be seen at Burleigh's shop. It remains still a question whether Pope connived at publication of the piece. He may have been even more interested to learn who among his acquaintance might not be trusted with playthings than concerned to deny his bye progeny. (See supra, "Page 53, No. 57.") He never admitted the poem to a place among his acknowledged compositions, but silently refused upon another good occasion years later to disavow it. See Carruthers's Life, I, 154.

Library of William Andrews Clark, Jr.

The title is supplied me by Miss Cora Sanders, of Mr. Clark's library (Los Angeles).

There is no comma after Worms. No a precedes Young Lady.

This pamphlet is rare. Mr. Sherburn, Mr. Case, and I have each sought to reconstruct it, and we each arrived at about the same result. Gratifyingly enough, a copy in Mr. Clark's library proves that we attained the correct result.

Mr. Sherburn quotes the advertisement from the Evening Post: “This Day is publish'd, More Court Poems. Part 2d. Containing, 1. The Dream, or, Melesinda's Lamentation on the Burning of her Smock. 2. The Hyde-Park Ramble, with some other Pieces. Written by a Lady of Quality. To which are added, The Worms, a Satire, also, a Version of the first Psalm, for the Use of a Young Lady. Printed for J. Roberts, near the Oxford-Arms in Warwick-Lane, pr. 1s. Where may be had, The first Part of Court Poems, viz: The Basset-Table, The Drawing-Room, The Toilet, pr. 6d.”

Typographically the pamphlet is in three portions. The first portion is a half-sheet, containing the title (pp. 1–2), the poem of “Melesinda's Lamentation” (pp. 3–7), and the “First Psalm” (p. 8). The second portion consists of two half-sheets and a quarter-sheet, and contains “A Tale Of The Finches” (pp. 1–20). The third portion is the rest of the pamphlet, consisting of three half-sheets and a quarter-sheet, and contains a group of poems.

The second portion had previously enjoyed a separate pamphlet existence; probably two leaves discarded from Court Poems were originally sigs. D3–D4, a title-leaf and a final book-list leaf. The third portion is a remainder copy, wanting the title-leaf (and probably a final leaf, sigs. E3–E4), of State Poems, for a description of which see Additions, May 19, 1716, supra. The first portion was probably printed purposely to make up this pamphlet.

In the third portion (the State Poems) Mrs. Centlivre is involved, more so perhaps than appears on the surface; and a footnote seems to glance at Lady M. W. Montagu, with a possibility of a connection between the two women.

Subsequently, remainder copies of this Court Poems (with the title-leaf discarded) were used as a part of The Ladies Miscellany of 1718, Book No. 97, q. v.

Mr. Case sets up the hypothesis of a transaction between the book-sellers Roberts and Curril. I suspect Roberts was a mere figure-head publisher, as he was again, I think, in other cases, among them the 1729 Posthumous Poems of Wycherley, the 1735 Letters of Pope, and the 1737 Works, V-VI, of Pope.

The information above is from the Catalogue of the Ashley Library. IV (1923), 11.

The description given on page 54 supra was based upon Gaa, which, however, is pretty certainly incorrect; for there is contradiction between statements on pages 13 and 14. (The imprint of "J. Baker and T. Warner" at the foot of a fac-simile on p. 14 would seem to have been copied inadvertently from another folio half-sheet, viz., A Letter from Sir J . . . B . . ., etc.)

Yale Library (Z 78. 88h).

The Courant of July 12 promised that, "To-morrow will be published..."

Sig. *N repeats the page numbers.

Sig. Q contains two leaves in the middle that are misbound. The first is a catalogue of books, and was intended to follow pages 227-228. The second leaf, with page numbers 203-204, was meant to be substituted for the original leaf O6, pp. 203-204, which has been slashed by shears to indicate cancellation, for the purpose of altering the text slightly and of aligning the verse correctly.

This book is not to be confused with the Poems On Several Occasions, which is a collection of Fenton's poems, published by Lintot March 19, 1717.

Mr. Case has shown, in an essay in the London Mercury, October, 1924, Vol. X, pp. 614-623, that this Miscellany was edited by Pope, and contains fifteen poems by Pope, selected mostly from his juvenilia, of which number eleven have never been printed in any edition of Pope's Works, and, until Mr. Case discovered them, have been entirely unknown to students of Pope. In the Mercury Mr. Case reprints the eleven poems.

Note.—Mr. Case notes that the Poems was advertised on July 12, 1717, to be published "To-morrow"; he continues: "That any large number of copies of the miscellany were sold is improbable. It was re-advertised in August, but before the close of summer it had entered the limbo of forgotten things. No doubt Lintot philosophically pocketed his loss and consoled himself with thoughts of his profits from the Iliad. . . . Abandoned by both editor and publisher, Poems on Several Occasions vanished almost completely." The fortunes of the Poems were not, however, quite so bleak. Lintot must have kept some copies on sale. In 1720 he appended to the 12mo Second Edition of the Iliad (Book No. 127), Vol. IV, a catalogue of twenty-six books. The first five are octavos by Pope. The sixth is the Iliad, "in six volumes, Folio. Large paper price one guinea, and small paper 14s. each Vol." (cf. notes on price, p. 42, supra). And the eighteenth is "Poems on several occasions: By his Grace the Duke of Bucks, Mr. Wycherly, Lady Winchelsea, the Reverend Mr. Ward, Sir Samuel Garth, Mr. Rowe, Mrs. Singer, Bevil Higgins, Esq; &c. Price 3s. 6d." Again, in the same wording, the book is listed in a 34-page catalogue which Lintot had printed as a part of the volume of Parnell's Poems, ed. 1726 (Book No. 165). See, also, the concluding sentence of Pope's "Advertisement" in Vol. III of the small octavo Works, 1736 (Book No. 417).

Fifteen poems by Pope are here first printed:—

Add. 67a. P.—Imitation of Martial.

This is in Pope's Letters, 1737, quarto (p. 137), small folio, and L. P. folio; E-C, IV, 462.

Add. 67b. P.—Written over a Study; out of Maynard.

Add. 67c. P. 81.—Of the Lady who could not sleep in a stormy Night.

Add. 67d. P. 82.—Of her singing to a Lute.

This is in Miscellanea, I, 131, Book No. 177. Piece No. 107. The entry on p. 135 of this Bibliography should be canceled (as a reprint), and an entry made in the index, p. 280.

Add. 67e. P. 83.—Of her Picture.

Add. 67f. P. 84.—Of her Sickness.

Add. 67g. P. 85.—Of her walking in a Garden after a Shower.

Add. 67h. P. 86.—Of her Sighing.

The six poems, pp. 81–86, have a general heading on page 81, “Verses in imitation of Waller.|By a Youth of thirteen.|—|” The next three poems, pp. 87–91, have similarly the general heading on p. 87, “Verses in imitation of Cowley.|By the same Hand.|—|”

Add. 67i. P. 87.—Weeping.

This poem was next reprinted in the small octavo Works, III, 191–192, 1736; it is in E-C, IV, 431.

Add. 67j. P. 89.—Presenting a Lark.

Add. 67k. Pp. 90–91.—The River.

Add. 67l. Pp. 92–94.—The Fourth Ode Of Catullus. Paraphras'd in the manner of Cowley.

Add. 67m. Pp. 95–96.—Catullus. Ad Peninsulam Sirmionem.

Add. 67n. Pp. 96–98.—Lydia. Imitated from the Lyric of Corn. Gallus. By the same Hand.

Add. 67o. Pp. 116–117.—Solitude. An Ode.

The text of Solitude differs from the version in the letter to Cromwell of July 17, 1709 (E-C, VI, 82); see Book No. 164, Piece No. 97a, which should now be canceled; the poem is in E-C, IV, 407 (different in text).

Towards the end a pamphlet begins with sig. A2, pp. 3–4, “Upon a Lady who happen'd to open her Floodgates at the Tragedy of Cato. An Epigram.” Ten lines of English are followed by a ten-line Latin translation. The pamphlet once contained sigs.: A–E, in 4's; pp. [1]–40, but for this volume the first leaf (sig. A, pp. 1–2) was discarded. I suspect it is remainder sheets of the Poetical Entertainer, Book No. Add. 28b.

One piece is here first printed:

Add. 67q. P. 23.—the prayer of Brutus, beginning “Goddess of Woods” . . . [and the answer, p. 24].

On page 24 is the answer of the goddess, eight lines of verse, beginning “Brutus there lies” . . . Mr. Sherburn has argued that the latter verses as well as the prayer are by Pope; see the Manly Anniversary Studies (Chicago, 1923), pp. 174–176, and Smp, No. XIII.

The Piece Number includes both prayer and answer.

A copy is described as item No. 1526 (p. 243) of Sotheby's sale catalogue (April 6, 1927) of the Britwell Court Library of Mr. Christie-Miller.

The verses are not in E–C, and they were never acknowledged by Pope. That he should write two “ballads” to the same tune appears doubtful to me.

Professor Trent's library.

Professor Trent was kind enough to call my attention to this book, and to lend me his copy for examination.

There is no indication of the name of the compiler, who was probably Mrs. Rowe.

The Dedication, of two pages, is signed: "Your Humble Servant and Admirer." It is to Sir Richard Blackmore, who is commended for his "just Concern for the Total Consequence of Love and Profane Poetry."

The Preface, of eight pages, refers to Queen Anne as still living. It is a thoughtful and well written attempt to show that poetry and wit may and should be a help to morality and religion.

Sig. A, the Dedication and the Preface, is on paper inferior to the rest of the book; I infer it is a remainder sheet from the second edition, published probably about 1714.

The first edition was A Collection Of Divine Hymns And Poems On Several Occasions: By The E. of Roscommon, Mr. Dryden, Mr. Dennis, Mr. Norris, Mrs. Kath. Phillips, Philomela, and others. Most of them never before Printed. London, Printed for J. Baker, in Grocers-Alley in the Poultry. 1709. Philomela was Mrs. Singer (later Mrs. Rowe); and she is stated to have been the compiler of the volume in a 16-page book-list of W. Taylor's books which is affixed at the back of both the first edition (1709) and of other contemporary books. There is nothing by Pope in the first edition. The second I have acquired no information about.

In this Third Edition Pope's name is not mentioned, but there is on:—

Pp. 32—36.—Messiah: A Sacred Eclogue, composed of several Passages of Isaiah the Prophet. Written in Imitation of Virgil's Pollio.

"Scating," in its Latin form, was published in Musarum Anglicanarum Analecta, Oxon, 1699, 8vo, II, 145-147, as "Cursus Glacialis, Anglice, Scating," a poem of 58 lines by "Phil. Frowde, Coll. Magd. Superioris Commeus." Concerning Frowde, see D. N. B.

"The Preface . . . attempts to show that the poem on skating . . . was really the work of Addison."—Cmp.

In newspaper advertisements the second portion of this pamphlet is alluded to as "The Second Eve; a Poem on the Lady Mary Wortley Montague." Mr. Case (Cmp, No. F) considers it the "Second Eve" concerning which Mr. Sherburn has written (Smp, No. XIV and Manly Anniversary Studies, p. 174).

This differs from Book No. 137 in three points: (1) both portrait plate and monument plate are bound in Vol. I; (2) the imprint, as above; (3) the pages excised from Vol. II have been supplied by printed (new-printed?) substitute leaves (—Cmp). The relationship of this book to Book Nos. 137 and Add. 142a is not yet determined.

Insert among the notes: "The Evening Post of November 10, 1724, carries this advertisement, 'Mr. Markland's Collection of New Poems, consecrated to Venus. With Mr. Pope's Character of Mr. Addison. Price 1s. 6d.',—thus linking Markland with Cythereia (cf. Smp, p. 335). In the Gentleman's Magazine, XCIV, Part I, p. 512

(reprinted in Curll Papers), a receipt once in the Upcott collection of manuscripts is quoted: '[No date.] John Markland received of Mr. Curll two guineas for The Fryar's Tale, The Retaliation, and other Poems, amounting to four sheets in print.' These poems are numbered I and VIII in Cythereia; Markland's reply to Pope is No. XIII. There are nineteen pieces in a total of seven and a fraction 'sheets.' No piece is attributed in the book to its author except Pope's."

The Evening Post advertised: "This Day is Republish'd, The Works of . . . Buckingham." . . . "This announcement marks the success of Pope and Barber in their efforts to get Sheffield's Works before the public"—Smp. The nature of this "republication" is not yet determinable. The books of 1723 may have been released; or substitute leaves may have been new-printed for the cancels. It looks probable that the 1724 issue needs a Book Number either as a book or as a variant of Book No. 137.

When Buckingham's Works were reprinted in octavo in 1729 (The Second Edition), they appeared in the castrated form, so the General Dictionary asserts, IX (1739), 200–214. The Dyce Catalogue (South Kensington Museum), however, has a note, "at the end of vol. II. with a separate pagination.—'Some Account of the Revolution.'" The "Third Edition," 1740, 8vo, prints in full the passages eliminated in 1723, and adds the contents of a pamphlet published in 1729, A Character of John Sheffield . . . Pedigree . . . Last Will . . .

This bastard title-leaf and a book-list leaf were printed on a quarter-sheet, the first leaf being intended to go in the middle of the book and the second at the front or back. In some copies the two leaves as a quarter-sheet were used at the front of the volume as a wrapper for the volume-title leaf and the Contents-leaf, thus binding in (by mistake) two specimens of the "Key" title-leaf.

An Occasional Letter [or The Occasional Writer?].

A story is told by Ruffhead (Life, 1769, 8vo, p. 214, note): "When the first Occasional Letter to Sir R. Walpole came out . . . [Voltaire] made Mr. Pope a visit at Twitnham; and walking with him in his garden, he said, this occasional Letter alarms the court extremely. It is finely written. As you converse much with the best pens conversant in public business, you must know the author. You may safely tell this secret to a stranger, who has no concerns with your national quarrels. Mr. Pope said, he perfectly understood him, as he knew his character: and, to make a trial, which hardly needed any, he replied, 'Mr. Voltaire, you are a man of honour; I may safely, I know, trust an important secret to your breast. I myself wrote it.' Voltaire, after launching out into high encomiums on the performance, was, he perceived, impatient to get away; and the next day he heard, that all the court reported that he was the author. . . ." The Life by Carruthers (1858, p. 238) may be compared. I think Ruffhead may have written "occasional Letter" when he meant The Occasional Writer. (Four numbers of the Occasional Writer (1727) are in the Hope Collection; I have No. II, usually attributed to Bolingbroke.)

Reconstructed title.

The title above is made up from Bm, the Monthly Chronicle, and H. Lintot's catalogue of books on the final leaf (sig. O4) of Vol. III of Pope's Works, 1736, small octavo, Variant a, Book No. 417. The price was 4s. 6d.

The Lintot catalogue affixes a note: "The two first Books corrected by Mr. Pope. The two last by Mr. Harte of St. Mary Hall, Oxon." The biographers have not known of Pope's connection with this book.

The first edition of Gardiner's translation was Rapin Of Gardens. A Latin Poem. In Four Books. English'd by Mr. Gardiner. [6 lines —E. of Roscommon, Essay of transl. Ver.] London, Printed by W. Bowyer for Bernard Lintott at the Cross-Keys next Nando's Coffee-House near Temple-Bur. [n. d.] Octavo [1706]; pp.: 38 pp.+1-195 +5 pp. (book list). Frontispiece and four double-page cuts of garden scenes.

Of the first edition Giles Jacob says, it "very much suffered by a hasty Publication; but the second . . . is . . . excellently well done."

The second edition, octavo, dated in Bm as [1718], is dated 1717 by Jacob, and is advertised by Lintot in the 12mo, second-edition Iliad (1720), I, p. [251] as "now revis'd and finished. . . . Price 3s. 6d." It is listed again in Lintot's 34-page catalogue at the end of Parnell's Poems, 1726.

Pope's name has not been connected with the first or second edition.

The "Third Edition" appears to have been reprinted in Cowley's History of Plants . . . pt. 2, 1795, 12mo.

Note.—James Gardiner, son of the bishop of the same name, was fellow of Jesus College, Cambridge, Sub-Dean of Lincoln, and author of several other books. He died March 24, 1732 (—Historical Register) .

Page 158, Book No. 203, Dunciad, Third Edition, Variant a.—The library of the University of Texas has acquired a copy of this edition since Part I of this Bibliography was published. Consequently two or three notes may be added here that are based on my own comparisons.

The larger portion of this edition was apparently printed from the setting of type that had been used for the Second Edition (Book Nos. 201 and 202) and been kept standing. But leaves 3 and 4 of sig. D (partly at least) and all of the half-sheet E were printed from type new-set.

The new-set type for sig. E was, in its turn, kept standing, and subsequently was used for Book No. 204. But several revisions in the "standing" type were made after No. 203 had been printed off, and before the type was arranged again into page-forms for the working off of Book No. 204.

Though sheets of Book No. 202 (Second Edition) and sheets of No. 203 (Third Edition) were printed from the same setting of type, it must not be inferred—as might hastily be done—that "remainder" sheets of the Second Edition were used to make up any part of the Third Edition. The two variants of the Third Edition were each a complete re-printing as compared either with the Second Edition or with each other.

From the appearance of these several books I infer that if the printer desired to keep his type "standing" after he had completed the printing off of an edition, he had it taken out of the page forms and replaced in galley, separating in the taking-down process the marginal paraphernalia (running titles, page numerals, line numbers, press marks, signature marks, and catch-words) from the body of text type. Of course, for the next printing much of the paraphernalia would be replaced as it had originally been; but, on the theory of general probabilities, press marks (at the bottom margins) would vary in the two printings.

Between printings, the text of any single line could be revised. On page 34, Book II, line 365 (error for 367) has C—re in Book No. 203 (as it has in all precedent editions), but has Centlivre in Book No. 204; yet the type of adjacent lines in Book No. 204 was not altered from what it had been.

Some other distinguishing marks of Book No. 203 are:

P. 37, line 12.—A final (erroneous) comma: in 202, a period.

P. 37, line 19.—fight (incorrect): in 202, flight.

P. 41.—Contains lines 85–104 and a one-line note: in Book No. 202, the lines 103–104 and the note are on page 42.

P. 42, line 106.—war without comma: in 202, war, with comma.

P. 42, line 109.—Son with capital S: in 202, with lower-case s.

P. 46.—A six-line foot-note (to line 185), beginning, "Dr. Faustus the subject" . . . : in 202, no foot-note, though line 185 contains an asterisk to refer to one.

In pages 152 ff. supra, after stating that all evidence so far adducible is ambiguous, I set up, as a tentative judgment: that the first edition of the Dunciad of 1728 was a duodecimo; that the second edition was the octavo, the only octavo printed in London in that year; that the octavo was very likely in the nature of "Large Paper copies," of which probably not more than one hundred copies were struck off; and that the two editions were ready for distribution on the same day, May 18.

Since the publication of Part I of this Bibliography, only one critic has taken exception to this tentative judgment. Mr. T. J. Wise argues, Catalogue of the Ashley Library, IV (1923), pp. 15 ff., in support of two propositions: that there was a second London octavo edition printed between the duodecimo and the octavo; and that both the octavo editions preceded the duodecimo, his sequence being—"crown octavo" (or large octavo), "foolscap octavo" (or small octavo), and duodecimo. (Concerning the later editions, Book Nos. 200–206, there is now, I think, no difference of opinion among scholars, and so they need no rediscussion here.)

For the existence of a foolscap octavo edition Mr. Wise's evidence resides in two sentences:—

I am satisfied that it [meaning specifically the copy of the octavo in the Wrenn Library and by implication other copies like it] was printed in foolscap octavo size, and it is not a cropped specimen of the crown octavo. . . . The dimensions of the pages of type clearly indicate that when originally set up, the volume the printer had in view was to be a foolscap octavo.

The first of these sentences, belonging to a teasing, subjective sort of bibliography, does not admit of argument or submit to test. The second, however, offers a datum objective enough to be tested for its real significance. It is generally agreed that the duodecimo and the octavo (or octavos, if two there were) were printed off from the same setting of type, the forms (or "pages of type") being of the same dimensions in the two (or three) editions. The font used was 10-point Caslon old style, double leaded. The "pages of type" are not strictly uniform, ranging from  $4\frac{9}{16}$  to  $4\frac{15}{16}$  inches in height and from  $2\frac{13}{16}$  to  $2\frac{15}{16}$  inches in width. The two (or three) editions vary only in the amount of white paper in the outer and the bottom margins. What size margins would be artistically proportioned to these dimensions of type? Against Mr. Wise's opinion may be placed W. J. Thoms's decision that the type "was obviously composed for a 12mo. page." Certainly there were contemporary duodecimo books of about these proportions. Lintot's Miscellaneous Poems and Translations By Several Hands was the commonest shape in which Pope's poems were then on sale; the editions of it of 1720, of 1722, and of 1727 were printed from type of the same size (but with slightly wider leadings) on whole sheets in twelves; the pages of type measure  $5\frac{3}{16}$  x  $2\frac{3}{16}$  inches. My copies of the three editions of the Miscellany and of a "Third Edition" of the Dunciad (Book No. 204, from Col. Grant's library), trimmed and bound—all in old bindings—all, as they stand on the shelf, measure exactly alike in height and width.

Pope, displeased at both Lintot and Motte, was for the time being secretly acting as his own publisher, working presumably through his temporary printer, Bettenham. The format he and Bettenham would naturally choose, would be one to stand on bookshelves beside such books at Book Nos. 120, 121, 124, 127, 135, 154, 164, 177, and 192, which are duodecimos on whole or on part sheets, with leaves measuring when untrimmed about  $7\frac{1}{4}$  x  $4\frac{3}{8}$  inches; or such books as Book Nos. 29, 36, 100, 101, 107, 109, 110, 129, 136, 140, 185, and 187, which are crown octavos, with leaves measuring when untrimmed about  $8\frac{1}{4}$  x  $5\frac{1}{8}$  inches. The two men provided a size of the earliest Dunciads to go with each of the two runs of books. There was no demand, so far as I can see, for a Dunciad of an intermediate size or intermediate variety of printing; to provide one would have been gratuitous and thankless labor.

The small, or foolscap, octavo that Mr. Wise believes in is the wraith of Thoms's No. A edition. After Part I of this Bibliography had been published I learned the whereabouts of the precise copy upon which Thoms based the description of his No. A—the Malone-Cunningham copy. Its present owner, Mr. John Murray, has been kind enough to write me a description of the volume. It is the octavo in half-sheets, with trimmed leaves that measure  $7\frac{1}{8} \times 4\frac{3}{8}$  inches. Among other copies of the octavo edition, the B. B. Macgeorge copy (since sold), untrimmed, measures  $8\frac{1}{4} \times 5$  inches; the Ashley Library copy, trimmed,  $7\frac{5}{8} \times 4\frac{3}{4}$  inches. Each of these copies could, without the least infringement upon the typed portion of the page, be trimmed down to the size of the Wrenn copy, which, having been considerably trimmed, has leaves that measure  $6\frac{1}{2} \times 3\frac{13}{16}$  inches. How is it possible, then, for any person of today to know that the binder cut off from the top and bottom margins of the Wrenn copy only  $\frac{12}{16}$  of an inch of white paper and not  $1\frac{12}{16}$  inches? I can see, then, no proper ground for assuming the existence of a foolscap octavo edition; if, however, a genuine untrimmed copy of one can be brought to light or any other adequate evidence can be adduced (perhaps from a study of water-marks or of the lower-margin numerals that were press-marks), then we must accept the existence of such a foolscap edition. But until such time the number of variant issues in the year of 1728 should stand not at nine, as in the Ashley Catalogue list, but at eight—Book Nos. 198, 199, 200, 201, 202, 203, 204, and 206.

As establishing the second proposition, that the octavo edition preceded the duodecimo, the points stated in the Ashley Catalogue are:

Apart from any other feature, the presence of the advertisement upon the reverse of p. 51 affords ample evidence that this [duodecimo, Book No. 198] cannot possibly be the princeps of the Satire. The note I have appended to my description of The Progress of Dulness makes it perfectly clear that the latter poem could not possibly have been printed until after the original edition of The Dunciad was in the hands of the pseudonymous writer who was so prompt in his attack upon Pope. (P. 20).

It cannot be questioned that the alteration of the opening line [Books: Book] and the addition of the concluding advertisement were made whilst the book in its duodecimo form was being prepared for the press. (P. 21.)

The Progress of Dulness could not have been printed until after the publication of The Dunciad because six lines from the latter poem figure upon its title-page, . . . (P. 29)

My own impression is this: that the verses [210 lines at the beginning of the Progress pamphlet] were written in 1727 after the appearance of Bathos . . . in the Miscellanies of that year; that immediately upon publication of the octavo editions of The Dunciad . . . the author carried his work to the printer, who hurried it into type, and placed an advertisement of it upon the blank last page of the issue of The Dunciad [the duodecimo] then in preparation. Pope . . . would certainly insist upon the suppression of the advertisement, and the instant withdrawal of Mrs. Dodd from any connection with the obnoxious booklet. . . . Pope's command would naturally be met by immediate obedience . . .

My suggestion that The Progress of Dulness was written in 1727 after the publication of Bathos, and before the appearance of the first edition of The Dunciad in the following year, is supported by the text of the book. This deals almost exclusively with Windsor Forest, The Temple of Fame, and The Rape of the Lock. No reference of any kind is made to The Dunciad either in the poem or the notes, but appended at the end of the volume is a short poem entitled Dunciadiana . . . These supplementary lines were evidently added after the pseudonymous author had read Pope's Satire in its original (octavo) form. . . .

One of the many lines of The Dunciad that have passed into the language is line 214 of the third Book—

Rides in the whirlwind, and directs the storm.

This line 'H. Stanhope' introduced, with a verbal alteration, into his own verses. It forms line 31 of The Progress of Dulness. The introduction of the words in question was doubtless effected at some period subsequent to the composition of the poem of which they form a part; possibly they were seized and made use of whilst the book was passing through the press.

. . . The lines are signed at the end "H. Stanhope," which is certainly a pseudonym. Just as certainly the book was printed by James Bettenham. In outward appearance it is as like the first octavo edition of The Dunciad upon small paper as it is possible for one book to be a reflection of another. The same fount of type was employed for both, and the ornamental head-band which decorates page 36 of The Dunciad served a similar purpose upon page 1 of The Progress of Dulness.

The publisher was Edmund Curll. The book was first advertised, by Mrs. Dodd, on May 24, 1728, when it was promised for publication in the following week; but on June the 8th, when the Third Edition of The Dunciad was issued, she could still only announce that it would 'speedily be published.' It actually was published on June 12th, 1728. On that day The Progress of Dulness was advertised by Curll together with other pieces issued directly by himself. (Pp. 30-31.)

The statement in the Catalogue appears to make a very strong case; it so much impressed the reviewer in the London Times Literary Supplement that he singled it out for compliment as peculiarly clear and convincing. But when it is subjected to scrutiny, it is found to omit facts or to show a misapprehension of them to such an extent that it crumbles away—valueless for the purpose intended.

The differences in texts (Books: Book, Interludes: Enterludes, etc.), stubbornly refusing to speak unambiguously, have been discussed already (pp. 154-155, supra). And the advertisements and the Progress of Dulness afford no support to the contention that the octavo Dunciad preceded the duodecimo.

In the first place, instead of there being but a single Progress of Dulness, which is an unexpressed but necessary premise to the Catalogue statement, there were two Progresses. One, the earlier, was Pope's; the other and later one was Curll's.

"The Progress of Dulness" was the birth-name, and continued for months to be the title (apparently the only title), of the poem which Pope, as he wrote to Swift on March 23, 1728, intended should be known thenceforward as "The Dunciad." Of this "Progress of Dulness" the composition and the authorship were meant to be kept secret, but before the date of publication (May 18) some knowledge of both transpired and became matter of gossip. On May 11 the Daily Journal printed a slashing, jeering article to inform the public that "the author of Windsor Forest, of the Temple of Fame . . . of the Profund [i.e., the "Bathos"] is writing the Progress of Dulness!" This "Progress of Dulness" ceased to exist by the simple process of transstitution into the Dunciad.

It was this earlier Progress, Pope's own, alias the Dunciad, that was promised for publication, "price 1s. 6d.", in the advertisements on page [52] of Book No. 198, the duodecimo (and of No. 200—copied from No. 198), and in the notices of the genuine editions of the Dunciad in the newspapers from May 24 to June 11. These advertisements were (this is an inference, but it is as old as the year 1906—cf. T. R. Lounsbury's Text of Shakespeare, p. 237; see also Modern Philology, XIII [1915], pp. 1 ff.) a camouflage to divert for a time suspicion that Pope was the author of the Dunciad itself.

Meantime Curll was busying himself. Besides the "pirated" Dunciad (Book No. 200, May 24?—presumably Curll's), he was preparing his Key, promised on May 27 and published on May 29, "in the same size to be bound up with it." He was slow (for him) to perceive that the promise to publish a Progress of Dulness was a camouflage. But he did catch the point, and deciding to take profit from the advertisements by issuing a Progress of his own, he did publish one on June 12.

Curll's Progress of Dulness is a pamphlet of 40 pages. Its contents are: pp. [i–ii], title-leaf; [iii–iv], The Publisher To The Reader; 1–8, text of "The Progress of Dulness," a poem of 210 lines; 9–28, "Observations on Windsor Forest . . . Rape of the Lock, &c."; 30–31, "Verses Presented to the Countess of Warwick," by J. Markland; 32, "Dunciadiana"; 33, a four-line epigram and an "Advertisement"; 34, letters from Curll, W. Lewis, and others, with comment; [35–36], a book list. All of the material between page 8 and page 33 is merely reprinted matter: the "Observations" is a reprint, with some omissions, of pages 40–74 of Dennis's Remarks upon Mr. Pope's Translation of Homer . . . of 1717; page 29 is reprinted from Gildon's New Rehearsal of 1714; Markland's "Verses" are reprinted from Cythereia of 1723; "Duciadiana" is reprinted from the Daily Journal of June 10. The 210 verses of the "Progress" itself (pp. 1–8, signed "H. Stanhope") are not above the capacity of Curll and could have been written in a few hours.

The first advertisement of Curll's Progress of Dulness appears in the Daily Journal of June 12.

This Day is publish'd, (Which will serve for an Explanation of the Dunciad) With Two remarkable Letters to Mr. Booth the Player, The Progress of Dulness. A Poem. By an Eminent Hand.

Nought but himself can be his Parallel. Theobald.

Printed: And sold by A. Dodd without Temple-Bar; all the Booksellers in St. Paul's Church-yard; J. Brotherton in Cornhill; W. Lewis in Covent Garden; J. Jackson near St. James's Palace; J. Pote near Suffolk-Street, Charing-Cross; and E. Curll in the Strand. Price 1s.

Where may be had, . . .

On June 18 the first words were altered to, "Just publish'd, Being truly Genuine, (Which will serve . . .) . . ." And on July 5, in the body of a long advertisement, the notice became, "The Progress . . . (. . . to explain the Dunciad.) The True Copy, no other Piece, under this Title, being intended to be publish'd. Price 1s."

The wording of the last quoted advertisement indicates that Curll was not responsible for the May advertisements of a Progress; and the difference in advertised price (one shilling instead of a shilling and sixpence) confirms as much.

The verses of H. Stanhope could not have been "written in 1727 after the appearance of Bathos" for the reason that the "Bathos" was first published on March 8 (or possibly 7), 1728, in the so-called "Last Volume" of Motte's Miscellanies, Book No. 196.

There is no evidence of any sort from which to infer, or even to assume, Pope's insistence upon the "instant withdrawal of Mrs. Dodd from any connection with the obnoxious booklet," for the newspaper advertisements continued to connect Mrs. Dodd with the camouflage Progress through June 11, and with Curll's actually published Progress from June 12 on.

Line 32 of Stanhope's poem in Curll's Progress reads:

"Bristles her Eye-brows, and directs the Storm."

Stanhope may have borrowed the last four words from the Dunciad, but from his strongly avowed admiration for Addison it is easier to believe that he drew, just as Pope himself did, upon Addison's Campaign, published in the year 1705, in which line 292 (the twentieth line on page 14) is:

"Rides in the whirlwind, and directs the storm."

That Curll had Bettenham print his pamphlet is a possibility, but is as yet only a working hypothesis. The same font of type and a single ornament in common between the Dunciad and Curll's Progress pamphlet are too slender a basis to rest a "just as certainly" on. I believe that a bibliographer may infer, with a fair hope of being right, that if two books have several ornaments in common they were printed in the same shop. I am making some use of such an inference in this Bibliography. But as to how many, and of what kind, the "several" ornaments must be, I have not yet arrived at any feeling of certainty; for I do not believe the type-founders of that generation always sold a different font of type and a different set of ornaments to each of their customers. (Until 1720–1730 English printers apparently purchased their fonts of type principally from foundries in Holland.) In some recent bibliographical discussions the writers have, I think, been too hasty in basing conclusions upon such data.

Note.—If a single ornament be enough to prove that Bettenham printed both the Dunciad and the Progress, then he also printed the Twickenham HotchPotch ("for J. Roberts," May 9, 1728), for it contains the same ornament on pp. 10 and 44. The figure on p. iii of the Progress is on pp. i, 9, and 35 of the Hotch-Potch; and the one on p. 30 of the Progress is on pp. 1, 18, and 26 of the Hotch-Potch.

Of all the points, then, set forth in the pages of the Ashley Catalogue not a single one affords any support whatever to either of the two propositions, that there was a small octavo London edition of the Dunciad in 1728, or that the octavo edition preceded the duodecimo edition.

Warburton says in a note to Pope's letter to Wycherley of April 10, 1706 (E-C, VI, 28), "Several of Mr. Pope's lines, very easy to be distinguished, may be found in the Posthumous Editions of Wycherley's Poems; particularly in those on Solitude, on the Public, and on the Mixed Life."

(The idea of contrast between the first two poems may be compared with Milton's in L'Allegro and Il Penseroso.)

"By John Arbuthnot and Alexander Pope, with large additions by Samuel Humphreys."—Bm.

My bibliographical resources do not enable me to learn the story of the composition of Esther with clearness. The common statement is that G. F. Handel's first oratorio was Esther, and that it was first performed on August 29, 1720, at Canons (the country estate of the Duke of Chandos), the day upon which the chapel was first opened for divine service. The libretto was arranged by Pope, Gay, and Arbuthnot, from Racine's Esther. It was then called Haman And Mordecai: A Masque. In 1732 a second version was privately performed by the Children of his Majesty's Chapel at the house of Bernard Gates, their master, in James-street, Westminster; and by them at a subscription concert at the Crown and Anchor; whether the words were revised for this version is not clear. In the beginning of April, 1732, it was publicly performed, and was advertised in the Daily Courant; "In the next two advertisements, the words were said to have been written by Mr. Pope, an assertion that was never contradicted by that great poet" (—Burney, General History of Music, IV, 360, and note); presumably this version made use of the words as revised by Samuel Humphreys. (Another historian states that the revised version was performed at the King's Theatre in 1733.)

See further the notes under the years 1720 and 1733.

Bm lists other editions in 1757, 4to; 1761(?), 4to; 1761, 8vo.

Page 258, No. 336.—Add a note: “Epistles I, II, and III were printed from type new-set for this pamphlet and used also for Book Nos. 337–340; but Epistle IV was printed from the setting used for the separate folio issue, Book No. 331, though a couplet (E–C, III, p. 456, lines 387–8) was printed which had not been printed in Book No. 331.”

Page 259, No. 340, Small Folio.—Add a note: “Remainder copies of this pamphlet were used to help make up the Small Folio issue of the Works, II, 1735, q.v. A couplet wanting in Book No. 331 is still missing in Book No. 340. The numbers affixed to the lines in both Nos. 331 and 340 show that the couplet was omitted accidentally. As to publication, No. 331 appeared on January 24, and both Nos. 336 and 340 on May 2. But as to printing, it is possible that No. 336 was struck off before No. 331.”

[The First Satire Of The Second Book . . . To which is added, The Second Satire of the same Book . . .]

T. P. 4to.        Sig.: ? leaves; A–E, in 4's.

Pp.: ? pp.; [1]–40.

My copy lacks a title-leaf; there is a possibility none was issued for this quarto.

The quarto is throughout from the setting of type used for the folio issue; it is not from the setting used for the two poems in the quarto Works, II, of 1735. Three of the elaborate tail-pieces which Kent and Fourdrinier were making for use in the Works, II, were, however, used in this T. P. quarto (and later were used at the same places in the Works, II), but head-pieces and decorated initials are as in the folio (Book No. 341), not as in the Works, II.

Gilliver registered copyright at Stationers' Hall on July 3 for a quarto; see E-C, III, 304.

Page 262, No. 347.—Change date from December 28 to “December 21 (London Evening Post).” Mr. Sherburn has supplied me the corrected date. The discussion of Sober Advice is continued under Book No. 356, January, 1735, and under the Sermon Against Adultery, May 26, 1738, Book No. 489.
